

CITY GOVERNMENT.

THE BOARD OF ALDERMEN MAKES LARGE APPROPRIATIONS.

The board of aldermen met Monday evening, with Mayor Fenno in the chair and all the members present. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

Henry W. Mariner was appointed a special police officer.

J. F. Cashman and C. H. Campbell were licensed to sell gunpowder.

The report of Chief Bixby for the quarter ending June 30, was received.

The Newtonville & Watertown Street Railway directors accepted the location granted them.

The hearings on the Telephone Co's application for poles on Washington, Centre and other streets was held, but no remonstrants appeared.

A. R. Mitchell asked for concrete walk on Court street, and an order was passed for its construction.

Alderman Plummer read a petition from residents on Woodbine street, complaining of the stagnant water on said street as a nuisance, and dangerous to health, and the matter was again referred to the board of health with a request that immediate action be taken.

Robert Weir and others asked to have sidewalks on Townbridge street, from Centre to Norwood avenue, graded and covered with gravel.

Edward F. Partridge of 277 Walnut street asked for a sixth class liquor license.

Alderman Roffe reported on the petition of the Telephone company for leave to run wires on trees on Tremont and Grafton streets, and the petitioner was given leave to withdraw.

TRACKS ON CENTRE STREET.

The Newton & Boston street railway company asked for a location for their tracks on Centre street, from Beacon to Willow street, and a hearing was granted for July 17th, at 7.30.

Alderman Bothfield reported the drafts of a fire ordinance.

WATER MAINS.

The water board were authorized to extend mains on Crafts and Clinton streets, to protect the district against fire, 290 feet of 6 in. main on Clinton street, and 294 feet on Crafts street, the whole to cost $720, and to be laid without the usual guarantee.

The water board were also authorized to lay 280 feet of pipe on Ware road, at a cost of $200, with the usual guarantee.

The mayor was authorized to contract with the Boston & Albany for the building of a side track to the pipe yard at Newton Highlands.

SEWER ASSESSMENTS.

On motion of Alderman Hunt, the city treasurer was directed to readjust all the sewer assessments, on the basis of the rate provided for by the new sewer ordinance, and to apply the amounts already paid to the new assessments; if there was a balance, to repay it with interest at 6 per cent., and $500 was appropriated for the payment of such interest.

CITY STABLE.

On motion of Alderman Thompson, the public property committee were authorized to purchase a lot of 17,000 feet from Chas. A. Miner on Auburndale avenue, next to the city lot, and also to erect a water stable, according to plans of W. F. Goodwin, architect, at an expense not to exceed $12,000, and the city treasurer was authorized to issue thirteen bonds of the city, of $1000 each, in payment for the same.

TELEPHONE POLES.

The Telephone Company were licensed to erect poles on Washington street from Bellevue to Crafts street, on Centre from Bellevue to Mill street, and from Gibbs to Cotton street, on Grafton street, and on Chapel and Chery streets.

COAL.

The committee on fuel and street lights were authorized to purchase 2000 tons of coal for the use of the city.

M. Moran was granted a wagon license.

TROUBLE WITH THE TROLLEY.

E. H. Tarbell sent in a communication stating that he was granted a permit to move a building from the corner of Chester and Lincoln streets to Erie avenue, and asking if the street railway company should not move their trolley wires, at their own expense. He stated that 1st, President Parker had told him it would cost him $50 for the removal of the trolley wires and it must be done between the hours of 1 and 5 a. m., when the current was turned off. 2nd, he had received a letter from Mr. Powers, attorney for the road, warning him to take no action till he had seen Mr. Powers. 3rd, May 22 he began to move the building and sent a registered letter to President Parker. 4th, on May 24th he telephoned to the company and was told that Mr. Parker had received no notification, and he sent a constable to serve a notice on him. 5th, on May 25th, an injunction was served on him, and he went to see Superintendent Henderson, who said that he must pay all the costs for removing the wires, which he did under protest, and now he wished to know why he should pay the bill sent by the company's lawyer. The matter was referred to the city solicitor.

A. J. Jones was granted a license for a pool room on Oak street, Alderman Plummer protesting, as there were too many pool rooms in the city now, and he thought licenses were granted altogether too readily.

CITY NOTES.

On motion of Alderman Emerson the city treasurer was authorized to expend $300 in procuring a plate for the printing of bonds, other than sewer and water bonds.

CONCORD STREET.

Alderman Plummer presented an order calling attention to the dangerous condition of the Concord street grade crossing on the Lower Falls branch, and stating that public safety required gates and a gatetender at that place. The railroad commissioners were requested to take action in the premises.

The ordinance relating to the fire department was passed to be enrolled.

Arthur Hudson was given leave to withdraw on his application for a 6th class liquor license at the corner of Centre and Washington streets, on the ground that two licenses should not be granted to one drugist.

The board then adjourned.

A soft, fair skin is the result of pure blood and a healthy liver, to secure which, Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the Superior Medicine. Ladies who rely upon cosmetics to beautify their complexions, should make a note of this, bearing in mind that they can't improve upon nature.

THE COTTAGE HOSPITAL.

THE WORK DONE AND PROGRESS MADE THE PAST SIX MONTHS.

The regular quarterly meeting of the Trustees of the Newton Cottage Hospital was held at the Hospital on Friday the 30th ult at 3.15 p. m.

tion. J. R. Leeson, the president, was in the chair and the attendance was good.

The Treasurer, Geo. S. Bullens, Esq., presented his report for the last three months, showing receipts from sundry sources of $7908.84 and disbursements of $5,955.55 for the same period.

Of these receipts $4000 was the amount received for the whole year from the city of Newton.

Dr. Eaton, secretary of the executive committee read the following report of the work and progress of the Hospital for the last six months.

On motion of Rev. Dr. Shinn it was voted that a copy of the report be given to the Newton papers for publication.

After some discussion it was voted that the executive committee be authorized to expend not over $3,000, in the erection of a suitable building and the installation of a complete heating apparatus which will supply the present buildings and be capable of extension for future needs.

THE SECRETARY'S REPORT.

Mr. President, Ladies and Gentlemen of the Board of Trustees:

Since the last meeting of this board, your executive committee has continued to transact the current business of this institution with a harmony suitable to the philanthropic nature of the work and a zeal nourished by principle and stimulated by success. That our work is rapidly growing, is known to all of you. It may not be amiss, as we reach the middle of the year, to present a few statistics of what has been done during the past six months.

In the month of January we admitted thirty-six patients; in February, 35; in March, 33; in April, 24; in May, 51; in June, 35, making a total of admission for the past six months of 214. This is two-thirds of the number admitted during the entire year of 1932, which was a much busier year than any which had preceded it. If we tabulate the number treated during each one of the past six months, the showing is still more impressive. During the month of January we treated 67; in February, 73; in March, 72; in April, 65; in May, 73; in June, 70.

No hospital can do its work without some losses by death, especially since hospital cases are often of the most desperate character. But our losses have been few. We lost by death in January, 3; in February, 1; in March, 2; in April, 2; in May, 3; in June, none; making a mortality of less than 1-2 per cent. of the whole number treated. During the period under review we have cared for some very sick people and we are proud of this low percentage of loss.

The new dining room, the construction of which was authorized by the Board of Trustees at its last quarterly meeting has been completed at a cost of $875. It is an airy, commodious room, capable of seating comfortably forty or more people and is an improvement which must commend itself to all. The old dining room is useful as a waiting room for the friends of patients and thus serves in a useful and much needed function.

The walls and ceilings of the wards have been tinted and the floors renovated giving the rooms and corridors a cheerful aspect and at the same time improving the hygienic conditions.

The home for nurses is now building on the commanding site selected for it. The noble gift emphasizes and will make permanent a most valuable department of our work, and the growth of its walls is watched by all with the keenest interest and joy.

That we cannot long defer an enlargement of our facilities for receiving the sick, is increasingly evident.

Both the male ward and the Leeson ward for women have been several times crowded to their utmost capacity, beds have been improvised to meet the demand; and more than once, during this month, we have had to refuse admission to an applicant because there was no place in which to put him. Granted the need of an enlargement, it is plain that the enlargement should take shape as a surgical ward, for two reasons: First, the treatment of medical and surgical cases in the same room is not unattended with danger; and, secondly, the proportion of surgical cases entrusted to our care is increasing. No one can walk through the wards during this month, without being impressed with a vision of bandages and splints doing their beneficent work on all sides. We hail with profound gratification the announcement that a liberal friend has signified his intention of building here a surgical ward, and the executive committee has already appointed a committee including several of the most active surgeons on the hospital staff, to consider the equipment of the ward to the end that when the generous thought of the donor shall have taken shape, it may be equipped with all the safeguards which modern surgery demands.

Our excellent head nurse, Miss McDaniel, who has been with us since the beginning of the year, has recently resigned her position and gone to her home in Montreal. Coming from the same school as our matron and superintendent of nurses, she had been with us the same lines and proved highly efficient. We gave her up with sincere regret. The position of head nurse is for the present acceptably filled by Miss Ryan of our own graduating class.

We desire to congratulate the board on the high state of efficiency which has been attained in the service of this hospital in all its departments. Miss McDowell's administration speaks for itself and leaves little to be desired. She has brought to us much that is valuable, and maintained an admirable discipline. Her eminent fitness for the work is never more apparent, perhaps, than when the victim of an accident is received and cared for. In such a trying emergency, to see the manner in which she arranges her forces, gives each her position, and accomplishes the necessary manipulations without jar, confusion or delay, is to be regarded of that famous passage in Homer where the shipwrecked Ulysses gazed with wonder at the Phaeacian princess as she marshaled her maidens to her work.

The graduating exercises which were held here last week were authorized by the executive committee, and hence some reference them belongs to this report. They are doubtless the beginning of an annual series which will henceforth be an interesting agency in keeping us in touch with the community which we serve, and to which we look for moral and material support. This first public graduation of a class of nurses was an occasion of the deepest interest to all friends of the school and a grand success in every particular. The eloquent gentlemen whose voices were then heard struck the key note so high that we can be satisfied with nothing but the best on similar occasions in the future. The main interest, however, centered about the class of eight nurses whom we are proud to send out as exponents of the instruction, theoretical as well as practical, which is given in this school. This board will, we hope, approve our action in decorating them with a golden cross as a sign of their high vocation and a seal of the approval of their instructors here.

A New Yorker's Houseboat.

William Skinner & Son has launched a houseboat which was built for a New Yorker. It is a unique vessel, upon which a person can live comfortably in summer or winter. The vessel will go to New York bay and the Hudson river. It was named the Half Moon, after the vessel in which Hendrik Hudson explored the river which bears his name. The owner's wife, who was to christen the craft, refused to do so, believing that to insure good luck an unmarried lady should officiate, so Miss Fannie Thompson, a young Baltimore girl, did it.

The Half Moon is 84 feet long, 18 feet abeam and 9 feet deep from roof to floor. She will draw but 24 feet of water. She is built up bluff from the water line to the top, enclosing 11 apartments, representing all the rooms needed in a home. She has an engine room in the extreme after end. Below are cabins, staterooms, lockers, toilets, crew apartments and engine room. Ten windows of heavy French glass will light each side, and the ventilation will be perfect. Mr. Skinner will fit the vessel for sailing purposes only, for which she will have two masts and a bowsprit, spreading but three sails. The whole frame is cedar, with selected Georgia pine for planking. The interior is being finished in cypress, relieved with mahogany. In a few weeks the Half Moon will be ready for delivery.—Baltimore Sun.

Death From a Toothache Cure.

Simon Kintzer, a leading citizen of Hummelstown, had been suffering for two days with toothache. On Monday evening a stranger called at his house and said he was a traveling toothache doctor and had a magic cure which would relieve the worst case in a short time. He induced Kintzer to let him try the cure on him. He applied some strong liquid to the aching gum, and in a short time the pain became easier and finally ceased. Kintzer gladly paid the stranger his fee of $1, and the man went away.

An hour later Kintzer's tooth began to pain again, and soon he was in greater agony than ever. His jaw became swollen and badly inflamed, and the pain extended to his head and neck. Early yesterday morning a physician was sent for, Kintzer having become insane from pain. The doctor pronounced him suffering from blood poisoning induced by the stuff the stranger had used on his gums. An hour later Kintzer died. No one knows who was the traveling dentist, and no trace of him has been found. Kintzer was 67 years old.—Cor. Pittsburgh Dispatch.

Miners Leaving the Comstock.

Owing to the recent frequent drafts in the mines, Comstock miners are daily leaving for new camps, and lately many with their families have taken their departure from the lode. The majority of the single men who turn their backs upon this locality have no special point in view, but bend their way to Butte, Mon., Park City, U. T.; Vanderbilt, Kootenai and other parts, not decided where they will locate. Every departing train carries away some miner whose home has been on the Comstock for a number of years. The mining population of Virginia is gradually dwindling, and it is doubtful whether the major portion of those departing will ever return.—Virginia (Nev.) Chronicle.

A Wall Street Broker and His Millions.

If multimillionaire Russell Sage when the excitement of the dynamite episode was over had drawn a check in favor of Laidlaw, who passed through the awful experience with him, the expensive litigation into which he has been plunged might have been averted and the imputation lifted from his reputation of having endeavored to save his life by the sacrifice of another's. Mr. Sage must have known that Laidlaw was permanently injured and that he was a poor man. We are glad to believe that the impulse to lighten the seriousness of such an experience for one's less fortunate associate would at least occur to most men.—New York Advertiser.

The Best Ten American Books.

The vote of The Critic's readers on the ten books which they regard as "the greatest yet produced in America or by Americans" has resulted in the following choice:

Emerson's Essays, Hawthorne's "Scarlet Letter," Longfellow's Poems, Mrs. Stowe's "Uncle Tom's Cabin," Dr. Holmes' "Autocrat," Irving's "Sketch Book," Lowell's Poems, Whittier's Poems, Wallace's "Ben-Hur," Motley's "Rise of the Dutch Republic."

Willed Himself a $10 Funeral.

The will of the late William John Macdonald of this city, who died on the 4th of March, leaving an estate valued at $14,151.04, was filed for probate yesterday. A strange clause in the will is that regarding the funeral of the deceased, which he requires shall not cost more than $10, and he gives the most minute directions as to how the funeral can be conducted on this economical scale.—Toronto Mail.

Following Harvard.

Harvard sets the fashion every year for the walk of the Boston gilded youth. It changes constantly in some slight degree, enough to stamp it to the knowing ones. This season the young swells stick their heads forward and jerk along, with one hand in the pocket in faithful imitation of their Cambridge leaders.—Boston Letter.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me." H. A. ARCHER, M. D., 111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"The use of 'Castoria' is so universal and its merits so well known that it seems a work of supererogation to endorse it. Few are the intelligent families who do not keep Castoria within easy reach." CARLOS MARTIN, D. D., New York City, Late Pastor Bloomingdale Reformed Church.

Castoria cures Colic, Constipation, Sour Stomach, Diarrhea, Eructation, Kills Worms, gives sleep, and promotes digestion. Without injurious medication.

"For several years I have recommended your 'Castoria,' and shall always continue to do so as it has invariably produced beneficial results." EDWIN F. PARKER, M. D., "The Winthrop," 135th Street and 7th Ave., New York City.

A FEW Testimonials from persons who have been cured by the use of Hill's Tablets.

THE OHIO CHEMICAL CO.:—DEAR SIR:—I have been using your cure for tobacco habit, and found it would do what you claim for it. I used ten cents worth of the strongest chewing tobacco a day, and from one to five cigars; or I would smoke from ten to forty pipes of tobacco. Have chewed and smoked for twenty-five years, and two packages of your Tablets cured me so I have no desire for it. B. M. JAYLORD, Leslie, Mich.

DOUBT FERRY, N. Y.

DEAR SIR:—I have been using your cure for tobacco habit, and found it would do what you claim for it. I used ten cents worth of the strongest chewing tobacco a day, and from one to five cigars; or I would smoke from ten to forty pipes of tobacco. Have chewed and smoked for twenty-five years, and two packages of your Tablets cured me so I have no desire for it. B. M. JAYLORD, Leslie, Mich.

THE OHIO CHEMICAL CO.:—GENTLEMEN:—Some time ago I sent you for $1.00 worth of your Tablets for Tobacco Cure. I received them all right and, although I was both a heavy smoker and chewer, they did the work in less than three days. I am cured. Truly yours, MATTHEW JOHNSON, P. O. Box 45, PITTSBURGH, PA.

THE OHIO CHEMICAL CO.:—GENTLEMEN:—It gives me pleasure to speak a word of praise for your Tablets. My son was strongly addicted to the use of liquor, and through a friend, I was led to try your Tablets. He was a heavy and constant drinker, but after using your Tablets but three days he quit drinking, and will not touch liquor of any kind. I have waited four months before writing you, in order to know the cure was permanent. Yours truly, MRS. HELEN MORRISON, CINCINNATI, OHIO.

THE OHIO CHEMICAL CO.:—GENTLEMEN:—Your Tablets have performed a miracle in my case. I have used morphine, hypodermically, for seven years, and have been cured by the use of two packages of your Tablets, and without any effort on my part. Address all Orders to THE OHIO CHEMICAL CO., 51, 53 and 55 Opera Block, LIMA, OHIO.

The Old, Sad Story.

One afternoon last week there was a private funeral service in a fine mansion situated on an uptown street in Portland, Me. The funeral procession consisted of a single landau and a hearse. Passersby looked at the pathetic little cortege as it came out of the gravelled driveway from the rear door of the stately dwelling and lightly remarked, "One of the help is dead."

None of the papers in their mortuary column furnished a clue to the identity of the dead. Only the heartbroken father, the mother and sisters knew the old, sad story which for ages bards have sung. It was indeed an awful lesson. Decades ago the trite saying was penned, "There are sermons in stones, and good in everything," and that truism is as potent today as it was then.

None knew and few guessed that the poor, frail frame that was on its last long journey was once the body of a young woman who, seven years ago, had fashionable Portland at her feet, was courted and petted by all and was allowed every pleasure that mind could invent or money procure except freedom.

She longed for New York. The nightingale was caged, and she longed for freedom. She burst the tiny, woven golden chains of love and became as the moth to the candle.

Three years on Fifth avenue, then to Broadway, then in the human maelstrom toward the Battery, then that haven of rest—home.

Last of all, Calvary.—Exchange.

How a Snake Fight Ended.

A remarkable occurrence took place lately in the zoological gardens at Breslau. In the cage of the large snakes a South American boa constrictor contended for a rabbit with a large python from west Africa. It did not succeed, however, the python being the stronger of the two, and it withdrew. About two hours later the keeper found the same snakes fighting for another rabbit.

As the keeper supposed that the boa, which was the weaker of the two, would again give up its prey, he left them to themselves and went home. The next morning he was horror-stricken to find that the unfortunate boa had not let go its hold and had been swallowed by the python as a pendant to the rabbit. The boa was nearly 7 feet long and correspondingly thick. The python had already swallowed one rabbit before the one which proved fatal to the boa. Its circumference throughout its length was from 23 to 25 inches, and its skin was expanded to double its usual size. The supposition that the snake might perhaps not be able to digest the boa proved false. Digestion proceeded only somewhat more slowly than usual.—Pall Mall Budget.

A Graceful Act of a Noble Man.

An interesting incident in San Francisco the other day was the gift of $20 by William T. Coleman, the head of the famous vigilance committee, toward making comfortable the last days of Ned McGowan. The latter was the leader of the lawless element of 1856 whose conduct brought about the murder of James King of William, brother of the Buffalo police justice, and the execution of the murderer Casey by the vigilantes.

McGowan was himself condemned to death by the committee, but escaped, first to southern California and then to Europe. He afterward returned, stood trial for his offenses and upon securing an acquittal assailed Coleman savagely in a newspaper which he started and in a history of his own career. About three years ago he went once more to California to sue the historian, H. H. Bancroft, for libel in his history of the state, but came to grief, and is dying of destitution at the age of 86. He was once a political boss, the head of a great gambling establishment and worth half a million.—Buffalo Courier.

Works Both Ways.

The district court has rendered a decision in regard to the Jim Crow car law requiring the railroads to provide separate cars for whites and negroes that will seriously interfere with justice.

The decision declares that the law makes no exception of deputy sheriffs or officers accompanying prisoners, and that a white officer having a colored prisoner in charge cannot accompany him in the same car. The case arose over the sheriff of Lafayette parish who was taking a negro to an asylum for the insane, and who was forced from the car. By the decision no negro prisoner or lunatic can be conveyed by car to jail, prison or asylum by a white officer. The law will in this respect work a great inconvenience.—New Orleans Cor. Philadelphia Press.

Edwin Booth's Successor.

Now that Mr. Booth has passed into history, the American stage is cleared of its conspicuous men. It can hardly be said of any living American actor that he is the leader of his profession in this country. Among the younger actors Mr. Mansfield has won a strong place, but it would be straining language to call him the successor of the great player whose name is on all lips today. The simple fact is that the heir to Booth's place on the stage has not yet made himself known to the public.—New York Herald.

An Honest Judge Tells a Story.

An Aroostook judge who looked thoroughly honest and ingenious has been telling this story to some of the Portland lawyers, and they believe him. The judge says that one farmer in his county raised last season 800 bushels of oats upon 10 acres of land. He sold the oats at his door for 50 cents a bushel and tucked nearly $400 in the bank. He valued the land at $150.—Lewiston Journal.

A Strange Cargo.

The Hilda has just arrived in the Mersey from Montserrat, West Indies, after a protracted voyage. Her cargo consists almost entirely of lime juice, of which she brings no less than 50,000 gallons, being the first arrival of the new season's juice.—London Tit-Bits.

About Fast Bicycle Riding.

The alarming increase of accidents to bicycle riders this season has been a subject of considerable comment. Last year and the year before there were accidents to riders and to those with whom they happened to collide while riding at a rapid pace through the streets, but this season one can hardly glance over the columns of a newspaper without reading accounts of several of these mishaps. It almost seems that the wheelmen had entered in a compact to injure themselves and others as often as an opportunity presented itself. The reasons for the increase in the bicycle accident list are in the first place that there are more wheels than ever before, and in the second that the alleged improvements in construction tend to accidents. The new style wheels, with their pneumatic tires, are without brakes, so that the rider cannot stop as readily as formerly when he sees that he is approaching danger.

The construction of the tire is such that were it supplied with a brake the sudden and determined use of that article would burst the tire, allowing the air to escape. The new style wheels run over the pavements so much more easily than the old style ones that when a vigorous young man gets astride of one of them he is seized with a desire to go like a racehorse, and he does. The combination of swift riding and no brakes is responsible for probably 50 per cent of the accidents to the wheelmen and the mortals who happen to get in their way. It might not be a bad idea to regulate their speed by law, especially through the crowded parts of the streets.—Boston Transcript.

Johnnie's Body Had Run Away.

While fishing on the bank of Stony creek, Johnnie Johnson, a lad of 12 years, tumbled into the water and sank beneath the surface. Other boys saw him disappear, and they scrambled away for aid. Johnnie struggled until he reached dry land and then took to his heels.

Half an hour later he stood on the main street bridge watching a crowd of men ransacking the waters of the creek with grappling hooks. He became interested in the strange occupation of the men, never dreaming they were looking for his own body. His clothes were wet, and it was nice and sunny on the bridge. He remained there an hour until thoroughly dry, and then descended to the creek bank, where the anxious crowd was watching the dragging of the stream.

"What you doing?" inquired Johnnie of one who had just come out of the water. "Lookin' fer Johnnie Johnson's corpse," replied the man. "He tumbled in there two hours ago."

"Why, I'm Johnnie Johnson," said the astonished lad. Then he explained to the disgruntled crowd of people who had been eager to see a limp body pulled from the creek.—Norristown Cor. Philadelphia Record.

Another Ambassador.

Germany has promptly followed the example of England and France by appointing to the United States an ambassador instead of a minister.

It may be taken for granted that President Cleveland will acknowledge the courtesy and return the compliment by advancing Minister Runyon to the rank of ambassador.

Now that the reform has set in it will doubtless move on until the leading powers of the world are represented by ambassadors at Washington and the United States by diplomats of that grade at foreign courts. This will be a decided gain for the United States. Ex-Ministers Reid and Lincoln have forcibly pointed out the disadvantages under which our representatives abroad have labored, but also in matters of state business, by reason of the fact that foreign ambassadors have taken precedence of American ministers.—New York Herald.

Billions and Billions of Violets.

The Hempstead plains on Long Island are worth traveling a day's journey to see on account of the violets that are blooming there. The great grassy level is dotted and splashed with masses of these delicate flowers, whose purple masses, sometimes covering many square yards in extent, illuminate every view from the windows of the railroad trains as they ply to and fro between Jamaica and the near neighborhood of Babylon. These violets are wild and almost odorless. They do not pay for the plucking, as they wither speedily, but they have uncommonly large blossoms and are so abundant that they could furnish a bon-tonniere or a nosegay for every man, woman and child in New York and still remain abundant.—New York Sun.

Fine Flavors In Trade.

Commerce may be a cold blooded occupation, as devoid of sentiment as a fish, but sometimes things happen that have a wonderfully appropriate flavor even in trade. We note in this connection the arrival of three steamships in Montreal in a single day, the first loaded with grain, the second with lemons and the third with sugar. Montreal has no kick coming, and if she can keep this sort of thing up we don't see why the United States should object to being annexed to the Dominion.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

To Dregge the Yukon For Gold.

The hull of the steamer Rustler of Juneau, Alaska, has been transferred from Lake Washington to the harbor and is ready for the machinery now being built. The steamer is 66 feet long, with a 16-foot beam, and specially constructed with a view to work on the Yukon river. Many stories have been told about the fabulous wealth concealed in the bottom of Alaska's most celebrated river, and it is with a view to dredging that she has been built.—Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

A Monster Shad.

What is believed to be the largest shad ever taken in the waters near the head of Delaware bay was caught opposite Delaware City a few days ago. It measured 27 inches in length, 4 inches in thickness and 19 inches at its greatest circumference. Its weight was 10 pounds.

A Singular Reunion.

A romantic story in which a young lady who has been living near Blacklick, Indiana county, is a prominent character comes from Curwensville, Clearfield county. In the spring of 1870 Isaiah McDonald of Grampion Hills, Clearfield county, married a young lady from Michigan. After a few short months of wedded life the young man got into trouble. A separation followed, and the young wife returned to her western home.

A short time afterward a daughter was born. The mother's death followed swiftly on this event, and the child was taken in charge by its grandparents. It was years before the father knew he had a daughter. After discovering it he spent a great deal of money in a fruitless endeavor to locate her.

About the beginning of last March the daughter, now a young lady of 22 years, learned of her father's residence. She wrote to him, giving her address as Blacklick, Indiana county. The father was overwhelmed with joy and wrote, giving undeniable proofs of his relationship.

Arrangements were made for a meeting. Father and daughter met at Curwensville, and an affecting scene followed. They are now living together at Grampion. The girl is described as fine looking. She has been reared tenderly and possesses a good education.—Indiana Gazette.

Commencement Days.

Commencement days are with us once again. Along the streets go closed carriages, through the drawn curtains of which one catches glimpses of smiling young faces, daintily diaphanous gowns and a veritable forest of blooming flowers. In all the colleges and seminaries parents and friends are gathering to witness the graduation exercises of those in whom they are interested, and to the fair participant the day is one that marks a new era in their lives.

As we look upon such sights, how vividly our own commencement day comes back and with it all the hope and promise of the future that was budding in our breast that day! School days over, our greatest troubles left behind between the closed covers of "Virgil" and "Sallust," we looked forward to days of no more study as to a dream of bliss about to be realized.

Dear graduates, you will find, as we have done, that there are lessons to be learned after the college doors have banged to behind your retreating form, and the great halls cease to echo to your wonted footsteps. They will be hard or easy, as you yourselves make them. It lies with you to make your life worthy and noble or aimless and colorless.—Philadelphia Times.

Newspaper Men and the Fair.

The following letter and comment is from the Chicago News-Record:

I am pleased to see your manly defense of the country editor in his relation to the World's fair. Your remarks apply with equal force to editors in general, outside the larger cities. I have published matter pertaining to the fair which could have been billed at $1,000 were the fair a private instead of a public enterprise. The 4-column article in this week's paper defending the manager against charges of incompetency would cost any other institution $50, not including what I paid the writer for preparing the article. In the light of such services I agree with you in the assertion that it would be short sighted for the management to curtail the privileges of a class that has labored so zealously for the success of the great fair. Yours truly, E. A. SOWE.

We did not use the mild epithet suggested by our Michigan friend. "Short sighted" is altogether too conservative a term to apply to the policy hinted at. To curtail to any extent the privileges of the country editor would in our opinion be the apotheosis of meanness, treachery and ingratitude.

Parsimonious Royalty.

The royal family of England is said to be the most money loving of the princely blood of Europe. The queen has accumulated a vast fortune from her savings, and she pays her servants less than they can get in any first class hotel. Her daughter, the Princess Louise, inherits this parsimonious spirit, and just now the radical press of London is making an outcry because the princess competed with other sculptors for a statue to the queen and got the contract through royal influence. The princess charged full price for the work—$2,500—and exacted $500 in advance. The poorer sculptors had to stand aside. The Prince of Wales, however, does not inherit the thrifty instinct. He wears 1,000 pairs of gloves a year and buys them all from Denmark instead of encouraging the home industry.—San Francisco Argonaut.

Quakers Who Could and Did Fight.

A hay harvest in the heart of the city is the unusual sight that presented itself to people passing the old "Fighting Quakers" burying ground on Fifth street south of Locust last week. The Society of Free Friends, as they call themselves, is now extinct, as the general society has broadened to meet their views, and no burials have been made in the ground for years. During the civil war many Union soldiers who died in the hospitals of this city were given a resting place alongside the "Fighting Quakers" of the Revolution.—Philadelphia Record.

A Birmingham Oracle.

A Birmingham (England) oracle assures us that it has followed almost without exception in the past 30 years that a cold spring has been followed by a cold wet summer, as in 1861, 1877 and 1879, and that a hot spring has been followed by a hot dry summer, as in 1865, 1868, 1870 and 1872. From this he deduces the probability that this summer will be one of the hottest and driest and thirteenth on record.

A Dress Suit at a Swell Breakfast.

At the mayor's reception to the infant there was only one break, and strangely enough it was made by President Higginbotham of the World's Columbian exposition. Mr. Higginbotham came ready for breakfast clad in evening dress, and at sight of him Mr. Hobart Chatfield-Taylor almost collapsed.—Chicago Dispatch.

An Underground Trolley System.

An underground trolley system, the invention of Malone Wheelers of Tennessee, is being tested on a three-quarter mile section in Washington. Briefly described, the road is laid with 40-pound T rails, yokes of 180 pounds each and 40-pound slot rails. The conduit, midway between the rails, is 16 inches deep by 17 inches wide, and inside is a loose wire on insulated brackets. This wire is cut in 200 foot lengths and carries a current only when the car is moving over one particular section. The copper feeding cable is laid parallel to the trolley wire. Without going into details, the car is fitted with two ordinary 20-horsepower motors, and a pair of trolley wheels passing through the slot connects the motors with the trolley cable.

In each 200-foot section is an iron switch box containing an electro magnet, and as the cars enter a section a storage battery of several cells on the car vitalizes the magnet and lifts an iron armature and connects the trolley and the feed cables, and thus supplies power to the motors, while the main line current cuts out the local battery. On reaching the next section the current is again automatically switched on and is also cut off from the rear section. When the car stops, the current is instantly released from the trolley wire, and the same is the case when going down hill. The car can travel in either direction by turning a reversing switch. The cost for a single track is said to be $30,000 per mile.—Engineering News.

Training For the Sickroom.

The Massachusetts Emergency and Hygienic association has just prepared a class of young women for a new occupation—that of trained attendants for convalescents, chronic invalids, elderly persons and little children. It often happens that members of a family are either unfitted, unwilling or unable through business engagements to care for their own sick or feeble. The trained nurse is too expensive a luxury to be kept through weeks, perhaps months, of weary convalescence, and the patient, who perhaps was doing well at her departure, begins to suffer for proper care. The trained attendant, who has been instructed by competent trained nurses, is then prepared to take her place.

She has been taught how to ventilate the rooms, make beds, bathe the patient, serve and prepare attractive food and do the many other things necessary to make life as pleasant as possible for the sick. The young women admitted to the Boston classes must be at least 20 years of age and be possessed of good antecedents. The course of 30 lessons, for which $5 is paid, is followed by an examination, which if creditably passed entitles the pupil to a diploma.—New York Post.

A Terrible Solecism In Dress.

A correspondent with a humorous turn writes to a New York newspaper as follows: "With the spring fever and the jubilant mosquito there has come among us a bacillus more insidious than the dreadful cholera germ—a disease whose rapid spread among our better classes is terrible to contemplate. Men who do not look quite lost to better things may now be seen parading in high hat, frock coat and tan shoes, and compared with this new deadly sin against proper attire the execrable combination of high hat and sack coat is as nothing. There is no saying whether this new sartorial idiosyncrasy may not lead us if we do not check it. What say your readers to the passage of a city ordinance making it a misdemeanor for any one to wear tan shoes after noon, or at any time in combination with a frock coat and top hat? Would 30 days be too light a penalty? We must "Strike 'gainst this innovation dire,

Strike for the cause of right attire,

Stealing at the World's Fair.

"I was told by a member of the national commission while in Chicago the other day," said a western congressman in telling of the great fair, "that claims aggregating almost $700,000 have been filed with that body by exhibitors for property stolen. This is enormous. During the Paris exposition the entire amount of claims was only $175,000—one-fourth of the amount of those at Chicago, and the fair has been open only one month. There is undoubtedly an organized gang. Why, they carried away from the French exhibit a bronze clock that weighed 350 pounds that had required four men to unload it. How they got it out of the grounds is a mystery, unless there was collusion on the part of some guard."—Washington Post.

Eulalie Has Heard of Carter's Hat.

Next to the arrival of the infant the event most talked about was the silk hat worn by Mayor Harrison on the occasion.

"What did you do with your old slouch hat?" he was asked.

"Do you think I'd throw it away? No, sir. I intend to be buried in that hat."

"Will you wear it while her highness is in the city?"

"Yes, fact is, I told her I had another hat."

"Is it so? What reply did she make to that?"

"Said she had heard of it and wondered how I would look under it."—Chicago Tribune.

A Curious Will.

A curious will is to be placed on record in Louisville. It was written by a young lady who in the last agonies of death scrawled her parting injunctions to her friends in this world on the pillow with a dull pencil. This pillowcase is to be regularly recorded and filed.—Exchange.

Nine girls attending the Monmouth (Or.) public school recently played a game of baseball against the young men residents of that town. The girls were victorious by one run.

Duke Karl Theodore of the royal house of Bavaria has just performed his two thousandth successful operation for catarrh.

The Hickory Wheel Company.

Many rumors have been circulated during the last few months concerning the proposed removal of the Hickory Wheel Co., but only last week was it definitely decided to change the location.

Since the reorganization of the company under new management last winter, the growth has been large and rapid, and the present plant on Maple street is entirely inadequate to supply the demand for the product of the company, and the directors found it necessary to secure a plant which will accommodate the growing business. Negotiations were promptly entered into with the United States Rubber Shoe Co. for the purchase of the extensive plant, located in South Framingham, and formerly operated by the Para Rubber Shoe Co., and the transactions have just been closed, whereby the Hickory Wheel Co. are to occupy the premises of the former plant. The plant and location are both admirably adapted to the manufacture of bicycles. The floor area is over five acres and the entire property comprises 18.12 acres. With the property, is included the Everett House and several dwelling houses, which will be rented to the workmen at reasonable rates, and under these conditions, they will receive many benefits they otherwise would be unable to secure. Work will be commenced at once preparing the buildings to receive the present and new machinery, and the work of moving will be commenced early in July, so that the bicycle works will be running full blast, turning out Hickory bicycles and pneumatic tired sulky wheels, the patents for which this company own.

By the change Newton loses an old industry and South Framingham will soon have one of the largest and best equipped bicycle factories in the country.

The officers of the company, under whose management it has in a short time grown from one of the smallest to one of the largest bicycle concerns, are:

Arthur W. Pope, brother of Colonel Albert A. Pope of the Pope Mfg. Co., president; Charles E. Walker, for many years connected with the Pope Mfg. Co. in Boston, treasurer; Sterling Elliott, the originator of the Hickory bicycle, secretary; Almon Emrie, formerly connected with the Pope Mfg. Co. at Hartford Conn., Superintendent.

Tremont Theatre.

The summer season at the Tremont has opened auspiciously and the beautiful house has been well filled at every performance of Caubulka's charming opera "Amorita." Pauline Hall's impersonation of the romantic young sculptor Angelo is on a par with her successful assumption of George Trevelyan in "Puritania" at the Tremont last season. Manager McLellan has staged "Amorita" magnificently, costumes and scenic arrangements being elaborate and artistic. The chorus and orchestra are excellent, and the principle people of Miss Hall's company are artists of repute in their different lines of stage work.

Messrs. Abbey, Schoeffel and Grau and Manager McLellan not only have introduced a new opera to Boston, but they have gone further and added special features to the already brilliant summer musical program. Mile. Sczo, a celebrated danseuse appears in beautiful solos, and on Monday last the wonderful Prussian Hercules, Eugene Sandow, began a brief engagement, both artists appearing at each entertainment. Young Sandow is a marvel of physical development.

Sandow's performances have elicited the highest encomiums from medical experts and scientists in Europe and America. Dr. D. A. Sargent, the medical examiner at Harvard, said: "Altogether Sandow is the most wonderful specimen of man I have ever seen."

Mr. Sandow will appear next week, immediately following the performance of "Amorita." He will give his exhibitions at 10.15 in the evening, and at 4.15 Saturday afternoon. The performances will terminate at 10.45 and 4.45 o'clock. Next week the ever popular dancers, the Day sisters, will begin an engagement, appearing in the second act of "Amorita." They will introduce some new and taking specialties. "Puritania" is in preparation, and will follow the run of "Amorita."

Why Should I

not have confidence in that which has done me a world of good? If you had suffered years with liver complaint and got cured by using Sulphur Bitters, would not you too have confidence in them? J. R. Nash, Hotel Winthrop, Boston.

It is an old-time theory that new wood is entitled to three coats of paint, but many new houses have but two coats of Chilton Paint, and are then allowed to stand two or three years before they are painted again and then only one coat. Can you not profit by this suggestion? In painting your house this year get estimates on one, two and three coats. If the house is in fair condition and there is not too much difference between the shade you are to put on and the one on the house, probably one coat will suffice. If not one, two coats will surely answer. What is the use then of putting on three? We have had painters tell us that they had painted houses with Chilton Paint where the house looked better after two coats than three—upon being asked why then they put on three they answered that they were obliged to as the contract called for three. Word your contracts so you can stop when you have done a fair amount of work. Chilton Paint over a dry surface only. (Chilton Paint Co., New York and Boston.)

Their cases were continued until Saturday and they were held in the sum of $100 each for their appearance at that time.

—For the past six months Mr. Granville B. Putnam and Mr. J. Eliot Trowbridge have been associated together in the composition of a new musical work, "The Oratorio of 'Paul the Apostle,'" scenes at Philippi, Ephesus and Rome. It is now completed, and is to be published during the summer, so as to be ready for use early in September. The work is full of dramatic interest, and in the opinion of those who have seen the manuscript, and were present at an informal rehearsal held at the house of the composer in May, destined to become very popular soon as introduced. It is written for soli, quartet, and chorus with orchestral accompaniment. It is the intention of the authors to have the first performance of the oratorio during the coming musical season, probably in December, in the City Hall, by chorus, orchestra and well known Boston soloists. During the past two years these authors have written a number of anthems and hymns for Christmas, Easter, Decoration Day, etc., which have had large sale, one of the most popular being the National Hymn, "Best of God, the God of Nations," which was extensively used in the country last fall, in the Columbian School Exhibition Exercises. At the National service held by the Tremont Temple Society in Boston Music Hall last Sunday evening, this hymn was sung by the Temple Choral Union and Orchestra, in connection with Eichberg's "To These O Country," etc.

ORDINANCE RELATING TO THE BOARD OF HEALTH.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the City of Newton, as follows:

SECTION 1. A Board of Health is hereby established, composed of five members, appointed by the Mayor and Aldermen, residents of the City of Newton, but not members of the City Council, and one, at least, a regular practicing physician.

SECT. 2. Said Board shall have and exercise all the powers and duties which a Board of Health has by law.

SECT. 3. The Board shall annually, in the month of September, submit to the Committee upon Finance and Salaries an estimate in detail of the appropriations required by the Department for the next financial year; and shall, annually, on or before the fifteenth day of February, report to the City Council an accurate account in detail of all receipts and disbursements during the past financial year.

SECT. 4. The Board shall, subject to the authority of the Mayor, to execute, make all contracts and regulations for the cleaning of private cesspools, vaults and privies, and all contracts for such work shall contain the condition that such work shall be performed to the satisfaction of the Board of Health.

SECT. 5. Whenever the Board of Health does, or causes to be done, work for any person, it shall enter in books kept for that purpose, all such work done with the price thereof, and shall forthwith make out bills for the same, and deliver them to the Treasurer for collection, who shall at once demand payment of the same; and the Board shall, on the first day of every month, report in writing to the Auditor, a list of the bills so delivered, and in case any such bills of due remittance unpaid at the expiration of thirty days after demand for payment, as aforesaid, the Treasurer shall collect the same according to law.

SECT. 6. The ordinances relating to the Board of Health, passed to be obtained respectively, June 16, 1885, and December 28, 1887, be, and are hereby repealed, but such repeal shall in no wise affect any suit, prosecution or other proceeding pending at the passage of this ordinance, or any action, regulation or vote of the existing Board of Health until action thereon shall be taken by the Board of Health to be appointed as herein provided.

THE PROSE OF POETRY.

His poem had been writ
And brought him gold.
Filled full of lofty thought,
Of noble purpose and
Of brilliant wit.
Of sentiment and soul;
Of music, untrammelled,
It turned the mystic key
That fits the lock of wealth.
It was a picture
Wrought in words;
A star plucked from
The sky of mind;
A white rose from
The garden of the heart.
And yet it was not these
To him—
But in its splendid lines
He found a suit of clothes,
Its periods rounded out to him.
A plate of soup,
A roast of beef,
A piece of pie.
Its rhythms flowing feet
Wore shoes for him;
Its soul
Went to his stomach,
And its sentiment
Gave him a bed on which to sleep
And dream the poet's dream:
Its measure and its melody,
Its waking and its wretchedness.
—Will J. Lampton in New York Sun.

THE GOLDEN BEAN.

Not long ago it happened that I had two hours to wait for a train at Casa Grande station on the Southern Pacific railway. Stepping into a saloon near the track, I got into conversation with a shaggy looking native, who proved to be an old prospector somewhat the worse for wear. As he seemed communicative, and I was willing to listen to a yarn or two to kill time, I had the barkeeper place a black bottle and the requisite glasses on a card table near the stove, and with my new acquaintance as a vis-à-vis I listened to the following tale, which I have endeavored to write down as nearly in his own language as possible, merely omitting the numerous epigrams with which he interrupted his discourse:

"It was last fall that me and Bill Stump got acquainted up at Prescott. We'd both of us just quit work at the mines and had pretty near $100 apiece. We fooled around the saloons most of the evening, takin a drink now and then and buckin a little at the faro game, and finally we made it up to be pards on a prospectin trip to find some new diggin's. Next day we bought four burros, two to ride and two to pack, loaded up with grub and things, and lit out.

"Next evenin we was camped at sundown about 20 miles west in a dark little piney canyon and was gettin supper. Bill was monkeyin round the campfire with the coffee and bacon, and I was sittin with my back against a pine tree and a sack of beans 'tween my knees, pickin some of 'em over to put on for breakfast. There was pretty plenty gravel and stones in the beans, an' I was cussin considerable, when I found somethin queer among 'em. It was a gold nugget, just the shape as a bean, only about four times as big. 'Bill,' says I, 'if here ain't a $7 nugget in these beans, I'll be blanketed!' Bill he comes up and grabs it and gets to studyin over it. 'Joe,' says he after a bit, 'Joe, I know jest how that that nugget got thar.' Poor Bill was always great on explainin things. 'Well, fire away,' says I. 'It's this way,' says Bill. 'I've been among the greasers considerable, and I know their ways. Them beans was raised by greasers; that's why they're so full of gravel and dirt. You see the greasers thrash out the beans right in the field where they growed, and winner 'em by tossin 'em up in the air so the wind blows away the chaff. Then they shovels 'em into sacks right off the ground, takin up some gravel at the same time. Now that that nugget proves that the ground where them beans was growed is good placer ground, and all we've got to do is to find out who sold 'em first and then find where his ranch is. When we find that bean patch, we'll find good pay dirt, sure, 'cos where nuggets like this are lyn round loose there's bound to be good diggin's.'"

"Well, we was a good deal excited over it and lay awake most of the night talkin it over an makin plans. Next mornin we was packed up and started back for Prescott by daylight. Bill said we must not use them beans, but keep the sack just as it was so's the party that sold it would know it again. So we sewed it up and took note of a queer mark on one side of it. It was a cross inside of a circle as big as my hand. We thought that would help us find the fellow that sacked the beans, and sure enough it did.

"We hadn't bought the beans at a store, but from a freighter that was camped with his 4-horse team and two wagons in the corral where we got our burros, so when we got to Prescott we went straight back to the corral. There we got our first setback. The freighter—his name was Pike—had left the day before for the Verde copper mines to look for a load. It was 30 miles, and it's slow work travelin with donkeys, so we was the best part of two days gettin there, and found we was out o' luck again. Pike couldn't get any load there, so he had gone on down to Camp Verde, intendin to go over to Camp Apache, 250 miles further.

"Right there I wanted to give it up, but Bill wouldn't have it. 'Who cares for a few hundred miles, more or less,' says he, 'with all that gold piled up at the end of it. Why, next year we'll be ridin in our fine carriages in Frisco.' All the time I was with Bill I never could get the best of him in an argument, so I gave in. But if poor Bill could 'er knowed that a tough tramp of 1,000 miles was in front of us, with grim death waitin for him at the other end, he wouldn't 'er been so hot to go on.

"When we got down to Camp Verde, that pesky freighter was gone, of course, but we was gettin used to bein balked and didn't mind much. In pretty good spirits we started out on the long, lonely trip through the black pine forests of the Mogollon mountains. The next night we camped just under the 'rimrock,' and a mountain lion got away with our best burro. The poor donkey was hobbled and couldn't fight or protect himself, and we never knew it till next morning, when we found his body about half eaten up 200 yards from the campfire. This left us with only one saddle animal, and from that on we took turns riding. It was an awful tiresome road through those miles of timber, but we kept a-go-in every day and only camped at night. Turkey was as thick as chickens in a barnyard, and now and then we jumped a bear. Deer was plenty, too, but we didn't stop to hunt. We had only one idea, and that was to catch up with that freighter if we had to follow him to Texas.

"A week later, near the head of Black river, we was jumped by Apaches and lost another burro. How was it? Well, it was like this: The sun was about two hours high when the trail went down into a deep, sandy canyon winding around between big boulders of white granite that had rolled off the cliffs above. Some of 'em was more'n 15 feet high. I was afoot; Bill rode just ahead of me, and the two pack burros wuz peggin along in single file ahead of him. The canyon widened out by degrees into a broad, sandy wash, with mesquite trees and brush on the east side, while the trail hugged the west side close to the big boulders. All at once—spat! spat! spat! came three bullets, flattenin themselves on the boulders close to us. The three shots were fired at us from across the canyon, and we could see the smoke curlin up from a big bunch of brush over there. As I jumped forward to help Bill drive the donkeys under cover behind the rocks another volley came, and this time the saddle burro fell dead. Before they could fire again Bill had picked himself up, and we had our two pack animals safe behind the rocks.

"We found peep holes where we could look between the boulders and get a good view across the canyon without being seen. It was a beautiful place, and we could have stood off 20 Indians as easy as 3, for they could not get behind us, and our belts were full of cartridges. We knew we had the best of it, or anyway an even thing, for the bunch of brush where they were hid stood by itself, and they could not leave it without getting a shot from both of our Winchester. They would have to run about 30 feet further to the right or left to reach another bush, and behind them was a perpendicular cliff. Their cover was less than 100 yards from us, and their only chance to get away was to wait until dark; but we were also in the same fix.

"I tell you, stranger, we watched pretty close for those red devils to show themselves. We was mad about our dead donkey, and we was mad at bein stopped when we was in a hurry. Bill covered the right side of their bush with his gun, and I took the left. Our rifles was cocked and ready to speak, and just about that time no Injun had any business to get in front of them, for we was both good shots and didn't calculate to waste any cartridges. For near half an hour we watched, and then we saw somethin move on the sand at the right edge of the bush. It was the top of an Injun's head. He was lyin flat on the ground, behind cover, and shovin out his head to get a better view of our position. The next minute a head was shoved out the same way on the other side of the bush. 'Ready!' says Bill. 'Now!' and our rifles rang out together.

"The heads staid there, but we knew a rifle ball had crashed through each of them. The moment we shot the third red darted out on the north side and made a rush for a new cover only 10 yards away. He almost reached it—one more spring and he was safe—but Bill caught him on the fly. Crack! went his rifle, and Mr. Injun fell in a heap, never makin a kick.

"We waited awhile before we moved, to make sure they wasn't playin possum, but it was getting dark fast, so we slipped up careful from bush to bush. We had to make sure work of the killin, 'cos it wouldn't do to have one of 'em get away and bring the whole tribe down on us. Well, they was dead enough to suit anybody, the last one killed being hardly more than a boy. He was the son of a chief, as we knew by his wearin white eagle feathers in his hair. He had an improved army rifle, and so did the other two.

"Weren't it a pity, stranger, that three of Uncle Sam's pets, out for a little fun, should 'a' got done up that way? They didn't have nothin we wanted, so we left 'em to the buzzards an coyotes and started down the canyon drivin our burros ahead. We traveled all night, for fear some prowlin Injun should find the dead bodies in the mornin and take our trail.

"A week later we got to Fort Apache, fagged out some and pretty near barefoot. We didn't say nothin about the killin, for fear of bein arrested, but we rested up some on soldier whisky at the sutler's store and bought new shoes. We wasn't disappointed this time about our freighter. He was still on the move, just as we expected. He'd left for Wilcox, on the railroad, three days before. Well, we had come 300 miles, and there was nothin else to do but to keep a-go-in. It was only 150 miles further, and walkin was cheap.

"We tramped into Wilcox 10 days later, and there we found our man at last. We'd got so used to follerin him that I'll be blanked if we didn't feel sort a half disappointed when we had run him down. One of his wagons had broke, and he had to lay over to get it mended. Only for that the darned old road runner might 'a' been pikin along yet and we a-follerin him, just two days behind him. He remembered sellin us the beans. He said he had bought the sack at a little store kept by a Mexican in Theson just before he started for Prescott. We told him about findin the gold nugget and wanted him to join us huntin up the diggin's, as his teams might be useful startin up a new camp. He didn't care to go and said he didn't cotton much to gold diggin anyhow. I reckon he was too fond of travel to stay long in one place.

"Well, all we had to do was to light out for Tucson, another 150 miles, and we started along, feelin considerable cheered up. The donkeys was gettin poor, but we thought we were near the end of the trip, so we didn't worry. It took nearly two weeks to get to Tucson, but when we went to the little Mexican store the old man in charge remembered the bean sack very well and said he had sold it to Pike the freighter. He bought it and others from an old Mexican peddler who came over from Sonora and had gone to Phoenix. There was no help for it; we had to go there, too, fagged out as we were, and there we found our Mexican peddler, who told us he had bought the beans—several sacks of them—at a little roadside ranch down in Sonora, about 100 miles south of Tucson.

"Stranger, when we started back to Tucson the next mornin we wouldn't have sold our interest in that blasted bean ranch for $50,000 apiece. Yet, after all, poor Bill left his body there, and I got all broke up. Here's the way it happened: About three weeks afterward we was draggin along slow and tired one afternoon when we came to the shanty where the peddler told us he got the beans. We knew it right off 'y the description. There was the little runnin stream, and on the other bank there was the very bean patch and the house at one end of it. We unpacked by the water, and Bill was for takin the gold pan and tryin for color right off, but I got him to wait till mornin, as we had to get supper before dark.

"I started gettin some sticks to build a fire, and Bill went to the packs for the coffee pot and fry pan, and just then three greasers on horseback rode by us and up to the door of the house, where they got off their horses. After a little palaver with an old hag that came to the door one of them came over to us and said 'Buenos noches' very polite. A greaser would be polite if he was goin to cut your throat the next minute. As he passed our baggage he kind a-started and looked at it pretty sharp, and I saw he was takin note of the bean sack. It was standin there with the queer mark in plain view. By and by he pointed to the sack and asked where we got it and what was in it. I told him it was a sack of beans, and we bought it over the line in Arizona. Pretty soon he asked us to come up to the house and spend the evenin. We said we would after supper, and then he went off.

"Half an hour later, as we was squatin by the fire drinkin our coffee, all three of 'em come down and stood around. Swarthy faced, with mean lookin in moustaches and murderous eyes, they looked equal to any deviltry, and I was just thinkin what a precious lookin set of rascals they was when I quit thinkin altogether. I had to 'cos I was stretched out on the ground unconscious. What I saw happened quicker'n I can tell it. The two near ones whipped out their 6-shooters and had us covered, and the other one grabbed the bean sack. Bill, always quicker than me, jumped up, a-reachin behind him for his gun, but before he pulled it there was a report, and he fell forward on his face with a gurglin yell—a pistol ball in his throat. I made a jump to get up, but I felt a crushin blow on my head, and that's all I remember.

"When I come to myself, I was lyin on some blankets on the dirt floor of a doily shanty, with an old Mexican hag bendin over me. I beg her pardon for callin her a hag, for she saved my life, but when I woke up I thought sure she was satan. She told me I had been crazy a week, and I reckon I must a had brain fever. I told the old woman all my story and all about the beans, but she wouldn't talk about the murder of my friend till three weeks after, when I got strong and well, and told her I was going back to Arizona. She up and told me next mornin, and stranger, you'll agree that me and Bill was two of the unluckiest cusses livin. That very sack of beans we had been packin all over Arizona had nearly $5,000 worth of gold in it in dust and nuggets!

"The three greasers who attacked us were her nephews and were just what they looked to be—brigands—though she did not say so. They had murdered a couple of miners up in the mountains and robbed their camp of about 20 pounds of gold dust. Not wantin to use it till the affair blew over, they hid the dust in one of the sacks of beans. There were a dozen or more stacked up in the old woman's shed, and she had raised them herself, with her grandson, a 15-year-old kid, to help her. They marked the sack, but did not tell her about the gold in it, and while they were off on some more deviltry the old woman up and sells some of her sacks of beans to a peddler that happened to come by. When the robbers came back again, they missed the marked sack, but it was too late to get it, and they pretty near beat the old woman to death.

"They'd forgot all about it by the time we came by, but they knew their mark on the sack and saw it had not been open, and the only wonder is that they didn't shoot us both down without askin any questions.

"My donkeys were feedin around the ranch yet, and I had my blankets. That was all they left me. I gave the old woman one donkey and saddled up the other and lit out for Tucson. But first I made a little wooden cross and cut Bill's name on it, and put it on his grave where the old woman had made the robbers bury him close to the bean plot he had hunted so long."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Hissing at Concerts.

Americans are the most tolerant of all people toward bad actors and singers, and they never hiss a performance. If they don't like it, they leave it, but hissing is occasionally heard now at concerts and miscellaneous entertainments. It is not directed against the singers, but against the "encore fiend," who, with frantic uproar, tries to force every one of them to do his or her work two or three times over for his special benefit. As a rule the poorer the show the more emotional and persistent are the people who want everything repeated. In orchestral concerts it has become the rule to grant no encores, and the majority, which does not desire or is willing to forego them, reaches home at a reasonable hour.—New York Sun.

Only the Scars Remain.

"Among the many testimonials which I see in regard to certain medicines performing cures, cleansing the blood, etc.," writes HENRY HUDSON, of the James Smith Western Machinery Co., Philadelphia, Pa., "none impress me more than my own case. Twenty years ago, at the age of 18 years, I had swellings come on my legs, which broke and became running sores. Our family physician could do me no good, and it was feared that the bones would be affected. At last, my good old mother urged me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I took three bottles, the sores healed, and I have not been troubled since. Only the scars remain, and the memory of the past, to remind me of the good Ayer's Sarsaparilla has done me. I now weigh two hundred and twenty pounds, and am in the best of health. I have been on the road for the past twelve years, have noticed Ayer's Sarsaparilla advertised in all parts of the United States, and always take pleasure in telling what good it did for me."

Literary Notes.

Another novel by Mrs. J. H. Needell, author of Stephen Ellicott's Daughter, is to be published immediately in Appleton's choice Town and Country Library. The title is Lucia, Hugh, and Another.

Cherbuliez's new novel, The Tutor's Secret, which has elicited so much admiration abroad, is to be published shortly, by arrangement with the French publishers, in Appleton's Town and Country Library.

The Story of My Life, by Dr. Georg Ebers, is the title of a delightful autobiography full of fascinating reminiscences, which will be published immediately by D. Appleton & Co. This autobiography tells of Dr. Ebers's student life in Germany, his association with movements like that for the establishment of kindergarten training, his acquaintance with distinguished men like Froebel and the brothers Grimm, his glimpses of revolutionary movements, his interest in Egyptology and the history of ancient Greece and Rome, and the beginnings of his literary career. It is a book of historical as well as personal interest, and its value is enhanced by the presentation of portraits.

The popularity of Messrs. D. Appleton & Co's dainty Summer Series has caused a demand which will be met by the immediate publication of two volumes of the new series, which appears this year in a somewhat enlarged and even more attractive form. The first volume in the Summer Series will be A Border Leander, a picturesque tale of Western incident and humor, by Howard Seely, the author of The Jonah of Lucky Valley, etc. The Faience Violin, a charming story, which Mr. William Henry Bishop has translated and adapted from the French of Champfleury, will also appear at an early date; and it will be followed by Francois Coppee's new book entitled True Riches, and by a striking novelette by Mr. Gilbert Parker, and other volumes, which will be bound in a dainty and convenient style suitable both for summer reading and for permanent preservation.

IN HIS NAME—GO HEAL THE SICK.

"In my name go forth and heal," thus the Master spoke of yore, Touching with His sacred seal, Healing power forevermore. When He sent forth His apostles, Through a world with sorrow filled, Evil powers His impress knew, And the moan of pain was stilled.
In His Name they laid their hand On the forms in distress fast, Held by pain's relentless band, And behold! its reign was past. Backward rolled in mighty tide Life's glad current, free and strong. Forward leaped with joyous stride, Crippled limbs, unused so long.
In His Name were wonders wrought, Sorrow into gladness turned, A joy beyond all thought. Came, when swiftly they returned, Saying, as with one accord, 'Unto Him with joy we came, 'E'en the evil powers, O Lord, 'Now obey us, through Thy Name.'
Still that consecrating word Sends its echo down the years, With the same compassion stirred, 'Every true disciple shall, 'Heal the sick,' and lift the load 'From the suffering, tiring, tried, 'Power for this is still bestowed. 'Through the love of Him who died.
In His Name go forth today, Hear once more the call divine, Choicest gifts and powers to lay 'On His compassed and easy to, 'As His servants forward go, 'With His own compassion filled, 'All earth's sin, and toll and woe, 'With hope's radiant light to guide.
Blest are they to whom is sent, This high word of love to do, In its noblest content. Brave and cheerful, strong and true, Then at length, in the search, 'With exulting joy to come, 'Laden with their sheaves of gold, 'To the Father's blessed home.
Saying, 'All was done for Thee, 'In Thy Name and for Thy praise, 'And our songs of victory, 'To Thy Holy Name we raise.' 'Then the Master's word divine, 'Their supreme reward shall be, 'Service to the least of Mine, 'Ye have done it unto Me.'
Written by Miss A. C. Jennings for the graduating exercises of the Newton Hospital school for Nurses.

BOOKS AND MAGAZINES.

THE SIMPLE ADVENTURES OF A MEMSAHIB.
Sara J. Annette Duncan, whose "A Social Departure" was such a brilliant success, has given to the public another charming book, under the above title. It is a simple, domestic story, told in an entertaining way, of the adventures of an English girl, who goes out to Calcutta to marry. She goes out knowing absolutely nothing of the fashion of Indian society, which is a vast and new world, nor the ways of the Indian servant, as mysterious as those of the Chinese, and has ideas of running her household in English fashion, and consequently has experiences, if not adventures, of a varied nature. Also she goes out to fulfill and other social functions, and there is the color and fire and excitement, but nevertheless the reader does not feel inclined to skip, and the information gained of domestic life in India is valuable. The book is gotten up in a pleasing manner by D. Appleton & Co., and it is profusely illustrated by Townsend.
SINGULARLY DELUDED is the title of a very remarkable story, published in Appleton's Town & Country Library, by the author of "Ideala." The whole story covers only a brief period of time, and treats of the adventures of a wife in the search for her husband, who has mysteriously disappeared. She meets with shipwreck, is nearly drowned in a flood, takes a long voyage only to find she is on the wrong trail, and finally returns home to find her husband safe, but far from sound, as his disappearance was due to an accident. The whole story is told in a very plausible fashion, and will make the summer reader forget his surroundings during its perusal.

Ancient Kings.

In this age of republican ideas, it is hard to understand the homage and veneration accorded to the King of "Ye olden time." In modern eyes a majority of these ancient demigods exceeded in viciousness and depravity the meanest of their subjects. They claimed the power of curing diseases by laying on hands or the "King's touch." They were reputed to be very successful in treating by this method a disease which was called "King's Evil." This is the modern scrofula. It is doubtful if the most famous kings of ancient story could, by their magic touch, have cured that terrible case of scrofula which had been the bane of Miss Grace Warren's life. She is the daughter of the postmistress at Jackson, Maine. She says, "Some three years ago a small scrofula bunch appeared under my right ear. It grew very rapidly, and last April was as large around as a goose egg. It extended down my neck six inches, and forced my head around to the left, with my chin extended. I am fifteen years of age, and it mortified me very much, for every one noticed it, and I could not enjoy going into company. I consulted a physician last April who recommended Rodolf's Cream Emulsion. My mother received my neck every week and found after the first month that it grew smaller very fast. Some weeks my neck would be half an inch smaller in circumference than the week before. I continued the use of the medicine until about a month ago when, the bunch having been gone some time, I considered the humor thoroughly removed from my blood. My health is extra good, and I feel very happy and grateful for the benefit I have received from Rodolf's Medical Discovery. I will gladly answer any questions or letters which any one suffering as I was, may be pleased to ask or write, if they will enclose a stamp." For sale by Geo. Ingraham, West Newton; John Payne, Newtonville, and Hahn the druggist, Newton.

In old times it seemed to be thought that a medicine must be nauseating to be effective. Now, all this is changed. Ayer's Sarsaparilla, one of the most powerful alteratives, is agreeable to most palates, the flavor being by no means medicinal.
If the hair is falling out and turning gray, the glands of the skin need stimulating and color-food, and the best remedy and stimulant is Hall's Hair Renewer.

THE WORLD'S FAIR.

INTENDING VISITORS ARE GIVEN SOME HINTS OF WHAT TO SEE.

The magnitude of the German exhibit is a theme of wonder to every one. Whether it is because German prejudices prevented an exhibit at the last Paris Exposition, or because Chicago with its large German population has influenced the Fatherland to send of its best, certain it is that Germany stands pre-eminent in every branch of the fair.

In the mines and minery building the magnificent display of the Stumm Brothers of iron in every form, from ore, pig and bar iron to the mammoth pyramids of pipe, silt and wire; railroad iron in many sizes and forms, skeleton frames in models of car sheds and R. R. stations, heroic sized statuary, tables, chairs, every thing of iron, from tools and nails to the fence and columns of whole and half tubular forms; it is well worth a second visit. The iron gates and fence of the main exhibit, in the Manufacturers and Liberal Arts building, marked "For sale," win universal admiration. The textile fabrics, machinery, electrical and artistic exhibits all add to the glory of this magnificent display.

In the German building, the main hall, in form of the Apse of a Cathedral, has a very fine collection of church hangings and statuary, and the medieval effect is brightened by the fine stained glass windows which decorate and light the scene.

The collection of books, in fine bindings, is very imposing. Wood carvings of modern and ancient dates, inlaid chests and cabinets, vie with the marble and alabaster figures. Some of these are transparent, almost as thin as plate glass. The public schools have sent their work, as have also those of most other nations. I have no time to more than mention the Krupp building and Old Vienna and German Village in the Plaisance.

New South Wales has a fine display in every building, besides a little pavilion among the small state and national buildings, devoted to art.

France has a beautiful display of textiles, gloves, "objets d'art" in the centre of the large manufacturers building, besides a pavilion on the lake front, composed of two small buildings connected by a colonnade in semi-circular form, where are frescos of familiar scenes and buildings in Paris.

Italy has a very magnificent display of glass, marbles, carvings, bronzes and bijouterie, but so crowded into so small a space, that the effect is sadly marred. Magnificent life sized statuary is so crowded together that only the outside rows can be seen.

In the transportation building the Pullman train, with its palatial fittings, attracts much attention, also the section of an ocean steamship and the model of the Nicaragua Canal. A train fitted up by the Northern Pacific R. R. with displays of the ores, grains and other products of that region has a continuous string of visitors. One might spend days in examining the different sections and models; Pullman is there in bold relief, streets, houses, even tiny lamp posts, illuminated at night.

In the Illinois building is a fine model of a grain ranch. The house and out building, with Kitten on the doorstep, a cow at the bars, waiting for her master to wash the cans in the morning water at the tiny well, near which a Dutch madchen is washing her linen in a tub.

Back of this lies the orchard; then come great grain fields of all sorts, each with its full sized grain growing upright in full vigor and cultivators and reapers of all sorts, driven by tiny horses, show the methods of harvesting. Near the house store house is a full load of hay, with the tired haymakers riding home on the top of their last load.

In the Kansas building, all this scene is reproduced in bas relief, on the S. E. wall, with a curtain partly drawn, composed of the feathery tops of grasses, the cord and tassels even are of seeded grasses. The whole frieze of this building is a wonder work of corn, wheat and grain frescos. The corn cob, in cross sections, forms a very decorative rosette which figures largely in all the artistic decorations of Iowa, Ohio, Kansas, Illinois and Nebraska.

In the dome of the Kansas building is a tiny train of Pullman cars, with its colored porter on rear platform, and as it whistles very naturally twice in each circuit, it divides the attention of the visitor, with the really fine display of native and stuffed animals, deer, elk, wolves, prairie dogs and mountain sheep.

The new state of Washington has a really magnificent display in its own building, besides the many displays in the large general buildings. The logs which form its foundation are mammoth, many of them 80 ft long. The flag staff in front is a single tree trunk 215 feet high and only 3-1/2 feet in diameter at its base. It towers above every thing in its vicinity, vibrating in the wind, but secure in its pyramidal base of ore and coal.

In the largest building in the world The Manufacturers and Liberal Arts, with its forty-two acres of floor, are grouped a perfect city of streets full of pagodas. Many of them are very strongly fanciful. The Baiding Silk Co. have a very fine display, a locomotive, tender and car, all made of spool silk with cocoons for coal in the tender, running on tracks of spun twists of undyed silk. It far surpasses its rivals.

The Waltham Watch Co. have a wonderful pavilion. Here are all the delicate automatic machines for handling the finest work. Also 2000 movements all running, all wound every morning by a mere touch. Here also is the fine collection of historic watches, among which I saw those of George III, Lady Jane Grey, Queen Elizabeth, John Bunyan, John Milton and many other famous personages.

The Cheney Silk Co. of Manchester, Conn., have a very fine assortment of silks, both "India" and embossed. Of musical instruments, jewelry, house fittings and furnishings, the variety is limitless. The enticing eyes bowls and porcelain, tubs made me long to build a bathroom and then put a house round it, if I had anything left.

The music by Sousa's Marine Band on the esplanade in front of the Administration building is rivaled by a fine Chicago band which gives concerts in the center of the Manufacturers building. It was to the strains of "Lohengrin" that we ascended 280 feet to the roof, looking back with admiring wonder on the miles of streets laid out below us on the main floor, then out onto the roof, one of the greatest and most satisfactory trips of the whole month; we were just in time to see the illumination of the grounds and buildings and to watch the flash of electricity along the Festival and Casino. There were fully 500 people up there in a high wind watching the electric fountains and the search lights. It was truly a view of fairy land. This last evening there divides the honors in my estimation with the concert of the Apollo Club of Chicago, when they gave the "Elijah" with Lillian Norton and Mr. Plunkett Green. Never have I heard an oration so perfectly rendered. Mme Nordica was truly magnificent, and Mr. Green is certainly the most pathetic and dramatic singer I have ever heard. Why can't we have the fair in our next winter's oratories and shelve some of the antiquities we are so surfeited with?

As for the Apollo Club, it is as far ahead of our beloved Handel and Haydn, as can be imagined. The whole thing, orchestra, chorus, soloists and audience, were in complete harmony with their surroundings, and a fitting part of the greatest show on earth.

Allow me to add my tribute to the efficacy of Ely's Cream Balm. I was suffering from a severe attack of influenza and catarrh and was induced to try your remedy. The result was marvelous. I could hardly articulate, and in less than twenty-four hours the catarrhal symptoms and my hoarseness disappeared and I was able to sing a heavy role in Grand Opera with voice unimpaired. I strongly recommend it to all singers.—Wm. H. Hamilton, Leading Bass of the C. D. Hess Grand Opera Co.

—Mrs. J. C. Holden and daughter are visiting friends in Zanesville, Ohio, during the present month.

—Mr. H. E. Chandlerlain and family of Chestnut Hill, left town last Friday for Bar Harbor, where they spend the season.

—Miss Georgia Buckmann is spending the summer vacation at Yarmouthville, Me.

—Alfred Prevost and family have removed to Salem.

—Interesting reading regarding the Fourth's unworthiness is given in another column.

—Mr. Frederick T. Parks of Norwood avenue is building a new house on Grant avenue.

—Some of the "boys" went in bathing at Crystal lake at 12 o'clock the night before the Fourth.

—Mrs. Amos E. Lawrence is steadily improving from her recent unfortunate accident. This will be welcome news to a large circle of sympathizing friends.

—The pipe at Vachon's pool room is now the property of Patrick Hennessy.

—Hon. Alden Speare and Mr. Louis R. Speare attended the annual outing of the Massachusetts Club, Saturday, at Nantasket.

—Mr. Young's new house just completed at Ashton Park, has been leased.

—Mr. Frank Leconte and Mr. Walter A. Leconte left for Chicago on July 1st, for a two weeks' absence.

—Parties from Exeter, N. H., have purchased the Fay house on Station street, which they will occupy.

—Mr. W. A. Leconte, who graduated with high honors at Harvard this year, will enter the Harvard Medical school in September.

—There are letters at the postoffice for Mr. Blake, (carpenter), Mrs. Chas. Bowser, Mr. T. Cook, Mrs. J. Cowley, Mrs. Margaret Desmond, G. Gurnez, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Swain, 4.

—Miss Eva G. Chabourne has gone to Fortunes Rocks, Biddeford, Me., for the summer.

—The houses of Mrs. Leconte of Chase street, Mrs. Bowen, Summer street, and others recently painted by Mr. V. Haffermehl, are receiving favorable comments.

—Dr. Fessenden and family are at the Rangleley Lakes, the doctor to return to his practice in a few days.

—Mr. Valentine Haffermehl, wife and son George W., of Station street, and George R. Stone of Chestnut Hill, will sail for Germany tomorrow, to return about the first of September.

—The Newton Centre line of the Newton & Boston street railway company was opened to public travel last Saturday. The cars are at present running through trips to Newtonville on 40 minute time, the present traffic not being sufficient to warrant a twenty minute schedule as at first intended.

—The following pupils were not tardy nor absent during the school year ending June 29: Bessie Broad, Carrie Anderson, Alice Dennis, Agnes MacMahon, Carl Haisdell, Edward Broad, Walter Giles, Harold Giles, Edward Giles, Dwight Fellows, James Johnson, Prescott Sale, Harry Sale, Willie Abbott.

—Mr. Charles Garey is suffering from some pretty severe bruises received by being thrown from his wagon on Monday. He was driving on Centre street with Howell Deal when the horse was frightened at a mowing machine and ran, throwing them both out. Mr. Garey's leg was sprained and he was badly bruised and cut about the head. Mr. Deal escaped with a bruised face. The wagon was demolished.

—A good deal of excitement was caused Sunday morning by an alarm of fire from box 7 at about 11 o'clock. Smoke was seen issuing from the cracks around the closed door of W. O. Knapp's store in White's block, and the alarm soon brought the fire department and a large number of citizens.

The door was broken in and the store found to be full of smoke, but no fire was discovered. One or two other places were broken open in search for fire but without avail. The smoke was finally found to come from building a fire in a tenement above the chimney for which runs through Mr. Knapp's store, and the smoke was driven down into the store by poor draft.

—There has been a great change in public sentiment towards Office Conduits and the other policemen since the night before the Fourth. So many people suffered at the hands of Newton Centre hoodlums, that people are beginning to think that the officers should have arrested every boy in the village and the parents of some of the ringleaders would do well to send their sons away until the storm blows over. When buildings are set on fire, valuable shrubs and plants on lawns and piazzas destroyed, and other like damage done, the citizens think that forbearance has ceased to be a virtue. Rewards are to be offered for the detection and arrest of the guilty parties, and altogether the next few weeks promise to be a very anxious time for those concerned in the doings of the night before the Fourth. Setting fires to buildings is a state prison offense.

—The recent death of Mr. Benj. F. Hawley of Waltham, father of the late Mrs. Chas. E. Dudley, left quite an estate by which Miss Carrie Dudley, and Mrs. Minnie Robbins will inherit a good share of the property.

—The Unitarian Society has extended a call to Rev. B. F. McDaniel of San Diego, Cal., to become its pastor. Mr. McDaniel has accepted the invitation, and will begin his labors Sept. 1st. After next Sunday the church will be closed until early in September.

—At the Unitarian church the last service before the summer vacation will be held at 10.45. Preaching by Rev. B. F. McDaniel of San Diego, Cal. The following program of music will be rendered: Mrs. E. F. Stevens, organist and director: Organ Prelude

Anthems, "O, taste and see," G. W. Marston

Hymn, "Come, Holy Spirit," Mendelssohn

Soprano solo, "My Soul is athirst for God," Gaud

From "The Holy City," Gaud

Organ Postlude

—Alford Bros. & Co., successors to Alford & Ward, have sold for Judge R. R. Bishop a lot containing about 10,000 feet of the corner of Grant avenue and Great Cliff road, Newton Centre, for about 25 cents per foot. The purchaser, whose name is withheld for the present, intends to build a fine residence for his own occupancy.

—The intelligence of the death of Mrs. C. Howard Wilson on Monday evening came as a shock to the entire community. Her death was sudden, and her speedy recovery from the effects of her accident was looked for up to the time of her demise.

Mrs. Wilson was an old resident of Newton Centre and had endeavored herself to a large circle of friends during her residence in this village. She was one of the prominent members of the Unitarian church, and was active in all church and philanthropic work. She was a woman of strong mentality, and although intensely devoted to her home life, and the care of her family, was well versed in the topics of the day. Her home life was a beautiful example of womanly self sacrifice and devotion to her family. She leaves a husband and four children.

—The celebration of the Fourth of July under the auspices of the Newton Centre Improvement Association was the most successful that has ever been held, and the time was fully occupied throughout the day and evening. There were nearly 100 bicycles in the bicycle parade at day break, a good proportion of whom were ladies. The costumes of the riders were unique and amusing and some of the riders were well known local characters. At 9 o'clock a series of athletic contests were held on the new play ground. A grand stand had been erected for the occasion, and for 2000 people occupied the seats. The contests were all well contested, and the time in the running events was remarkably good, considering the unfinished condition of the track. The contestants were all local amateurs. The ball game between the "Benedicts" and single men proved an amusing exhibition. The latter came out victors with a score of 11 to 10, although the married men still cling to the belief that they would have won had they been allowed time enough. The winners in the various events were as follows:

100 yards dash—First, Fred C. Rising, (scratch), 10.45 sec; second, H. Fred, (3 yds), 10.50 sec; third, F. A. Edmunds, 6 in, 20 ft, 10.55 sec; second, Herbert F. Cobb, (3 yds), 13.45 sec; second, Carl Benedict (1 yd), 14.50 sec; third, Justin Cain, (20 yds), 2 min. 25.12 sec; second, Anton Miller, 44 yds run for boys under 15—First, Carl D. Baisdell, (scratch), 1 min. 8.45 sec; second, Chester B. White, (20 yds), 1 min. 10.50 sec.

Team race four relays, 220 yds each—Winning team (10 yds), Avery Rand, Jr., Howard M. Willson, Anton Miller, Fred J. Kellaway.

One mile bicycle race—First, R. L. Rottler, (scratch), 2 min. 59.15 sec; second, W. M. Morse, (40 yds), 3 min. 14.25 sec; second, Herbert F. Cobb, (10 yds), 3 min. 14.25 sec.

Running high jump—First, Wm. D. Rising, (scratch), 5 ft. 2 in.; second, Arthur A. Blanchard, (3 in), 4 ft. 10 in.

Pole vault—First, Frank Morton, (6 in), 8 ft.; second, Herbert F. Cobb (8 in), 7 ft. 8 in.

Running hop, step and jump—First, H. Fred Leach, (2 ft. 6 in), 37 ft. 7 in.; second, Wm. D. Rising, (6 in), 38 ft.

Shot put—First, Fred C. Rising, (scratch), 32 ft. 3 in.; second, F. A. Edmunds, 6 in, 20 ft, 32.50 ft; third, Herbert F. Cobb, 6 in, 20 ft, 32.50 ft.

Throwing base ball—First, Fred C. Rising, (scratch), 320 ft.; second, F. A. Edmunds, (20 ft), 250 ft.

Surprise races—First, Alfred E. Armstrong; second, F. A. Edmunds.

Slow bicycle race for ladies, 50 yds—First, Miss Helen A. Ward, 1 min. 45 sec; second, Miss Rebecca M. Edmunds, 1 min. 37 sec.

Ladies' tennis—1st prize, Miss Rebecca M. Edmunds; 2nd prize, Miss Bessie Macdonald.

In the afternoon came the ladies' tennis tournament on the common, participated in by young ladies of the Centre, the winners of which are given above. The sixth Reg. Band of Boston gave a concert on the common at 3.15 o'clock, drawing a large crowd of people. At 3 o'clock the afternoon ball game on the playground was commenced between the Newtons and Newton High school teams. A large crowd witnessed the game, which was very interesting throughout, the Newtons finally winning 7 to 6. In the evening a magnificent pyrotechnic display was given from a raft moored in the center of the beautiful Crystal lake. The numerous residences about the lake and their grounds were illuminated with Japanese lanterns, and at various points along the shore colored lights were burned. Previous to the display the prizes won in the various contests of the day, consisting of silver medals, tennis racket, base ball and bat, and silver ornaments, were awarded by the committee. The evening was very enjoyable by a band concert lasting from 7 until the latter part of the evening. The committee were disappointed in the non-arrival of the day fireworks, which were to have been used on the common in the afternoon, and only about one-half of the evening fireworks were received, but the day was so taken up with other attractions that these omissions were hardly missed.

NEWTON HIGHLANDS.

—Pianos rented and tuned, Farley, Newton

—Mr. and Mrs. Chas. P. Kelley are at the Oregon House, Hull.

—Mr. Weston Allen is here for the summer.

—Mr. and Mrs. Hodgkins, the father and mother of Mrs. E. H. Tarbell, are staying for a few weeks at her home.

—Mr. J. F. Edmunds is improving.

—Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Jones are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter, on the glorious Fourth.

—Next Sunday services at St. Paul's will be at 10.45 and 7. The rector will officiate.

—There are letters in the postoffice for L. W. Ambrose, Mr. Hammel, Louis Palmer.

—Meeting of the Young People's Christian Endeavor society at Congregational church, Tuesday evening at 7.45. Temperance meeting. All cordially invited.

—Mrs. Richard Wright occupied the chair for the first time, as Noble Grand, at the meeting of the Daughters of Rebekah on Wednesday evening.

—The base ball contest between the Gamewells of Upper Falls, and the Newton Highlands club, on the Fourth, terminated in the defeat of the Gamewells. The score stood 10 to 4. As a general thing good order reigned here, the most serious wrong doing was the cutting of the fire alarm wires.

—Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Greenwood are spending a week with Dr. Lancaster at Wellesley Hills.

—Rev. Dr. Webb will conduct the services at the Congregational church next Sunday morning and evening.

—Miss Chaffield, Miss Meyer, Miss White, and Miss Pike have gone to Montreal to attend the Christian Endeavor Convention.

—Mr. N. D. Noyes of Erie avenue, and Mr. P. Nickerson of Lincoln street, are having their houses very tastefully painted.

—Miss Sadie Thompson, Miss Estelle Cobb and Frank McCallum, were graduates from the High school, in addition to those mentioned last week. Miss Thompson and Miss Cobb expect to enter Boston University at the fall term.

—Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Taisey of Upper Falls, will accompany Mr. and Mrs. Richard Wright of this place, who will go on Saturday to Peak's Island, on the Maine coast, where they will spend their vacation.

—Mr. A. H. Broderick, who has purchased the house just completed by Mr. E. A. Tarbell, on Bowdoin street, now with his family occupies the same.

—The death of Miss Alfaratta Holman took place at her home, where she lived with her mother, at the corner of Bowdoin and Forest streets, on Wednesday. She was the daughter of Rev. J. W. Holman, deceased, and Mrs. O. M. C. Holman, and was born in Brooklyn, N. Y. She was finely educated and a good amateur artist. She had four brothers, who survive her, all of whom are Baptist clergymen.

—The "Twilight Services" at St. Paul's closed last Sunday. They have been very devotional and helpful. The choir master and accompanist have rendered most generous assistance. The congregations have been large. Mr. Charles S. Buffum's solos last Sunday evening brought the services to an appropriate and beautiful termination.

—Miss Florence Wood, Miss Belle Patten and Miss Alice Brackett of Newton Centre, with Miss Thompson as chaperone left this (Friday) morning for several weeks camping at Lake George, N. Y. They were accompanied by the Rev. B. B. Ramage with Master Theodore Wood and Master John B. Hawes. Next week the Rev. Wm. Hall Williams and Master Franklin L. Wood will join the party. They will remain in the "hamlet" at Hulet's Landing among the summer cottages of friends.

—It is with regret we record the death of Deacon H. L. Whiting, which took place at his residence here, Tuesday evening, July 6th. Deacon Whiting was born in Amherst, Mass., of Christian parentage. He resided for many years in Boston, and in West Newton, afterwards in Gloucester, and for fourteen years has made his home here. He was a bookkeeper by profession, though for several years he has been unable to be in active business on account of ill health, though able to be about until within a week of his death, which resulted from peritonitis. He was well known to the many who have made their home in his family, and will be sincerely missed by them, as well as by the church, to which he was devotedly attached, and of which he has been treasurer, as well as deacon for many years. He was seventy-two years of age. He leaves a widow to whom he has been married forty-seven years. The funeral service will be held at his late residence to-day, at 2.30 p. m.

Dental Work.

Persons in need of dental work of any description are invited to call on Dr. Clark, 159, "A" Tremont street, whose experience of 13 years enables him to give perfect satisfaction, while his connection as basso of the famous Ruggles Street Quartet makes his name well known in this region. See adv. in another column.

Stone, 144 feet; and Northerly by land now or late of Sally Mitchell, 10 1/2 feet. Subject to any unpaid taxes and $50 will be required to be paid in cash by the purchaser at time and place of sale.

HELEN APPLEIGH,

Assignee and present holder of said mortgage.

Mortgagee's Sale.

By virtue of a power of sale contained in a certain mortgage deed given by Edward L. Collins to Robert T. Babson, dated the 15th day of January, 1893, and recorded with Middlesex South District Deeds, lib. 2170, fol. 242, will be sold for breach of condition of said mortgage, and for the purpose of enforcing the same, at public auction upon the premises first hereinafter mentioned on Wednesday the 29th day of July, A. D. 1893, at quarter past three o'clock in the afternoon, all and singular the premises conveyed by said mortgage, and about thirty two parcels of land, situated in that part of said Newton called Waban and the first containing about six acres and bounded easterly by the Edgely Road, and located by E. W. Burchett about three hundred and forty (340) feet northeasterly by the junction of Edgely Road and Devon Road, about fifty (50) feet; easterly by said Devon Road about three hundred (300) feet; and by land now or late of Putnam in two courses in all about one hundred and ninety eight (198) feet; southerly on Quinobegun Road about seven hundred and forty (740) feet and westerly on land formerly of F. A. Collins, about three hundred and eighty (380) feet.

The second of said parcels being bounded at a point on the southerly side of Waban Avenue by land of Jennings and thence running southerly by said land of Jennings, about two hundred and twenty (220) feet, thence turning and running easterly by said land of Jennings, and by land now or late of Rand, trustee, four hundred and thirty (430) feet to land of Alice G. Gould; thence running and running southerly by said land of Gould, about five hundred and ten (510) feet to Charles River; thence turning and running easterly by said River about three hundred and eighty (380) feet to land formerly of F. A. Collins; thence running and running northeasterly by said land formerly of F. A. Collins about four hundred and twenty nine (429) feet; thence running northeasterly still by land formerly of F. A. Collins about five hundred and sixty (560) feet to said Waban Avenue and the point of beginning. Containing about seven acres.

Being a part of an estate of which E. J. Collins late of Newton died seized the said Edward L. Collins being the only heir at law of said Edward L. Collins and subject to restrictions as agreed upon with Hans and others as of record appear.

The premises will be sold subject to all unpaid taxes, $500 of the purchase money will be required to be paid at time and place of sale. Further terms at sale.

CITY GOVERNMENT.

UNANIMOUSLY IN FAVOR OF THE NEWTON BOULEVARD.

Both branches of the city council were in session Monday evening. In the board of aldermen all the members were present and Mayor Fennel presided.

The West End Street Railway Co. accepted the location granted them for their poles and wires on Centre street.

John Ryan asked for permit to build addition 12x16 feet to house on Auburn-dale avenue.

L. E. Coffin and others asked for main drain and sewer on Newtonville avenue and Bellevue street.

Messrs. Garrett and others asked for drain and sewer on Dalby street.

Andrew Wellington was licensed as auctioneer.

Mrs. Caroline H. Lee gave notice of intention to build house 90x40 feet on Essex road.

F. W. Parker, house 32x47 on Devon road.

Hearings were held on the sewers between Paul and Centre streets and Oxford road, and Alderman Roffe stated that Messrs. Paul and Warren wished to reserve all their legal rights.

Mr. A. L. Harwood appeared for Mr. Paul and stated that Oxford road was a new street, laid out through Mr. Paul's land, and his private property. It seemed a great hardship to require him to pay the assessment for both sides of the street, and if it could be postponed for five years, till the land was built upon, it would be satisfactory to him.

A. M. Bunker was granted license to build stable and shed 15x30 feet, for one horse on Crescent street.

Edward LeRoy asked for drain and sewer on Watertown street between Adams and West streets.

Joshua S. Ramsdell asked for license to build addition to stable, 4x13 feet, on Washington street, Ward Two.

Wm. Claflin and W. H. Purdy asked for concrete walks on Court street.

MAGUE MEADOW.

Alderman Bothfield reported from the highway committee their conclusion on the Mague meadow assessment, and the figures at which they had arrived as the proper sums to be paid. Mr. Bothfield said that many should have been assessed who were not, but the committee had no power to take any action in regard to these. They had reduced the other assessments by from 50 to 75 per cent, and an order was passed authorizing the city treasurer to accept such sums in place of all claims against those assessed.

An order was passed for concrete crosswalks at the junction of Lowell and Edinboro streets, between Putnam and Vernon and Park streets.

An order was passed authorizing the city treasurer to accept certain sums from parties who had not paid for their street watering assessments, for two or three years.

ANOTHER BOULEVARD HEARING.

Alderman Bothfield presented an order for a second hearing on taking land for the boulevard, for July 24th, before both branches, as some of the property owners had not been found in time to make a legal notice of the first hearing.

A hearing was held on the rounding off of the corner of Temple and Highland streets.

A hearing was held on laying sewer in Gardner street.

An order was passed for a sewer from the end of the present sewer on Crafts street, to Washington street.

THE BOULEVARD HEARING.

A large crowd was present for the boulevard hearing which was reached at 8 o'clock.

Mr. Richard Saltonstall appeared for Mr. Herbert Dumaresq, who objected to the line established through his property at Chestnut Hill, though he was in favor of the boulevard itself. Mr. Dumaresq owns the Francis property, which runs from Hammond to Ward street, near the intersection of South street, with some 600 feet on Ward street. Mr. Saltonstall said that Mr. Dumaresq bought the property four years ago, for a home, and had expended a large sum on the house. When the scheme was first broached he was not aggressively opposed to it, and agreed that if it was laid out along the foot of his land, he would give a strip forty-five feet wide and 600 feet long, which would be worth at a low valuation from three to four thousand dollars. But the later plan adopted by the highway committee he did oppose, as it cuts through the middle of his land, takes out some 65,000 feet of land, leaving a triangular lot on the other side of his house of some 55,000 feet. This would constitute a serious grievance, and is not warranted by any consideration of public convenience or necessity, as the first plan would be equally as good. The road curves in one way by the first plan and another way by the second, and the curve in the first would not be dangerous in such a wide roadway, and there were much worse ones on the road around the reservoir. In the latter plan adopted the damages would be heavy, which ought to be considered, and a conservative policy ought to be followed. Another thing he thought of was that the city of Boston had as yet taken no legal steps to widen the narrow street from the Boston line to Commonwealth avenue. He hoped the board would go and see the property and thought they would be surprised to see how great the damage would be to his client. He was not holding his hand to make money out of it, but for a home, and he did not wish for any change, but the first plan he was willing to have carried out, and it would also be found the most economical and practical plan.

Mr. Avery L. Rand said he wished to ask a practical question, what assurance have we that Boston will widen its part of this boulevard.

Mayor Fennel said that the plans were all made for such widening and the Boston officials assured us that they intended to do the work as soon as they were pointed out. It was a long time before Boston widened its part of the Beacon street boulevard. Some definite assurance should be got before Newton took any action.

Mr. Dana Estes said the case of the petitioners had been presented so far as the boulevard commission and to the highway committee, that they seemed no necessity for saying anything more, but he would like to know if there were any more remonstrances.

Mr. Burrage said that Mr. Jordan A. Bailey, who represented, objected to see like past his property, which left a steep bank, whereas if the land for the boulevard were taken from the other side, it would leave his property in much better condition.

Mr. Alden Speare objected to the line through Mrs. H. A. Speare's property, as it would ruin the place and if carried through they would claim all the damages the law would allow.

Mr. Blaney, who owns a good deal of the land through which the upper portion of the boulevard will run, said he was not familiar with the estates mentioned, but he took great interest in the general idea of the boulevard. Newton must act independently of Boston, but he had called on the chairman of the Boston street committee, who had told him that for some months plans had been prepared for the widening of South street, and it would unquestionably be widened, and the board had assurance from the land owners that the land needed for the widening would be given. The boulevard would serve as an outlet for the extension of Commonwealth avenue, and connect Boston's Park system with the parks to be established in Auburndale, Weston and Waltham. The latter city had already taken steps to lay out a grand park of some 80 acres on Prospect Hill, and then Weston would extend through the hills in its territory, and there would be the parks along the Charles River in Auburndale and Weston, and the connection by the boulevard with Boston would be by as straight a line as could well be laid out, and electric roads would bring these parks within easy reach of the people. The boulevard must be laid out in its entire length, not in parcels, and the interests of Newton, where there was a great amount of vacant land, would be best served by such a project on this.

Rev. Dr. Hovey said he was interested in it mainly as a public matter, though he had some personal interest in it also, but he thought the whole city would be greatly benefited by the boulevard, as well as the property through which it would run. It would be a great step in advance for Newton to take.

Mr. Alden Speare said he was in favor of the boulevard and thought it was one of the greatest public improvements Newton had undertaken, and it would be of the greatest benefit to the city. There were some small matters which could be remedied. Personally he would give a thousand dollars not to have any more street railways in the city, but this boulevard, connecting such magnificent parks, would be one of the grandest in Massachusetts. He was, however, surprised and astonished that the street railway companies should have been allowed to lay T rails in the streets of Newton. He had never seen them allowed anywhere else, but this had been done by the city councils of former years. In this case the railway would be in a space by itself, so it would not be so much of a nuisance.

Mr. Dana Estes said he appeared as chairman of the Newton Boulevard Syndicate, formed to promote the boulevard. It was an organization of capitalists, who held certain lands through which the boulevard is to run, and they were willing to give the land and a large amount of money toward the cost. The lines had been taken almost wholly as the petitioners had laid them out, but in the case of Mr. Dumaresq the city engineer had taken another location that he deemed more expedient. That was for the board to deal with, however. He did not think that the grounds of complaint were well taken, however. He had seen the same thing in the laying out of the Beacon street boulevard; the people who had objected most strenuously were now the best satisfied over the results. One man who had 20,000 feet of land said the boulevard would ruin his house and fought the project vigorously, but he had since sold his 20,000 feet for $50,000 and liked the boulevard so much that he had rented the house and still continued to live there, and is the happiest man in Brookline. All up and down the avenue the same thing happened. Mr. Saltonstall said the Beacon street boulevard cost over $500,000, but the land damages for 27 per cent of the improvement were $337,000. This is, however, not a parallel case, as here there are no buildings to be removed, and most of the land is unimproved. The only house seriously affected is an old house on the Knowles place which the syndicate has made a private bargain for. In Brookline, also, there were enormous grade and other damages. There 75 per cent of the land was given, but in Newton over 90 per cent is given, and the land damages will be trifling. Beacon street was laid out under the betterment act, but the board of selectmen only assessed 500 feet on either side as they had only a slight experience in such matters. In this case the improvement will effect from two to three times 500 feet, and a large amount of land will be available for betterments, and a very large sum could be collected in betterments. He was surprised that there was so little opposition and such as there was is perfunctory, with an eye to discounting the assessments for betterments. People make objections to lay ground for abatement of the betterment tax, and come forward for that purpose, but they are anxious to have the boulevard go through as the petitioners themselves.

Boston was slow to act and Brookline had to wait some time, but fortunately in this case there is within 100 feet of the Newton end a magnificent roadway around the reservoir, and arrangements could be made to connect with that if Boston delayed too long. There was, however, no doubt of the good faith of the Boston street commissioners. Mayor Matthews was so much in favor of it that he had recommended a special loan to be asked for from the legislature, and the Boston water board is now laying a very large main in preparation for the widening of the street.

Judge Bishop said his views in favor of the boulevard were well known. He was personally interested, as his land was affected, but he thought he should be as heartily in favor of it if it did not touch his land. The benefit might not be as great as some think, but it would be of great benefit to the whole city. Look ahead twenty or thirty years and see what Newton would be with it and then what it would be without it. It was the most important enterprise Newton had ever undertaken, and it had been started not at the importunity of a clique of land owners, but the boulevard commission had recommended it, the citizens wanted it, and so far as he knew all favored it.

Mr. Estes said the increase in Brookline's tax value was over 1-2 millions, but in addition to that many millions of personal estate had been brought into the town, and every part of Brookline had partaken in the benefit. The boulevard had also greatly benefited the adjacent section of Boston. He lived on the line, and before the boulevard he could see nothing but woods from his stable, but now it was all built up with handsome houses. The boulevard has paid for itself already two or three times, and the same thing will be true here.

Mr. C. M. Ransom of Grafton street protested against the way the boulevard was to be laid out, his place, and would come within 60 feet of his front door, and on the other side of the street a little strip would be left of no value. He heartily favored the boulevard, but he had no land to sell and did not wish his home interfered with. He had resided there 11 years and had expended a good deal of money in planting trees and shrubs.

Mr. J. B. Goodrich spoke against the betterment law and did not believe in building a boulevard simply because a large sum could be raised in betterments. East of Centre street the land owners wanted it to develop their land, but west of Centre street the case was different, people owned their homes and it was not just to assess them. It was not a highway for the people, but a semi-public park, from Boston to Waltham. He thought the city should see if it could not forego the application of the betterment principle, which was not a just one, and the city should not engage in this enterprise because a large sum could be raised on assessments.

Mayor Fennel said the property owners on the West side of Centre street would give the same proportion of land as those on the East.

Mr. Blaney said if Mr. Goodrich had read the propositions from property owners from Centre to Valentine street he would not have any anxiety about property owners west of Centre street. They would give 90 per cent of the land, and one third of the cost of the boulevard, and they did not seem to find fault.

Mr. Saltonstall thought Mr. Estes' remarks were misleading, as in Brookline only $54,000 was raised from betterments. The theory of betterments was largely a myth, as every land owner can go before a jury of 12 men, and a very small sum is raised in that way. The increase in taxable property in Brookline, every tax payer there knows, is caused by the way the property is marked up. Land near the line at Chestnut Hill has been marked up three or four times since the boulevard was built, but its value is not affected by the boulevard. Brookline has found out the great expense of a boulevard and within 3 or 4 months has voted down several boulevard extension schemes. The expense of repairing the boulevard is very great, of watering, and of maintenance also, and ad boulevards are found to be very expensive. Mr. Estes makes fun of sentimental consideration, but he is in this to make money, and his views are not the benefit of the city. The line laid out through Mr. Dumaresq's land by the Highway committee would do irreparable damage to him, and it is also wholly unnecessary. He did not believe any one who was acquainted with the location would believe that they came there simply to lay a claim for damages.

Mr. Estes said he had been told by Mr. Lincoln, one of the selectmen, that over $70,000 had been collected by betterments and Mr. Lincoln ought to know.

Judge Bishop spoke of the careful way in which the whole plan had been matured, and said that the commission and the highway committee had had the benefit of the very best engineering advice in the state. Mr. Noyes, the city engineer of Newton, who stood at the head of his profession, Mr. Olmsted, the celebrated engineer, whose fame for laying out land with a regard for all its possibilities of beauty and attractiveness was well known, and Mr. Rice of Newton, who had a high reputation for careful work.

The hearing was closed at a few minutes past ten o'clock.

RAILWAY TURN OUT.

Mr. J. R. Smith appeared at the hearing on the turnout on Walnut street. Newton Highlands and objected against its being placed opposite Lake avenue, a much travelled street, where the tracks would be very objectional, as Walnut street at that point is very narrow. He thought it might be carried farther down the street.

Geo. E. Ragg was appointed a special policeman on the premises of Phipps & Train, Upper Falls.

Several wagon licenses were granted. The Water Board were authorized to put 75 feet of water main on River street and 417 feet on Devon road, at an expense of $710.

Alderman Bothfield reported on the complaint of the Auburndale Village Improvement Society in regard to Seaverns street, that the stagnant water was due to improper grading of land of the abutters and recommending that the matter be referred to the board of health.

An order was passed for the rounding off of the corner of Temple and Highland streets.

On motion of Alderman Thompson, Chapter 300 of the Acts of the Legislature were adopted by the board, in regard to the licensing of picnic grounds, and Geo. Brewer was licensed to keep picnic grounds at Upper Falls.

Philip C. Sewer was licensed as an inn-holder at Upper Falls, and J. H. Randall was also licensed.

An order was passed appropriating $884.84 for the refunding of Migue meadow assessments.

Samuel Roosa applied for license to set up a one horse boiler and engine on Prospect street to run sewing machines.

Two petitions for the widening of Elm street were received, stating its narrowness, its defective grade and want of sidewalks and its dangerous condition owing to the electric cars.

The petitions were signed by Marcus Morton and others and Asabel Wheeler and 25 others.

The city engineer reported the revised sewer assessments on certain streets and the city treasurer was authorized to collect the same.

Alderman Hunt for the sewer committee moved that a sewer be laid on German street and a hearing was ordered for July 24th.

FIRE ALARM BOXES.

On motion of Alderman Rumery the order appropriating $750 for new fire alarm boxes was taken from the table.

Alderman Thompson asked what kind of boxes this order provided for.

Alderman Rumery said the order had been given to the Municipal company.

Alderman Bothfield expressed surprise at this, as it was contrary to the proper course, although he appreciated the fact that the committee had acted with the best of intentions. Whether the city was owed by their action was a question, not feeling sure about it, he would move to refer to the city solicitor.

Alderman Plummer said it was given only subject to the approval of their bond by the city solicitor.

Alderman Thompson said he could not see how the city was liable, as this was no contract.

Alderman Bothfield said he had been shown a copy of the original letter from the committee, asking to have the boxes ready at the earliest possible moment, and the company went ahead in good faith. The question was if the city could be held by their action.

A FEW Testimonials from persons who have been cured by the use of Hill's Tablets.

THE OHIO CHEMICAL CO.:—GENTLEMEN:—I have been using your cure for tobacco habit, and found it would do what you claim for it. I used ten cents worth of the strongest chewing tobacco a day, and from one to five cigars; or I would smoke from ten to forty pipes of tobacco. Have chewed and smoked for twenty-five years, and two packages of your Tablets cured me so I have no desire for it. B. M. JAYLORD, Leslie, Mich.

DORIS FERRY, N. Y. THE OHIO CHEMICAL CO.:—GENTLEMEN:—Some time ago I sent for $1.00 worth of your Tablets for Tobacco Habit. I received them all right and, although I was both a heavy smoker and chewer, they did the work in less than three days. Truly yours, MATTHEW JOHNSON, P. O. Box 43, PITTSBURGH, PA.

THE OHIO CHEMICAL CO.:—GENTLEMEN:—It gives me pleasure to speak a word of praise for your Tablets. My son was strongly addicted to the use of liquor, and through a friend, I was led to try your Tablets. He was a heavy and constant drinker, but after using your Tablets but three days he quit drinking, and will not touch liquor of any kind. I have waited four months before writing you, in order to know the cure was permanent. Yours truly, MRS. HELEN MORRISON, CINCINNATI, OHIO.

THE OHIO CHEMICAL CO.:—GENTLEMEN:—Your Tablets have performed a miracle in my case. I have used morphine, hypodermically, for seven years, and have been cured by the use of two packages of your Tablets, and without any effort on my part. Address all Orders to THE OHIO CHEMICAL CO., 51, 53 and 55 Opera Block, LIMA, OHIO.

CITY GOVERNMENT.

Alderman Thompson moved to amend the order by adding that $375 of the above appropriation be applied to the purchase of 5 boxes of the Gardner now interference pattern, or the Gamewell box. The amendment was adopted and the order as amended was passed.

Alderman Roffe asked if it was not unusual to direct a committee what to buy. Mayor Percus said it had been done several times in recent years.

After a recess, in order to let the committee down easy, the order was rescinded and the amended order referred to the committee.

Alderman Plummer asked Mr. Cole of the Municipal company, if the Gamewell company had a perfect non-interference box.

Alderman Thompson said he objected to this method of doing business, which closed the matter, and the board adjourned.

THE GILDEA CASE.

A POISONING THEORY INVESTIGATED BY THE POLICE.

Medical Examiner Mead does not consider an autopsy necessary in the case of Charles Gildea who died under such peculiar circumstances last Friday evening.

He viewed the remains immediately after the body was found, and determined that it was a case of heart disease.

A burial permit was issued and the remains were interred at Newton Lower Falls.

The police have investigated the case thoroughly. Although they believe that no foul play was attempted, several circumstances connected with the death of Gildea it was thought best to investigate.

Deceased was found lying beside his team on Tremont street about 5 o'clock Friday evening. He was lifted into the wagon and driven in the direction of Lower Falls, where he resides.

When Crowell's mills on Church street, this city, was reached, he was found to be in a dying condition, and passed away before medical assistance could be summoned, and before he could be removed from the wagon.

It was found that Gildea had told a fellow teamster, a few minutes before his death, that he had taken a drink from a bottle on the street and that he had been poisoned.

Several persons were found who stated that they had seen Gildea drink out of the bottle.

The police know the man who offered the drink, and are certain from his character and reputation, and from the utter absence of any motive for such a crime, that there was no attempt at foul play.

Sunday afternoon a bottle was found near the spot where Gildea was found, which contained with about a gill of whiskey an ad-mixture of either carbolic acid or creosote. The bottle was one used to put up Mellin's food of the pint variety and had a wide opening at the top.

There is no proof that this was the bottle out of which Gildea drank.

The general opinion is that Gildea was suffering from heat prostration.

The quality of cheap liquor might prove fatal.

Gildea was feeling sick when he left his home at Newton Lower Falls in the morning, and his employer, Mr. Warren, says that he had been working hard.

The only other circumstance which may be called suspicious is the fact that the undertaker found burns on the man's chin, which might have been caused by acid, when he prepared the remains for burial.

EIGHT YEARS AFTER.

Eight years makes many changes in our lives and surroundings. Boys and girls become men and women, while many familiar faces and many familiar land marks swept away by the ravages of disease, and the march of progress and improvement, are seen no more. Sly and mysterious wrinkles appear upon our faces once hard and fresh as the sunny side of a peach, while the crown of our head after our terrible struggles lifts itself above the surrounding environments of hair "once our pride," and gazes calmly and serenely upon the world with unobstructed view. In case of Mrs. Almida Bowen of Monroe, Maine, the change has been marvelous indeed.

On April 24, 1884, a physician who examined her found a large cavity in her left lung. Severe cough, night sweats, hectic flush, great emaciation, pulse 130, temperature 104.2, and all other hideous accompaniments of tubercular consumption. Her mother and two sisters had died in the two years previous from the same disease. As you see, she was a discouraged woman. On the above date she began to take Rodolph's Medical Discovery, then in its infancy, and used only by its discoverer in private practice. She gained very slowly for the first month, but as the leafy month of June came, her progress was more rapid. On the eighth of September of the same year she had gained 30 pounds and was feeling as well as before sickness. Eight years have passed away and we find her today, a plump, healthy woman in middle life, who is never so happy as when telling what Rodolph's Medical Discovery has done for her. There are thousands of cases today, wasting away with terrible disease, that might be saved by timely and persistent use of Rodolph's Discovery, in conjunction with Rodolph's Emulsion, tested and perfected by regular physicians, is at present almost universally prescribed by the profession where it is known.

HUNTING ASTEROIDS.

Astronomical Sport That Is Being Robbed of Part of Its Pleasure.

There was a time when the hunting of asteroids was the athletic sport with which the tired astronomer refreshed his mind and muscles. Wearied with prolonged calculations as to the weight of a ton of coals on the surface of Jupiter or the density of beer on the surface of the sixth moon of Uranus and with his right arm and fingers cramped and numbed from the excessive use of chalk and blackboard, the astronomer would take his telescope and in the bright, crisp winter night stalk the timid asteroid through the starry jungles of the skies.

It was not often that he made a successful bag. Sometimes he would hunt night after night for weeks before capturing a single asteroid, but he was always buoyed up by the hope of game, and when he did bring down an asteroid with his breechloading reflector, his small but handy refractor, and was enabled to make a present of its elements to a favorite fellow astronomer he was indeed a proud and happy man.

But this fine old astronomical sport is at an end. The asteroid trapper with his photographic trap is abroad, and there is every reason to believe that in the course of a very few years at the furthest every existing asteroid will have been captured.

The method of the trapper is as simple as it is unsportsmanlike. He sets his camera at nightfall and goes home to his family until the following morning. A clockwork attachment gives a motion to the camera identical with the apparent motion of the fixed stars, so that the images of the latter appear to vary their places on the sensitive plate.

When, however, the trapper finds a faint but prolonged line of light extending over the plate, he knows that it is the trail of an asteroid, and he at once proceeds to complete its capture by giving it a name and calculating its elements.

The unsuspecting asteroids who had long ago grown shy of the telescope have not yet discovered the existence of the camera traps, and they are captured in alarming numbers. It is quite usual for a trapper to report the capture of four or five asteroids in a single night.

It is true that he rarely makes any distinction between the traces made by an asteroid and the marks on the plate due to imperfections in the emulsion or to scratches made during development. In his greed he treats all marks as asteroids that come to his trap, and there can be no doubt that a certain proportion of the asteroids recently named and given a place in the solar system have no existence outside of the photographic plate, where the trapper fancied that he had detected their trail.

Still it is evident that the traps are nightly capturing an enormous number of asteroids, and unless something is done for their preservation this variety of celestial game will sooner or later become as extinct as the American buffalo. To the average man it may seem to be a matter of very little consequence how asteroids are captured, but to those who are familiar with astronomers and who have their welfare and that of their wives and families at heart the prospect that legitimate asteroid hunting is about to become impossible is alarming.

If the tired astronomer can no longer keep up his health and spirits by beating the Milky Way for asteroids his health must inevitably suffer. Physicians are agreed that astronomy, if habitually indulged in, is peculiarly exhausting to the nerves. Indeed the confirmed and excessive astronomer is invariably irritable and quarrelsome, even in spite of the tonic influence of asteroid hunting.

If that resource should no longer be open to him, his condition will be simply pitiable, and such a thing as an astronomer home will be utterly unknown. The astronomer's only recreation will be found in contradicting the theories and denying the discoveries of other astronomers, and the meeting of an astronomical society would be a scene of wild uproar mingled with flying slates and lumps of chalk.—Washington Star.

The Age of the Earth.

The earth's age, like that of the proverbial spinster, must, I suppose, be deemed uncertain, or at least as in the case of the census paper we must allow a fair margin for probabilities. The geologists on the one hand are supposed to make very big drafts indeed on the bank over which Father Time presides; while the physicists on the other hand insist on more moderate demands being formulated. The latest explorer in this field of inquiry is Mr. Clarence King, a well known American geologist, who seems to lean to the side of the physicists in this matter. Of course everybody starts with the earth as a gaseous mass and everybody gets to the earth as a cooling globe, which is certain in time to become a burnt out cinder like the moon.

From researches on the effects of heat and pressure as applied to a cooling orb, Mr. King concludes that Lord Kelvin's estimate of the earth's age is very near the mark. According to Mr. King the age of our world is to be set down as not exceeding some 24,000,000 years, which, I venture to say, is so entirely unthinkable a number that nobody may feel intellectually perturbed if a few millions more be added or a few millions be subtracted from the amount.—Dr. Andrew Wilson in London Illustrated News.

The Beauty of a Persian Cat.

Perhaps the most peculiar fancy of travelers abroad is that of carrying from Persia the blooded cats that are so hard to domesticate. However, as a up town housekeeper exclaims, "C course one is a little afraid of them, but they do look stylish in a handsome library!"—New York Times.

Always Somebody to Complain.

There is always one discontented soul to lament over improvements, like the Scotchman who complained of the fresh water that had been introduced into the city. "Ah, but it's no like the old; it neither smells nor tastes?"—Exchange.

Sympathetic Inks.

Rabelais compiled a curious list of inks of a sympathetic nature, which were largely in vogue in his days. In his book entitled "Pantagruel," he makes his readers acquainted with Pantagruel's exploits in trying to decipher the invisible characters of a letter which a Parisian female had written to Pantagruel. "He held it up before the fire," says Rabelais, "to see if it was written with spirits of ammonia mixed with water. Then he placed it in water to discover if the writing had not been done with sirup of tithymal. When this would not work, he held it over a candle, which would have brought out the characters had they been written with the juice of white onions. By rubbing a part of it with nut oil he tried to find whether it had not been written with the sap of a fig tree. And if frog's blood had been used in the place of ink the milk from the breast of a woman suckling her firstborn daughter would have betrayed the secrets of that letter."

While at Rabelais' time during the seventeenth century French people adhered strongly to the belief that sympathetic inks of this character could be and were used, they are now in high feather over the discovery of a luminous ink by one of their countrymen. This ink makes it possible for letters to be read in the dark. One of the French journals recently gave the recipe for this ink. A phosphorescent compound can be obtained by calcinating carbonates of chalk with sulphur.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Old Timers on the Ohio River.

The Ohio river steambreak captain of 35 years ago has never been equaled in point of assumed dignity by anything except the modern postoffice clerk and the officers of the "mosquito fleet" during the war. When he came on board and the mate took his place at the bell with the roustabouts ready to haul in the gangplank, one could imagine that about all that was admirable in the universe was about to move out. And it was a quaint picture, with merry and home-like features.

The old timer along the banks of the Ohio loves to talk of the good old days only to bewail the degeneracy of the times. He never tires of telling of the exploits of the Boston, Boston, Wild Wagoner, Lady Franklin, Alice Pike and a score of other familiar names. What if the old timers were profane? The natives along the shores expected it. When the steamer of 30 years ago rounded to for the purpose of taking on wood, the poor devil who saved the wood just as firmly expected a cursing as he did a salutation. The wood was too blank long, too blank short and too blank green. Everything was wrong. In fact, the stamp of brutality pervaded every transaction and all intercourse. But it was not a spirit of mutuality. It was their way—the way of the tribes. It was as natural for an Ohio river steambreak officer to swear as it was for him to hit a deckhand with a board or as it is for a dude to look silly.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Wendell Phillips as a Lecturer.

Wendell Phillips as a lecturer, and apart from his extraordinary power as a convention orator on occasions, was quite the most interesting, the most convincing, the most polished and delightful platform speaker that America has produced. He owed his success to his wit, to the most felicitous and incisive vocabulary, to the most melodious and entrancing voice and to his perfect command of himself and all his resources. He was never slovenly. He always brought his best thought most carefully arranged to his audience, and he never met an audience, even one hostile to him and his opinions, that he could not at length subdue to his potent influence. Nothing was left to chance.

He would no more have produced an unfinished lecture than a great artist would have exhibited an unfinished picture. He respected his audience, and the audience always felt this. The sympathy that he gained from it, even when it disagreed with him, was the more remarkable because he never, or rarely ever, improvised. Yet he had such consummate art that he seemed to be improvising, the golden words apparently dropping freshly coined from the brilliant mint of his mind. He was eloquent without a single burst of cheap rhetoric. And of all orators on the platform he was the most convincing and plausible for the hour.—Charles Dudley Warner in Harper's.

Orchids in Guiana.

In paddling up the smaller rivers of Guiana the visitor is struck with the beauty and variety of the orchids and other epiphytes perched on every limb and branch above his head. Coming from a temperate climate, where only mosses, lichens and perhaps a fern or two can live under such circumstances, he sees great arums with rosettes of leaves six or eight feet in diameter, crowded groups of hard leaved tillandsias, mistletoe-like bunches of rhipsalis, orchids, ferns and mosses, all struggling for places where they can find room to enjoy life and propagate their species.

In the dense gloom of the forest, where the branches interlace with each other, they cannot secure enough light, but wherever the continuity is broken by river or savannah the trees on the borders are decorated with a wealth of these interesting plants. From the river visible but a sloping bank of foliage is visible, but by paddling through the outer screen which comes down into the water, a very pretty scene is revealed overhead. Although the direct rays of the sun are shut out, there is generally sufficient light for the epiphytes, and here they give quite a festive appearance to what would otherwise be a tangle of bare limbs and branches.—Longman's Magazine.

Well Fared.

"I should think you would feel very cheap," said the spendthrift's father at the close of an hour's lecture.

"I would, father," returned the lad, "if you hadn't given me to understand that I was so very costly."—Harper's Bazar.

Reasonable Living at the Fair.

While so many people are hesitating over a visit to the World's fair on account of the expense, the testimony of a tolerably experienced and sagacious man of this city may help some to make up their minds. He went with his wife and spent something over a week at the fair, paying out about $80 besides railway fare.

The hotel where they had expected to stop was so recently finished that the plaster was still damp, and they wisely declined to sleep there. They had no trouble in getting suitable quarters, paying $2.50 a day for a large double chamber with a bathroom attached. They took their meals at a restaurant and found the prices about the same as at the most expensive of the restaurants in this city. For 50 cents one could get a fair meal. Their midday meal they took at the fair grounds, where the prices were higher, but not extortionate. In the opinion of this visitor there is no reason why any one should fail to get comfortable accommodations as easily and as cheaply as in other large cities. He gave enthusiastic pictures of the fair, and especially of the German and French exhibits, the unity and skillful arrangement of which contrasted singularly with the go-as-you-please methods of the English.—Springfield Republican.

Imprisoned Miners. Exam Out.

Fifty-eight miners dripping wet and much the worse for a very singular and remarkable experience underground, crawled from the mouth of the old slope of the Marshall mine and seemed to be generally satisfied that they had been able to find a way out. The men were threatened with imprisonment, and but for the old workings would have had a siege.

The engine at the Marshall broke down suddenly, stopping the cages about the middle of the shaft, which is 200 feet deep, and imprisoning all of the 58 men at work. They had no way of exit with the exception of walking a mile and a half under ground to the old slope which had very fortunately been connected with the Marshall by an underground tunnel about a year ago.

This they all set out to do, and upon emerging from the mouth of the old slope they were very much "drowned out" from having been obliged to wade and swim through water and mud four to six feet deep. The experience is said to have been anything but pleasant.—Louisville Cor. Colorado Sun.

Kidnaped by Indians.

It is just 10 years since the small children of Thomas Schless, a boy and girl, were lost at Medford, this state, while on an errand for their mother, and all hope of finding them was given up by their parents, as neighbors searched the woods for two days without a trace of them. It was supposed that they had been destroyed by wild animals. It seems now that they were not lost, but stolen by Indians. The boy recently escaped and has been working on a farm near Mishicot. He speaks the Indian language fluently, but very little English, and it is only through words dropped here and there to his employer, who happened to be acquainted with his folks, that he finally recognized him. His father arrived yesterday from Medford. The boy says he knows where his sister is, and she will also probably be found. The boy was 5 and the girl 7 years old when they disappeared.—Wisconsin Cor. Philadelphia Ledger.

Imprisoned in Their Cyclone Pit.

In Hart county, Ga., there lives a family by the name of Finley, who dug a storm pit in the front yard. They fitted it up with heavy doors, ventilation tubes and furniture to make it comfortable for day's abode if necessary. With the indications of an approaching cyclone Monday the family retired to the underground quarters. When the storm subsided, they found that some immovable obstruction had been blown across the door of the stormhouse, and they were prisoners. Finally the neighbors in searching for their bodies, supposing them all to be dead, removed a great tree that had fallen across the door, and the family were rescued in time to save their lives.

The Curfew in Canada.

The ringing of the curfew bell is to be revived in the cities and towns of Canada. Under the provisions of the new law, or rather of the ancient law revived, all persons under the age of 17 years are expected to make for home at the first tap of the bell. The idea is to force children off the streets nights and to keep them within the benign influences of the family circle, rather than to allow them to learn devilry in the company of evil associates. The law is universally applauded in Canada, and the brightest hopes are entertained of its beneficial effect on the young.—Chicago Herald.

An Incident at the National Capital.

The two daughters of Jeff Davis, Mrs. Hayes and Winnie Davis, visited the national capital Sunday to view the wall paintings in the room of the committee on agriculture. As children Jefferson, Jr., and Mrs. Hayes acted as models for the Cupids in the painting. The doors were locked, and there was no one around who had a key, so the captain of the capitol police burst in the doors for the women to see the works of art. I was a witness.—Cor. ## The New England Assembly.

On Thursday, July 13, the fourteenth annual session of the New England Chautauque Sunday School Assembly opens for sixteen days at the Lakeview grounds. The program this year is full to the brim with good things. There will be ten first class concerts, some thirty lectures by eminent men, twenty gymnastic lessons, five readers and humorists, the Hindoo wonder worker in magic feats, normal Bible instruction, children's classes, Scotch soloist, boy banjoist, Weber quartet, temperance addresses, college songs, tableaux, round tables, Roma hand concerts, Grand Army and Grange days, great gold medal oratorical contest (nine contestants), etc., etc. Prof. Charles E. Boyd of Cambridge will again be the popular musical director. Hawaii will be finely illustrated. T. V. Powderly will give the address on Labor day.

Great modern inventors, Steam and Electricity, Elias Howe and the Sewing Machine, Eli Whitney and the Cotton Gin, The Steamboat, Robert Fulton, Railways and Locomotives, George Stevenson, Anecdotes, The Railways of Today, Edison, and other lectures, by Hon. George Makepeace Towle. Other lectures by eminent men will be given.

No other known program in the world can compare with the Chautauque Assembly idea for thorough enjoyment and profit. The first night, with its fine concert, illuminations and fireworks, no doubt will be a success. The sixteen day session can be taken in for a $2 course ticket, and one can live cheaply in a tent or room on the grounds. Single days admission 25 cents. Write Samuel Cochran, Lakeview, South Framingham, for further particulars.

Lawn Tennis Tournament.

The Third Annual Tournament of the Longwood Cricket Club for singles, under the auspices of the U. S. N. L. T. A., will be held on the grounds of the Club, at Longwood, on Monday, July 17, and following days.

At this Tournament the Longwood Challenge Cup is offered by the Club. Mr. F. H. Hovey, who won the cup in 1892, will be called on to defend his title to it for 1893 against the winner of the Tournament. The cup will become the property of any one winning it for three (not necessarily consecutive) years. Mr. E. L. Hall won the cup in 1891.

In addition to the Challenge Cup, first, second and consolation prizes will be given; first prize to the winner of the Tournament, second prize to the runner-up, and a consolation prize to be contested for by all players defeated in their first match played.

All matches will be three in five advantage sets, except consolation, which will be two in three advantage sets.

Entries will be received up to 4 p. m., Saturday, July 15. Entries and all other communications in regard to the Tournament should be addressed to P. E. Presbrey, at National Bank of Redemption, Boston, Mass. Referee, Dr. James Dwight.

Newspaper Men and the Fair.

The following letter and comment is from the Chicago News-Record:

I am pleased to see your manly defense of the country editor in his relation to the World's fair. Your remarks apply with equal force to editors in general, outside the larger cities. I have published matter pertaining to the fair which could have been billed at $1,000 were the fair a private instead of a public enterprise. The 4-column article in this week's paper defending the management against charges of incompetency would cost any other institution $30, not including what I paid the writer for preparing the article. In the light of such services I agree with you in the assertion that it would be short sighted for the management to curtail the privileges of a class that has labored so assiduously for the success of the great fair. Yours truly, E. A. Stowe.

We do not use the mild epithet suggested by our Michigan friend. "Short sighted" is altogether too conservative a term to apply to the policy hinted at. To curtail to any extent the privileges of the country editor would in our opinion be the apotheosis of meanness, treachery and ingratitude.

THE BOULEVARD HEARING.

The hearing on taking land for the new boulevard was remarkable in the unanimity of sentiment among all who appeared. They all favored the scheme, although, as is always the case, there were objections from some of the property owners affected. No great public improvement was ever projected, however, without inconveniencing a greater or less number of persons, and the fact that only four property owners found fault with the lay out shows that the great majority were well satisfied, and that the preliminary work has been carefully done.

The hearing was an interesting one, and seemed to reflect the general sentiment of the citizens, who have great hopes of this improvement, in its effects upon the future development of the city. Many important features were brought out, such as the boulevard being the connecting line between the park system of Boston proper, and the Metropolitan Park System which is to include the proposed parks in Auburndale, Weston and Waltham. This will make the boulevard an important thoroughfare, and will help to assure its success. The great extent of territory thus opened up can not help being popular with those seeking homes in the suburbs, as the land is the most desirable in Newton for building purposes.

The hearing was admirably managed by Mayor Fenno, all sides were given full opportunity to speak, and perfect fairness was shown to all. Real or imaginary grievances could be aired at as great length as the possessors desired, and yet not one of the speakers had any objections to make to the boulevard itself.

This measure marks an important departure in Newton, as heretofore there has been no concerted action among owners of real estate, but each one has laid out streets to suit himself, and has grudgingly given the smallest portion of land possible, with the result that although many of the streets have come to be popular thoroughfares, there is not one of even respectable width. It shows the effect of the policy of individualism where carried out to its logical consequences, and furnishes a strong argument for the believers in socialism, when public matters are managed from a public and not from a private standpoint. We have followed the worst possible plan, hitherto, for the development of a city, beginning from the early days of the town. The reason for the narrowness of the old streets is that in old days no one ever expected that Newton would ever be anything but a farming town, although it is surprising that the old residents left their main highways from town to town leading to Boston in such a restricted state. But for years it has been evident that the city was destined to be a populous one, and yet the new streets were laid out on the same economical pattern as the old ones, so that we can not justly cast aspersions on the old settlers.

With the new boulevard making a wide thoroughfare through the city, a more enlightened policy ought to be begun, especially as some of the older streets will soon have to be widened at great expense. The preliminary work takes a good deal of time, and another hearing for the benefit of the property owners whose residences were not found in time to serve a legal notice, will be held on the 24th. As most of these are outsiders it is not probable that the hearing will be anything more than a formal one, and after that the city council can take action on the matter.

The fire committee seem to think it is an unprecedented thing for the City Council to decide against a committee, but old members of the City Government could tell them differently. It may not be the usual course but it has often been done, and committees have lived through it and in time been happy again. There was the report of the committee in favor of lighting the whole city by electricity, when electric lights were furnished by a rival of the gas company. The committee voted in favor of electricity, but the City Council decided against them. Then there was the famous contest over the police signal system, which still lingers in the minds of the City Marshal; the committee voted in favor of the Municipal system and the City Council decided to buy the Gamewell system. There are numberless less familiar instances, but the present fire committee can feel satisfied that they are in excellent company, and that other men have gone through their experience and are still honored and respected citizens. The City Council can take a broader view of a situation than a committee, and are less apt to be affected by any bias of personal feeling. Just now there is a curious muddle over the new fire alarm boxes. It was shown Monday night that the committee had ordered the Municipal boxes, without waiting for the City Council to authorize them to do so. This was not a proper thing to do, of course, and if the members had had a longer experience in city affairs they would not have taken such hasty action, but as it is no harm has been done, as the company in question has sufficient experience in legislative affairs to know that such an order was not legal. Monday night the aldermen passed an order directing the committee to buy the Gamewell boxes, but at the request of the committee it was afterwards rescinded and referred back to the committee, so that there would not be such a dull thud about the affair. It is to be hoped the committee will be able to get things straightened out, in the near future. The majority of the board are evidently of the opinion that it is not wise for the city to try any experiments with regard to our fire alarm system, which has so far worked perfectly.

THERE is something being said about the Councilship from this district, in the event of Mr. Leeson deciding to retire. But the mere hint of such a thing has brought out a strong pressure upon him to accept another term, as the prominent party men realize the importance of keeping such a man in such a position. The Council ceased to be a political issue, largely through the influence of Mr. Leeson and his friends upon the board, and questions that come before it are sure of a fair and impartial hearing. The Council is not in politics as much as formerly, and by so much it is regaining public respect. It may be a useless appendage to our state government and that its work could be done by other branches, as in other states, but as long as we have it, the wise thing is to make it respected, and that can only be done by choosing men of high character. The office entails a good deal of hard work, and the occupants get but little honor, but the work is of a highly important nature, and in past years we have seen the folly of making it a sort of hospital for those who have failed in securing more brilliant political prizes. For these reasons Mr. Leeson should be prevailed upon to serve another year, and the Council would certainly have difficulty in finding a wiser leader than he has been.

ATTORNEY GENERAL PILLSBURY has signified his willingness to accept the nomination for the governorship, and he is the first choice of many Republicans, who believe in getting the best man possible for such an important office. The second choice is Lt. Gov. Wolcott, who has grown in public favor by his many performance of his duties the present year, and who is one of the best officials we have had in recent years. It is in part due to his influence that the petty issues fathered by David Hall Rice have subsided, and the latter gentleman has dropped out of public notice. With so many aspirants after the first place on the ticket, the contest is likely to be a very warm one. Mr. Greenhalge has many supporters, but his habit of putting his foot in his mouth, as one critic of his speeches describes it, has injured him with the people. Mr. Hart's popularity is not of a character to spread out over the state, and Mr. Whiting is too far away from the centre of politics. There is some talk of Congressman Cogswell, and some mention of ex Senator Dawes, but is probably more complimentary than real.

THE records of the postoffice department show that during the first four months of the present administration ending July 4, the total number of presidential postmasters appointed was 434, against 578 appointed during the first four months of Mr. Harrison's administration, and 323 during the first four months of Mr. Cleveland's former administration. During the first four months of the present administration there were 5730 fourth-class postmasters appointed on resignations and death, and 3226 on removals, making a total of 8956. The number appointed on resignations and death during the corresponding period of Mr. Harrison's administration was 8640, and on removals 7400, making a total of 11,100.

WATERTOWN may not have any public parks worthy of the name, but she has secured a position on the Metropolitan Park Commission for one of her citizens, Mr. A. L. Richards. There is a good deal of surprise over the selection of a Watertown man, when other towns are so much more interested in the matter, and have set aside scores of acres for parks, while Watertown has only set aside a few feet on one bank of the Charles, and given it a name almost as big as the park itself. Perhaps, however, Mr. Richards will prove himself to be a man of sufficiently broad tendencies to justify his appointment.

THE Republican convention is called for October 7th, an unusually late date, and Mayor Bancroft of Cambridge is named as the chairman, with Governor Robinson as chairman of the committee on resolutions. Evidently it is to be a short campaign, but there will be all the time necessary, and the experience of the past few years has not been such as to show much benefit from too much time between the convention and election day.

HERE is a query that some one should give some thought. When alterations are made in a city ordinance why are not the police patrolmen directly notified of such change? They are expected to be thoroughly conversant with the city ordinances, but no direct official notification is placed in their hands when a change affecting an ordinance is made.

THE residents of Elm street are before the City Council with petitions to have their street widened. It is one of the narrowest streets in the city and is so dangerous on account of the car tracks that it is avoided as much as possible by all who drive in that vicinity.

Lasell Notes.

Among those who have recently registered at the World's Fair are Miss Anna Thomson, a former teacher at Lasell, Mrs. Bidwell, widow of Rev. Ira Bidwell, Lelia M. Briggs, who is the daughter of Geo. W. Briggs, a former principal, and was born at Lasell, Mr. and Miss Smith, nephew and niece of Edward Lasell, Miss Mary Beckwith of Hon. John, Miss Anna Christie and Miss Sallie Jacobs both from Auburndale.

Miss Elizabeth Merriam of South Framingham, Mass., who has met with such success during the past year in her stereopticon lectures on "Rambles East and West" and "Bible Lands, Present and Past," is an old Lasell girl. The press speaks very highly of her ability as a lecturer. The Cambridge Chronicle says: "Although only a recent candidate for honors in her lecture, Miss Merriam ranks with the most popular lecturers of the day."

Housekeepers Should Remember.

The Government Chemists, after having analyzed all the principal brands of baking powder in the market, in their reports placed the "Royal" at the head of the list for strength, purity and wholesomeness; and thousands of tests all over the country have further demonstrated the fact that its qualities are, in every respect, unrivaled.

Avoid all baking powders sold with a gift or prize, or at a lower price than the Royal, as they invariably contain alum, lime or sulphuric acid, and render the food unwholesome.

OLD TIME SMUGGLING.

How the Business of Cheating the Government Has Degenerated.

Instead of a run by night in an open boat from the French coast to the shores of Hampshire, Sussex, Essex or Kent, we have to content ourselves in these prosaic times with petty attempts to cheat the revenue, for which women are more frequently responsible than men. Such an incident once happened at Belfast, where an Irishwoman named Mary McMahon was brought to the police court charged with keeping whisky on premises which were unlicensed. Sergeant Jones deposed that he went into the defendant's house and found a woman named Grayton, who was seated before the fire. Upon searching her the sergeant came upon 36 bottles of porter and two bottles of whisky stowed away in her petticoats. To the inexpressible amusement of the spectators the sergeant produced the petticoats in court. Each petticoat was made of coarse sack and was girt with innumerable pockets, and all of them lined with soft material so as to keep the bottles from clinking and possibly breaking each other.

Unhappily for poor Mary McMahon, the petticoats, whisky and porter were confiscated by the relentless police magistrate, and the chief delinquent was sent to jail for three months. I entertain no doubt that the hearty sympathies of nine-tenths of those present in court went with Mary McMahon to limbo. There has, we fear, never been a time in Scotland or Ireland when surreptitious potheen and mountain dew which never paid a lawfee to the state exchequer did not, like stolen kisses, taste the sweeter because of their clandestine birth.

He, however, who would find amusing stories about running the blockade and smuggling contraband of war through an enemy's lines may turn with advantage to many transatlantic magazines which teem with articles revealing the illicit trade carried on during the American civil war. Ladies of the Belle Boyd and Mrs. Greenhow type were caught trying to make their way down south with countless boxes of copper caps and packages of quinine stitched into their crinolines. Captain Roberts, better known under his real name, Hobart Pasha, tells us that he smuggled great quantities of Coddie's pills into Secession, but that the southerners, differing in taste from the lamented Colonel Fred Burnaby, would have none of them.

A certain young lady, who appeared to be in delicate health, took ship at New York for Havana, whence she hoped to run the blockade into Mobile. Overpowered by seasickness during the voyage, she could not prevent the stewardess from discovering that she was girt round about with linen bandages, among which many costly drugs were stowed. Such is the complexion to which modern smuggling has come at last. Our coast guards have no preventive duties to perform, and their only reason d'être is to watch that no foreign foe makes a descent on our coasts. The Dark Hatteries of the past are as dead as the pirates of the Captain Cleveland order, and in their stead petty larceny revenue cheaters like Mary McMahon have sprung into existence.—London Society.

She Fed the Dog.

An awfully swagger girl came into an up town drug store the other day. She led a tiny pug by a slender silver chain. Her hat was all a-bloom with purple flowers, and an Alsatian bow of purple ribbon was tied about puggie's neck so big as to give the impression that there was more bow than dog. Mildly seated herself on a stool in front of the soda fountain and tenderly lifted his small canines to another seat beside her. The order was given for chocolate ice cream soda. When it was served, this rather remarkable young woman conveyed a teaspoonful of the cream first to her own lips and then to puggie's. This process was repeated until not a drop was left.

It developed during this interesting episode that the dog's name was Nig, and to see Nig blink his eyes and lick his small chops was very funny indeed.

"Ugh!" exclaimed a matter of fact woman looking on. "How that girl can put that spoon back in her mouth after that dog has licked it passes my comprehension. I think it is perfectly disgusting."

But Nig only blinked the more knowingly, doubtless thanking the good Lord that all women were not made alike.—Chicago News.

Charmed by a Snake.

As I was several miles out in the country, riding horseback from Pomona to Etiwanda, I saw a jack rabbit standing still only a few feet from the road. I drove up close to the animal, which still refused to scamper away. On the contrary, the rabbit stood or sat transfixed to the spot, though making a constant nervous, shuddering motion, as if anxious to get away, but at the same time being held to the spot. I was surprised that the rabbit did not flee at the approach of myself and horse, and when I looked a little sharper I saw a large rattlesnake coiled up under some bushes, his head uplifted, about six feet from the rabbit.

I shall never forget the scene. The rabbit was looking with indescribable eagerness straight at the slowly approaching snake and heeded nothing else. I dismounted, and seizing a long stick by force pushed the rabbit away, when the snake instantly swelled with rage and sounded its rattles. I wounded the snake and then dispatched it. The rabbit for a second or two seemed benumbed and was hardly capable of motion. That was over quickly, and the animal hopped away.—Pomona Progress.

—Chester, son of Mr. Alex. Griswold, is seriously ill at his home on Lowell street.

—Officer N. F. Bosworth found four dynamite blasting cartridges last Saturday, part of the lot stolen from Contractor Muldoon. They were hidden under some shrubbery near the depot. Some of these dangerous explosives were used the night preceding the Fourth with a degree of recklessness quite beyond the usual standard of youthful independence Day rioters.

—The Universalist church will be closed during the month of August.

—Miss Emma A. Sylvester has returned from an eight weeks stay at the World's Fair.

—The arrest and conviction of several of a gang of young burglars who were operating in Waltham and vicinity of late, forms the nucleus of some interesting facts which were published in the Boston papers this week.

—R. W. Gilder, Esq., editor of the Century Magazine, has sent to Post Commander A. T. Sylvester, Post 62, G. A. R., a set of "Battles and Leaders of the Civil War" for the use of the Massachusetts Battalion of the 40th New York Volunteers.

—Mr. Gilder's father was captain of the 40th and the old members of that regiment have a very kind and loyal love of their old chaplain who did much for their comfort during their term of service, which was ended by that dread disease, small pox, at Brandy, Va., April 13, 1864.

—Last Saturday the eighth of July, the "Karma Koterie," the well known Emerson Club, spent the day in historic Concord; chartering the barge "Mayflower" for the occasion, through the kindness of an influential literary man, giving the party equipped with introductory letters and were therefore able to gain admittance to the house and grounds of Emerson, the School of Philosophy and other places that are usually closed to the long line of the public. From those they drove to —An alarm was rung in from box 35, Tuesday, for a fire in a wooden lumber shed in the rear of Milo Lucas' mill, off Washington street. Two adjoining structures of a like character caught, and the three were burned down. The chief damage was to the stock, the buildings being used for the storage of gutters, mouldings and finish. The damage is about $1500, partially covered by insurance. It is thought that the fire was accidentally set by children playing with matches.

—The aldermen have decided to abate a portion of the betterments assessed on the Mague meadow drain improvement, and an order was passed Monday night authorizing the city treasurer to give receipts in full and providing for a reduction of from 75 to 33 1/2 per cent., each case being considered separately and the abatement made as nearly as possible with a view to determining the actual benefit conferred by the improvement.

—A fire inquest was held in the police court room Monday afternoon for the purpose of investigating the cause of the blaze at Martin Manning's house on Lexington street, in the Auburndale district. The police found a condition of affairs at the house which they considered of a sufficiently suspicious character to warrant an investigation. Certain household articles, it was thought, had been got in readiness for a hasty removal. Manning made a statement at the inquest. He said that he had a dream, and in it appeared to see the house on fire. He awoke and then smelled smoke. After that he was so confused he could not remember what he did. The insurance companies holding the risks on the house and contents were represented by Agent Williams of Waltham. He said that there were two policies, one on the house for $1000 and another on the furniture for $700. Testimony was presented to endeavor to show that the amount of insurance more than covered the value of the property. The house, it was shown, cost to build about $600. The hearing was closed, and Judge Kennedy reserved his decision.

—Mr. and Mrs. George A. Walton were recent guests at the Bellevue Hotel, North Conway.

—Mr. George Eddy arrived home from Europe this week and received a cordial welcome from numerous friends.

—Mr. Willis H. Bancroft has bought a lot of land on Ware street and will commence at once the erection of a house there.

—The engagement of Mr. George T. Lincoln of the Boston City Press Association, to Miss Adelaide Tremblay, of Montpelier, Vt., is announced.

—The Allen school had over one hundred students the past year, and sent three to Harvard and three to the Institute of Technology. There were 15 instructors.

—The city engineer of Newton has been offered a position on the State Water Commission, as first assistant to Engineer F. P. Stearns of the State Board of Health, who has charge of the work. The place is a very desirable one, as Mr. Noyes will be second in command and will have a force of some fifteen assistants under him, and the offer shows Mr. Noyes' high standing in his profession.

—The salary will be much larger than the city engineer of Newton receives, and it is not surprising that Mr. Noyes has decided to accept it. His going will be a loss to Newton, and it will be difficult to find an engineer who will be willing to give so much time to the city and work as hard as Mr. Noyes has done.

—At a meeting held last Tuesday in Knights of Honor Hall, of Boynton Lodge 20, U. O. L. L., the following officers were installed: Worthy Noble Lady, Mrs. T. A. Percival; Worthy Vice Lady, Mrs. M. A. Burnett; Chaplain, Mrs. L. H. Jordan; Recording Sec., Mrs. E. G. Willson; Financial Sec., Mrs. H. N. Kingsbury; Treasurer, Mrs. L. C. Pettigrew; Conductor, Mrs. J. L. Clarke; Mrs. E. C. Coker, Mrs. E. L. Clark; Junior Warden, Mrs. L. J. Fuller; Guardian, Mrs. E. Kaupp; R. H. Assistant, Mrs. G. B. Kimball; L. H. Assistant, Mrs. G. B. Kimball; Mrs. E. C. Coker, Mrs. E. L. Clark; Investigating committee, Mrs. Mary E. Clark, Mrs. H. N. Kingsbury, Mrs. L. J. Fuller; Representatives, Mrs. M. E. Clark and H. C. Cole; Relief Committee, Mrs. E. G. Willson, Mrs. L. C. Pettigrew, Mrs. M. A. Burnett, Mrs. G. A. Libby. At the close of the ceremonies a collation was served. A number of visitors were present and enthusiastic speeches complimentary to the lodge were made by the installing officer, Sister Bedell, and Sister Maxwell of her suite. It was an occasion of enjoyment to all present.

—Miss Mille and Master Robbie Dresser went to Scituate for a short visit.

—Mr. and Mrs. L. K. Harlow have been entertaining Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Fitt at their summer home at North Falmouth.

—Mr. and Mrs. C. B. McGee are sojourning at Lake George and Saratoga.

—There are letters at the postoffice for Mrs. Geo. Cummings, F. N. Johnson, William Lumbert, Mr. Whipple.

—Miss Sallie Morse of Brookline is the guest of her brother, Mr. James Morse.

—Mr. Robert Seaver has been enjoying a week's vacation.

—Mr. F. A. Kelly of New York City, N. Y., has rented Mrs. C. A. Fuller's house on Chestnut street.

—Miss Vivian Norris has been visiting her grandparents.

—Mrs. Fuller has been in town this week.

—The Raymond & Whitcomb Exposition Tours.

That the great bulk of World's Fair travel from New England goes through the hands of Messrs. Raymond & Whitcomb, is not surprising. Daily special trains of elegant Pullman vestibuled cars, an unexcelled dining-car service, and a hotel that has no superior in Chicago, form a combination that fills all requirements. The special trains land their passengers within a block of the Raymond & Whitcomb Grand, which is a permanent structure of the best class and an entrance to the Exposition grounds is directly opposite the hotel.

While many of a party are called for the coming months, there are some vacancies, as will be seen by an advertisement elsewhere. Send to Raymond & Whitcomb, 296 Washington street, Boston, for a descriptive book.

—The new house on Eliot avenue has been sold through the agency of Henry W. Savage for Mr. C. A. Tabor to Mr. Stillman, who will occupy it as a residence.

—Mr. C. E. Hatfield, who has been angling at Colasset, has gone to Portland for a short stay.

—Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Wyman and Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Whittlesey have returned from Edgartown, where they enjoyed a pleasant outing.

—Miss Sarah Allen has gone to Chicago and will visit the Columbian exposition.

—Mr. C. H. Hayes was a recent guest at the "Pemberton," Hull.

—A fire inquest to investigate the incendiary blazes in Newton Centre, July 4, was held in the police court room, Wednesday afternoon. Fifteen witnesses were examined, and it is said that the testimony failed to establish anything of importance and furnished insufficient evidence for the arrest of several suspects. Judge Kennedy reserved his decision. A report giving the verbatim testimony is being prepared and will be placed later in the hands of the city marshal. In the mean time, a special agent has been assigned to work on the case and every possible effort will be made by the authorities to locate the guilty parties.

THE WORLD'S Columbian Exposition.

The grandest Exposition the world has ever seen is now complete in every department. Nothing remains undisturbed.

The Raymond & Whitcomb Grand Hotel (Oscar G. Barron, Manager), at which our parties sojourn, is a permanent brick structure of the best class, only four stories in height, splendidly arranged, provided with every luxury and appointed with the best modern hotel, and elegantly furnished. Its situation, in a fashionable residence section of the city, near the Exposition grounds and exposed to the lake breezes, is unexcelled. Passengers are landed at a station only a single block distant, and an entrance to the Exposition grounds is directly opposite the hotel, while others are near at hand. All water used for drinking and cooking purposes is distilled and absolutely pure, and the purest Wisconsin ice is also used.

Daily special trains from the East, made up wholly of elegant vestibuled Pullman palace sleeping cars with dining cars, run through to the hotel without change.

While many parties for the coming months were long since filled, the following dates are still open to the public, early registration, however, being in all cases advisable:

July 15, 18, 22, 26, and 29.
August 4, 5, 12, 15, 19, 23, 25, 26 and 29.

We also have frequent trains including transportation, Pullman berth and meals only, without hotel accommodations.

PSYCHE.

Golden pinnas, purple eyed,
Floating down the airy tide
Whence there breathes a faint perfume
Nighting of the clover's bloom—
Hither, thither, flitting wing—
Up and down on tireless wing—
What the spell and whose the power
Thus to lure her, hour by hour.

Does her lover captive dwell
In some clover honey cell,
Whither after weary flights
She with folded wings alights?
By what mystery of speech
Does his voice her hearing reach?
By what augury or sign
Hung upon the grass or vine?

Who the lonely prisoner
In the clover calling her,
Bidding her to set him free—
Ending his captivity?
This young Cupid, stricken blind,
Shut a clover leaf behind,
Calling to the butterfly—
"Psyche, Psyche, here am I!"

—Frank D. Sherman in Youth's Companion.

NOT MURDER.

Imagine a mob of men as hungry as a pack of wolves whose frenzy has been fired by the scent of blood and in its midst a fellow being, bound hands and feet, with the noose of the lynchmen around his neck. I came suddenly upon such a scene in one of the settlements on the Rio Grande, whither I had journeyed from England to find a brother whom I had not seen for many years.

As I reined up my horse near the crowd and glanced over the exciting spectacle an involuntary cry left my lips as I recognized in the victim him whom I had come so far to see.

He saw and knew me instantly, and though no word came from him his pale, mute lips appealed to my heart for help. My appearance caused a hesitation on the part of the leaders.

I quickly learned that a stranger in those parts had been killed that morning near a small body of water a short distance from the settlement and that my brother had been caught in the very act of striking the deathblow. Not one of the spectators seemed to have any doubt of his guilt, but who is so hardened as to condemn his own brother?

I shuddered as I realized Almont's peril and in my own heart judged him innocent of any crime.

"He is my brother," I cried.
"Hark!" shouted one of the onlookers, "the brother of the murdered man is here for justice. Up with him, boys!"

"Hold," I commanded, rising in my stirrups as I spoke; "blood calls for blood. Let me have hold of that rope."

The mistake in my identity had suggested a way in which I might enable my brother to escape, and I resolved to attempt it at whatever risk. Fortunately there was little family resemblance between us.

Urging my horse forward, the crowd parted, allowing me to reach his side, when I dismounted, ostensibly to examine the slipping noose.

"It will do," I said loud enough to be heard by all. "Now help me to lift him on the back of my horse. We want to do this job in some shape."

Willings ones sprang to my assistance, but in the brief interval I cut the prisoner's bonds so that they held only by a thread and arranged the noose so that it could be thrown off as soon as his arms were free.

I knew few horses could match mine in speed, and once he had cleared the throng my brother would be comparatively safe.

He understood my intentions, and the moment we lifted him upon the horse he wrenched his arm free, threw off the noose, dropped into the saddle, and giving the animal a smart blow dashed through the crowd like a whirlwind, and in a few moments was beyond pursuit.

Of course there was loud reviling over his escape, but I appeared so anxious for his recapture that no blame was attached to me. To carry out the deception I had the body of the stranger carefully buried and remained in the place until I deemed it safe to depart.

It was nearly three months before I met my brother in London, whither he had fled, and then he thanked me with tears in his eyes for my daring assistance in his escape from the lynchers. To my surprise, however, he evaded the subject of the murder, saying simply that no crime had been committed. I did not feel like pressing the matter, so the affair was not mentioned again, though it has haunted my mind ever since. Last week my brother died with no kinder near him, and today's post has brought me a manuscript containing a startling revelation.

In justice to my brother's name, as well as my own satisfaction, I am prompted to give to the world the strangest confessions ever made. The following is his account as he wrote it for me:

"When this is read, I shall have passed beyond the tribunal of man, so I wish to impress upon you that I am about to record faithfully an experience which I sincerely hope will fall to the lot of no other person.

"I was alone in my room late one dark, stormy night when I heard a rap on the door, which I fancied at first was but the wind shaking it on its hinges. But it was repeated louder than before. I bade the applicant, whoever he might be, to come in, without looking up from the book which held my attention.

"A moment later the door was opened, and with the gust of wind which sent every light object in the room flying top-sy-turvy a man entered the apartment with quick, catlike steps.

"Pardon me for the unreasonable hour at which I call," he said in a clear, crisp tone, "but I suppose doctors get used to all sorts of calls."

"Certainly," I replied, I fear somewhat impatiently, as he had interrupted me at a time when I did not like to be disturbed. "What can I do for you?"

"Oh, I do not come for professional assistance," he hastened to say, evidently reading my thoughts. "Mine is strictly a business call. Are you at liberty for a few minutes?"

"Yes, but the hour is late, so I trust you will be as brief as possible."

"Dr. Barlow, how much are you worth?"

"Enough to made life comfortable for myself," I replied. "If you have no more important question than that, our interview might as well come to an end at once."

"Pardon me, I will come to business. As I told you, I am a professor of science, and I have made a discovery which is worth millions—yes, sir, millions.

"I need not tell you of the anxious days and sleepless nights it has cost me. No matter; I have succeeded at last, and you are the first man I have ever approached with my secret. I did not do that until I was satisfied you were the safest one I could find."

"As he spoke he opened a small bag which he carried and took out three or four vials to place upon the table.

"Education based upon scientific research," he remarked, "has made a startling advance within the past few years. But no man has gone further into the unfathomable depths than myself. You have a basin of water here. Pardon me if I appropriate it to my own use."

"I bowed in acquiescence, too much surprised to speak.

"He quickly unsealed one of the vials and poured its contents into the basin of water. Then from another he sifted a bluish colored powder upon the surface of the liquid, which no sooner had touched the other than it began to hiss, foam and sparkle until there came a report like a pistol shot, and a column of lurid flame leaped up to the ceiling. I started back with a cry of terror.

"Don't be alarmed," he assured me, with a smile; "the water will soon burn out."

"The fire soon began to grow pale and to diminish in height, when it finally died out altogether, and I saw that the basin was empty.

"How much do you think that secret is worth?" asked my visitor, still showing his white teeth between his parted lips.

"What do you mean?" I cried.
"Sit down and be composed, and I will quickly explain." Then as I sank into the nearest seat, at a loss what to do or say, he continued:

"Seeing as believing, so I have shown to you what I can do to impress upon you more deeply the power that I possess. You have seen that basin of water burn like so much oil, and now you will believe me when I tell you that I have unlocked one of nature's great secrets and that the key lies in that small vial!"

"His demoniacal smile as he spoke made me shudder.

"I do not understand you," I faltered. "If you mean that you can burn water—"

"Have I done it?" he cried. "Why, man alive! don't you realize the importance of that secret? In those vials are held the component agents able to separate the constituent parts of water and, freeing the same, set them at war with each other, which must result in combustion and total annihilation."

"Think of that and realize that I hold in my hand the destiny of the world. Let me throw ever so little of those wonderful properties into the Atlantic and dare you contemplate the result? In one instant a nucleus of fire would be formed to grow swiftly in size, separating the gases of water and feeding upon them until the shores of Europe and America would be wrapped in a sheet of flame."

"No deluge that ever drowned the world could extinguish the conflagration, but would rather transport the fiery legions to the very pillars of the heavens, and it would spread from shore to shore and from ocean to ocean, until it had in folded the globe in its seething embrace. Every creature of the sea, the air and the land would perish—ay, the earth itself would melt into fervent heat."

"During this startling speech he had worked himself into a fearful frenzy to fix his intent gaze upon me as he concluded with a light that burned into my inmost being. I felt I was in the presence of a madman.

"Oh, well," I said, with what calmness I could command, "we won't anticipate so dreadful a catastrophe as you so vividly describe. But it is evident you have made a remarkable discovery. I am anxious to know just how you accomplished it."

"Which is my secret," he said, with another smile, and I saw that my dispassionate speech had had a soothing effect upon him. The man was evidently sane except on that one subject.

"You are the most sensible man I have met," he soon resumed, "and I am going to impart enough of my secret to you so you will act with good faith in assisting me in a direction where I am powerless."

"It needs not my words to tell you that water is composed of two gases, hydrogen and oxygen, in parts as 2 to 1. United in that proportion these elements are impervious to fire. Every schoolboy knows that. But mix them in any other proportion, and heat, flame, combustion, are the immediate consequence."

"Now, I have discovered the key which unlocks the affinity holding together the constituent parts of water. A few grains of this powder are sufficient to dismember its warlike elements, when the funeral pyre of the human race is kindled as far as this planet is concerned."

"Impossible!" I could not help exclaiming. "God in his infinite wisdom never created a world so beautiful as this and then placed in the hands of its subjects the means of its destruction."

"Poor fool!" he said, compassionately. "You forget that the moon is but a fire extinguished world; that planets without number are the charred remains of what were once scenes of life and beauty; that the sun is a molten mass of heat; that he has said in his own word, in the end 'the heavens shall be folded together like a scroll, the elements to melt with fervent heat.'"

"You see this vial. It contains potassium. It needs not me to tell a man of your information the result when this is brought into contact with oxygen. It ignites instantly. This powder here, the secret of whose compound is known only to me, contains properties which instantly decompose the watery elements. The moment the oxygen is free the potassium ignites it, and the work of fiery destruction is begun.

"You betray a look of doubt. Perhaps you think that this action will be merely local—that the properties will quickly burn out, and in consequence the fire die for want of sustenance. If so, you err. The properties of this powder are self generating, and as long as the water lasts must of necessity continue their work of decomposition, the oxygen continually feeding the flames."

"Get me another basin of water. I want to demonstrate it more clearly to you."

"As he had done before, he turned the potassium into the basin and then sifted in a certain amount of the powder. The hissing and fuming quickly began, followed by a sharp report, when a column of fire again sprang up, which lasted until the water was consumed."

"You see, my first trial was no illusion," he said, turning to me. "What I have done once I can do every time."

"It is a terrible thing!" I exclaimed, with a shudder. "But why have you come to me?"

"Because the secret is worth much to me. But when I approach men they call me mad and will not listen. They will believe you, and when you have proved what I can do they will gladly pay my price. Then I will divide with you, and we both shall be rich, you to live at your ease and I to continue my investigations. Will you help me? and he caught me by the arm with a clutch I seem to feel now."

"Help you?" I asked in a husky voice. "Would you jeopardize the lives of the whole human race for a few paltry thousands? A man of your great intellect and research should be above—"

"You still doubt my ability to do what I claim?" he interrupted. "Perhaps in the open air you think I would fail? Come with me and I will astonish even you. See, the storm has cleared away, and the day is breaking."

"I was puzzled what to do. There was no one in the house upon whom I could call for assistance, but outdoors I might escape the man, whom, I confess, I feared. So I consented to accompany him."

"The morning light was fast dispelling the shadows of night and storm, and we had no difficulty in making our way to a little body of water quite hemmed in by the mountains and the forest. My companion, as if fearing I would attempt to escape, had not taken his gaze from me since we had left the house."

"There is a good place to test our work," he declared, pointing to a small pool of water formed in a depression of the earth by the late storm."

"Without waiting for my reply he threw some of the potassium and powder into the water. The result was startling to me, though I had anticipated the consequence."

"The report was deafening, and the flames seemed to leap to the sky, illuminating the night scene with a ghastly light, but startling as was the light of the burning water the appearance of my companion, who had seemed to be suddenly transformed into a demon, was more terrible."

"See, see!" he cried, dancing to and fro with fiendish glee, "it burns—will burn till the pool is dry. What do you think of my secret now? Do not I hold the key to all life? Oh, I feel like a god, and all men are but worms crawling at my feet! See, the flames leap higher and higher!"

"Now, let me drop the same agents which set that pool on fire into this lake, and the result will be the same. Aye, the same, only a million times more grand, for the fire will follow the river to the gulf and thence to the ocean, to envelop the entire world in its blazing sheet. What a sight for the gods to witness!"

"He gestulated fiercely and reached, one arm over the water, as if to drop the infernal powder upon its placid bosom, his wild looking figure lit up by the translucent glow of the burning pool. I gazed with awe upon him, realizing only too well the terrible earnestness of his tone."

"Wait!" I cried hoarsely, "you forget the money. Your secret is worth—"

"Bah! Who prates of money with a cringing world at his feet? he shrieked. They laugh at me. Now let their tears put out the flames my hand has kindled. See! The potassium, it fumes, hisses, dances upon the water! Now the pow—"

"Imagine who can the horror of my situation. The blood seemed to freeze in my veins. My limbs seemed paralyzed, but I quickly overcame my lethargy. The life of every being in the world was in my hands. Nerving myself for the blow, I told the mad scientist dead at my feet. At that moment the fire behind me expired. The world was saved."

"You know the rest. I was discovered in the act of dealing the fatal blow by men who could not understand the immeasurable deed I had done. You saved my life. In the sight of God I feel that I have committed no crime, but I shall die easier knowing that when I am gone the truth will be known to the world. My conscience is clear, and yet the secret has pointed in my every action like a finger of fire."—Tit-Bits.

The First Steam Cruiser.

It is generally known that the first steam driven vessel to cross the Atlantic was built in Canada. The information is not so general, however, that this same craft was subsequently converted into a cruiser and was the first steamship engaged in actual war.

The facts in the case are stated in "Johnson's Alphabet of First Things in Canada." The ship was the Royal William. She was built at the Cove, Quebec, in the winter of 1830-1, and during the season of 1832-3 plied between Quebec and Halifax. In the latter season she was sent to London and there chartered by the Portuguese government to transport troops intended for the service of the late Dom Pedro to Brazil. Returning to London, she was sold to the Spanish government, by the latter converted into a cruiser and employed against Don Carlos in the civil war of 1838, thus being the first steamer to fire a hostile shot.—Toronto News.

A Gentleman

Who formerly resided in Connecticut, but who now resides in Honolulu, writes: "For 20 years past, my wife and I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor, and we attribute to it the dark hair which she and I now have, while hundreds of our acquaintances, ten or a dozen years younger than we, are either gray-headed, white, or bald. When asked how our hair has retained its color and fullness, we reply, 'By the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor—nothing else.'"

"In 1868, my affianced wife was nearly bald, and the hair kept falling out every day. I induced her to use Ayer's Hair Vigor, and very soon, it not only checked any further loss of hair, but produced an entirely new growth, which has remained luxuriant and glossy to this day. I can recommend this preparation to all in need of a genuine hair-restorer. It is all that it is claimed to be."—Antonio Alarum, Bastrop, Tex.

SHADY NOOK FARM.

A COUNTRY RESTING PLACE.

Newfield, Maine, July 3, '93.

If the readers of the GRAPHIC will take the trouble to look up the words 'shady nook,' in the dictionary, they will find it means a sheltered corner. This name is well adapted to Shady Nook Farm in Newfield, Maine, which is certainly a quiet, restful retreat for the student, teacher or man of business, who is wearied from the year's labors and seeks some quiet spot to rest, recruit and lay up a new store of strength and vitality for the coming winter's work.

Let me more freely describe this place, its location, attractions and the way to get there.

I left the Hub on the noon train from the Eastern station with a number of fellow passengers off for a holiday, some to make a prolonged stay and others taking a short trip away over the Fourth. Those latter either from lack of patriotism and enthusiasm or from a desire for peace and quiet, were going to spend the great and glorious Fourth of July in the country.

From past experience I thought it advisable to look after my trunk and it was well I did, as I found it under an extended search at the bottom of a large pile of baggage of all sizes and descriptions. The next thing was to get it out and on board the proper train. It was accomplished at last and with a feeling of relief, I got on board my train a few minutes before the schedule time for starting.

The train was crowded and the only vacant seat to be found was on the sunny side of the car. My companion was a nervous, elderly gentleman, who did not seem to know his own mind and was continually fussing about something, putting the car window up and down and asking questions of conductor and brakeman. We got rid of him at Portsmouth, however, and were heartily glad, as he was one of that kind of people who make themselves disagreeable to all they come in contact with.

There was one little episode of the journey which interested and amused the passengers of our car.

A gentleman sat opposite me with his family, consisting of wife and four children, the eldest about seven and the youngest, apparently, a little over two years of age. This baby of the family was a typical specimen of young America, full of fun and mischief, and kept his poor father busy looking after him many a time and keeping him out of mischief. The youngster had a small silver watch, evidently of Waterbury make, hung around his neck by a black ribbon.

This proved later to be the property of his eldest sister. He was sitting on the seat opposite his father, and finding nothing better to do began to examine the watch with much curiosity. First he managed to get the front cover open and watched the hands as they travelled slowly around the face. Then he would put the watch to his ear and listen to the ticking. At last getting tired of this he thought of the back cover and he works inside. Now, this baby was a very bright baby; he knew that he could look at the face as long as he pleased and his paternal parent would have no objections, but if he tried to open the back cover that was an entirely different thing, as no doubt he had been told before.

Like all babies, and I am sorry to say, other people too, he had a strong and uncontrollable desire to do what he knew was wrong. The different passengers were watching him curiously but he was busy to notice that and began to look longingly at the back of the watch.

He had a cute little baby face at any time, and now, with the expression half mischief and half earnest, in his efforts to get a peak inside, he was irresistible. We had hard work to keep from laughing and held in to await the outcome of his labors. His head suddenly bent and he would often raise his eyes to his father's face to see if he was watching. At last he managed to get the case open, and thus having accomplished his object, he raised his eyes to his father's with the most comical expression of mischief, doubt and fear that I ever saw on a child's face. The father, who had been watching him, smiled, and feeling that he was forgiven, a look of relief came over the dear little fellow's face. There was a roar of laughter from the rest of the passengers and he looked around on us in surprise at the merriment.

They all amused us by their cunning ways during the remainder of the trip.

We were delayed at Conway Junction and Rochester, and on reaching Wolfborough Junction the train was over an hour late.

At last East Wakefield was reached, and gathering up my goods and chattels I left the train. On the platform I saw the genial pleasant face of the station agent and was greeted with a hearty "Good afternoon, sir, glad to see you back again." "I'm glad to get back again," I reply. "Is Mr. Davis's team here?" "Yes! a girl is here with it. I saw her drive up awhile ago."

I thanked him, and on looking around saw the team at the farther end of the platform. I was greeted pleasantly by the lady, who is a neighbor of Mr. Davis, and procuring my baggage we are on the last stage of my journey. East Wakefield depot, N. H., is one hundred and five miles from Boston by the Eastern Division of the Boston & Maine railroad. My destination is just over the line in Maine and is a pleasant ride along a country road.

It winds along up hill and down dale, through patches of wood land and stretches of open country, with here and there a view of the mountains in the distance. We pass by farms with their fields of grass, grain and vegetables, extending over many acres. I asked my companions about changes in the neighborhood during the past year and was informed regarding all news of interest. At last Shady Nook comes into view and on reaching the house I was warmly greeted by mine host and his good wife, who welcome me back again.

Mr. Davis is a host and makes an ideal host, always awake to the interest and comfort of his boarders' welfare outside the house, while his cheery wife takes care of the inner man and in excellent shape too. Fresh laid eggs and vegetables that do not taste as if they had been cutted and laid in the stores for a week, more or less, fresh milk and cream in abundance, berries and fruits, of all kinds in their season.

There has been many changes in the house during the year, new piazzas, a new and much larger dining-room, new carriage and horse, etc. Large trees shade the house and piazzas and an ample room for hammocks and rustic seats. It is never uncomfortably warm and a cool breeze is felt at all hours of the day and night. There are plenty of walks and drives, bits of landscape that would please the eye of an artist, and lake and stream for those piscatorially inclined.

The principle places of attraction for walking are West Newfield, East Shapleigh, the mile walk around the square, Paradise, Mount Look-off, Belch Pond and many others, including a fine view of Mount Washington and the Presidential Range in the distance and an aspen Range not far away. Pleasant rides can be taken to Maplewood, East Pond, the Dow place, Prospect Lake, and further away Ossipee and Wolfborough on Lake Winnepesaukee.

Mr. Davis can tell a story well and we have had a most interesting and profitable former boarders. He is Justice of the Peace, Insurance agent, school teacher of local importance, and holds many other offices. His wife is also a school teacher, a graduate of the State Normal school. Up on the hill a short distance from the farm is the little red school house, and as I sit writing and look on the shade of the piazza, I see the children running down the hill from school, the boys run, browned, barefooted little urchins, and I wonder if there may not be a possible future president among them. Such cases have happened, as we have had presidents and other notable public men whose lives began in this humble way.

The son and heir of this house of Davis is just coming up and I will ask his opinions. "Ray," said I, "Do you want to be president some day?" "Yes, I guess so," was the reply in a doubtful tone, and then after a moment spent in deep thought, "No, I had rather be a lawyer."

"Wouldn't a farmer's life suit you better?" "Blast the farmer," is the quick reply. "I'm going to be a lawyer. They make the most money and get all the farmers can make too." Pretty bright answer for a five year old boy.

The house accommodates about forty guests and will be well filled soon, as most of those who came last year will be on hand again this year. For anyone wishing a quiet, restful summer home with plenty of country and mountain air and broad shady nooks, will find this farm the place to come to.

Took First Prize.

The State board of pharmacy recently analyzed twelve of the most popular medicines in order to see whether they were what they were recommended to be. After two weeks of careful work they awarded the first prize, a gold medal, to Messrs. A. P. Ordway & Co., proprietors of Sulphur Bitters, it being in their opinion the best and only strictly pure blood purifying medicine in the market.—Weekly Chemist.

"Be sure you get Ayer's" is an important caution to all in search of a thoroughly reliable blood-purifier, Ayer's Sarsaparilla being the one on which there can be no manner of doubt. It has stood the test of nearly half a century, and has long been considered the standard.

BOOKS AND MAGAZINES.

LUCIA, HUGH AND ANOTHER

is the title of the last issue in Appleton's Town and Country Library, an interesting story by Mrs. J. H. Needel, author of Stephen Elliott's Daughter and other novels, which are rather more earnest in purpose than the average summer novel. In this one, Mrs. Needel has given us a charming heroine, rather too innocent and unselfish for her own happiness, but who is a very attractive woman. She marries the hero of her early fancy, a man who never yields to temptation, unless it is to make himself disagreeable, which he has a habit of doing. Why should the author make good people so disagreeable to live with, so selfless and disinterested, and invest the villain of the story with all the agreeable characteristics? The latter is really the most agreeable character of the story, the least selfish, and really the most of a man. He never hesitates to sacrifice his own wishes and comfort for the good of others, and the reader is inclined to disbelieve all the scandal reported of his early days, as his life as shown in the story is made up of self-sacrifice even to the end.

A BORDER LEADER.

The initial volume in Appleton's summer series, comes in very dainty binding and is printed with wide margins. It is by Howard Seelye, the author of "The Hohokam of Lucky Valley" and is a very spirited tale of life on the Texas border, with plenty of romantic incidents and adventures. The reader is reminded of Brit Hartle by the freshness of the story and the ray style in which the events are depicted, and he has much of the elder writer's enjoyment of a humorous situation. The love story is a very amusing one, especially the part describing the elopement.

Park Theatre.

Sampson, "the strongest man on earth," gave an exhibition recently at the close of the third act of the "Golden Wedding," which was to prove him the legitimate successor of his biblical namesake. He first toyed with a pair of 50-pound dumb-bells; then he picked up a 150-pound bar, next a 200-pound dumb-bell with one hand. A 300-pound bar was poised like a spear in his right hand and dimes and quarters were broken into bits. It isn't easy for a man who is hanging by his knees, with his feet braced against a column, to raise himself into an erect position. But Sampson did it, and he raised the 200-pound dumb-bell up with him. He took hold of a short chain and severed it with a pull and snapped another chain by the expansion of the muscles of his right arm. The last exhibit was supporting 12 men. The combined weight of the men was 2800 pounds, and the number is to be increased until 4000 pounds is reached. But Sampson wasn't all. Dan Daly's song, "Soldier's Last Good Night," was a new introduction in the performance of "The Golden Wedding." It was in the burlesque second scene in the second act. His rendition of the piece met with instant success. Miss Yeaman introduced a new song, a parody on "After the Ball." It made a decided hit. Still another new feature was Andrew Ward's song in the second act, "What Happened to Johnnie Doogan."

Newton at the Fair.

The Electrical Engineer of July 5th, has the following in regard to an important Newton Industry:

The Gamewell Fire Alarm Telegraph Company, of 1-12 Barclay street, New York, have a very comprehensive, as well as most attractive exhibit of their alarm and police telegraph systems in the east gallery of Electricity Building. The company have followed the business of furnishing municipal telegraphs for nearly forty years, so that the apparatus has had time to become pretty thoroughly known and cannot well be described under the head of "electric novelties." The illustration gives a good idea of the appearance of the space with its office and fire tower and the police and fire boxes connected with their indicators. Here is shown an automatic, non-interference, six-circuit repeater with switchboard and a galvanometer for each circuit indicating the pressure of current, as well as a ground detecting galvanometer for testing. The engine house equipment consists of gongs both plain and combined with indicators, and also a chief's "tapper," a small signal gong for the chief's house giving him private intelligence of the location of fire.

On posts about the space are non-interference boxes. Some of these are operated electro-mechanically by the simple disconnection of the hook, all other boxes on the line being shunted out while the one from which the first alarm is sent is operating. Others have a keyless door with a lever on the outside and a loud warning bell that rings when the lever is pulled calling the attention of officers and passers by; and should the alarm be false, leading to the detection and arrest of the person giving it. Tower men are not to be disturbed by the largest are shown, one with a 220 pound bell that tries the souls and tympanums of all who are compelled to be within its range when it is exhibited. The largest is intended for a 10,000 pound bell, but fortunately the bell is wanting. It was thought to be too noisy for Chicago.

Especially interesting is a central office system consisting of relays and signal lines in connection with a 16-pin multiple register for receiving the alarms and two manual repeaters for transmitting them from the central office to the engine houses. These are connected with a "duplicator" to inform the operator should any line be open. The "duplicator" consists of a series of bells tuned to the notes of the musical scale, each operated by a separate line. The bells are struck in serial order if all the lines are acting properly, but should a line be dropped from the circuit, the corresponding line is out of order and must be attended to. A number of plain boxes for villages, factories, asylums, etc., are also shown, as is a complete police telegraph system with a receiving register provided with a time stamp giving the day, hour and minute of each call. A repeater for sending the alarms to the patrol stable is also connected with an indicator and gong registering the numbers of the boxes from which they were sent.

The company have even a better exhibit than this in the use of both their fire and police systems throughout the Exposition grounds. In order to test either one at any moment it is only necessary to set a building on fire or commit some small crime in the presence of a guard; you are arrested while you wait. Mr. E. B. Chandler, the Chicago agent for the company, has the direction of both the exhibit and the installation of the working apparatus. There is no more interesting exhibit of practical apparatus in the whole Electricity Building than this, which illustrates how much in a single hour and week electricity has done to promote public safety and conserve public peace and prosperity.

"A God-send is Ely's Cream Balm. I had catarrh for three years. Two or three times a week my nose would bleed. I thought the sores would never heal. Your balm has cured me."—Mrs. M. A. Jackson, Portsmouth, N.H.

I was so much troubled with catarrh it seriously affected my voice. One bottle of Ely's Cream Balm did the work. My voice is fully restored.—B. F. Liepner, A. M., Pastor of the Olivet Baptist Church, Philadelphia, Pa.

We have been time and again asked the question why the Chilton Paints have such a high gloss. The Chilton Paint Co. in buying linseed oil, contracts for "prime, well-settled, old-fashioned, raw linseed oil." This is, being interary, oil crushed from pure, prime or first quality flaxseed and which has been tanked and allowed to settle. The oil is then drawn from the upper part of the tank, leaving undisturbed the lower part.

"Old-fashioned linseed oil" is from seed crushed and pressed instead of a recent method called the naphtha process. Having obtained this oil, the Chilton Co. tank it again, and the oil gradually loses what little moisture it originally possessed and becomes very heavy bodied. It is this cause and the seven mixings and grindings given each shade, crushing and grinding each particle of pigment into each particle of oil that produces the lustre. On well painted houses this gloss alone has been known to last three years; ordinarily the gloss on newly painted houses where common paints are used vanishes in from six months to one year. —The double team belonging to W. E. Armstrong & Co. got away from the driver, Monday morning, near the postoffice and travelled down Centre street on a run, creating a good deal of excitement. They were stopped near Beacon street before any damage was done.

—The house on Moreland avenue destroyed by fire July 4, was the property of Mr. C. C. Walworth of Boston, not of Mr. A. C. Walworth, as the types made us say last week.

—The new street railway on Homer street is a great laker of electricity and several horses have been thrown down by the damp ground becoming charged with the fluid. There is also a good deal of disturbance between the Railway Co's circuit and that of the Newton Gas Co's. It has been a somewhat dangerous condition of things but it is to be remedied at once, the officials say.

—A rather amusing episode occurred at the depot last Monday. The carriage drivers were busy securing passengers from a train that had just arrived. A couple of ladies gave their order to one of the hackmen and were courteously conducted to a carriage, handed in and the robbers tucked around. The driver of this particular carriage stood quietly watching the proceedings until the carriage door was shut and then jumped into the front seat and drove off, leaving his courteous rival to realize that he had made a mistake in the carriage.

—Mrs. Margaret Wade and family are at Chatham for the summer.

—Mr. Geo. F. Richardson has an eye for good horses and has now bought the well known mouse colored steed of Mr. Wm. Bliss.

—An inquest was held Wednesday at West Newton on the incendiaries committed here July 4th, but nothing of a decisive nature has occurred at this writing, although a few days are expected to be more fruitful.

—The friends of Mrs. J. E. Cousens of Summer street will be glad to know she is slowly recovering from her severe accident of July 4th. The injuries she sustained were rather serious to one of her delicate health, but under the present favorable conditions, her entire recovery is hoped for in course of time.

—Mrs. Smith, a domestic, died very suddenly last Sunday evening. She had been working over a hot stove and not feeling well went to her room and laid down. It was thought best to call a physician although the woman did not think it necessary and he prescribed for her nothing nothing serious in her condition at the time. The sick woman was left for a short time after this, and upon going to her room again she was found to have expired during the attendant's absence. The remains were taken to relatives in Everett.

—At the regular meeting of Crystal Lake Division, No. 37, Sons of Temperance, Miss Catherine McKenzie, D. G. W. P., and Sarah McLean, G. Con., installed the officers for the coming quarter: Thos. Miller, W. P.; Annie Huggard, W. A.; Bessie Hoyle, R. S.; Freeman Withers, F. S.; Ada McLean, Treas.; Hester Ray, Con.; Irving McLean, A. C.; Lizzie Huggard, I. S.; William Scott, O. S.; Josie Baker, P. W. P. A large number of visitors were present from Boston and Nonantum. After the installation ice cream and strawberries were served and a pleasant time spent. The Division meets on Thursday evening in Union Hall, corner of Centre and Station street, it has a membership of forty and is doing a good work.

—The annual Read Fund picnic was held at Echo Bridge Park last Wednesday. The children were out in force and there were in all 600 of them at the Park. Six special cars were required to convey them over the street railway and the children were looked after by some of the city fathers and a special cordon of police. The refreshment band was at the Park all day and the swings, tetering boards and other attractions, including a Punch & Judy provided for the occasion, gave the children great enjoyment. The showmen, who in the afternoon caused a general scurry for home, but the wetting was not serious and all arrived home safely after a day of unqualified enjoyment.

—The Gamewell boys are pretty well stirred up over the treatment they received July 4th, at the hands of the Newton Highlands. The score at the beginning of the seventh inning stood 7 to 2 in the Gamewells favor. Two men were put out on the bases without the slightest question, the third man striking out. The umpire would not allow the first two. After some vigorous kicking the nine innings were played out under protest, the Gamewells being defeated. The umpire was not in a condition to make decisions say those who were there, and after the seventh inning he was laid off and went home. The Gamewells are eager to meet the Newton Highlands and play a square game with impartial umpires.

—The river carnival last night, proved an attraction for about 500 people, who found an advantageous spot for sight-seeing on the Needham street bridge. A fleet of 50 boats participated in the manoeuvres on the river, which included a trip in line from a point above the bridge to the grove near the Newton pumping station and return. The shores were brightly illuminated with Japanese lanterns. The start was made about 8:30 o'clock. C. H. Daniels officiating as commodore. The light pleasure craft had an adornment of lanterns and gay colored decorations, and made a very fine appearance. Some of the designs were quite elaborate and some exceedingly funny. One of the best was the Majella, a canoe, square rigged, owned by W. A. Dunbar. Others worthy of mention were the Mabel, Commodore Daniels' boat, Lottie B., Charles Burns, and the Dartlet, the latter manned by a Newton Upper Falls crew. When the boats returned from the grove, and while lying at anchor, fireworks were set off from the shore at Cold Spring point. A band stationed on the bridge discoursed music. The West Roxbury Athletic Association and Dedham boat club joined the Newton Upper Falls canoeists in the carnival. The carnival was under the management of the Gamewell "boys" and was a success in every way.

NEWTON, MASS.

CITY OF

ORDINANCE RELATING TO

PETROLEUM.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the City of

Newton, as follows:

Section 1. Any person desiring to manufacture, refine, mix, store or keep for sale any oil or fluid, composed wholly or in part of any of the products of petroleum, or any except as provided in the seventy second section of chapter one hundred and two of the Public Statutes, shall apply in writing for a license to the Chief of the Fire Department, and shall state in his application the place, building, or part of a building, for which he desires a license, and whether he desires a license for manufacturing, refining, mixing and storing, or any of them, or a license for storing or keeping them, or both. Such application shall be referred to the Chief of the Fire Department, who shall, within one week from the time of such reference, examine, or cause to be examined by the Assistant Chief, the place or building described in such application, and report in writing to the Board of Aldermen his opinion of the propriety of granting the license; but this section shall not apply to quantities not exceeding fifty gallons kept by families for their private use, nor to quantities not exceeding one hundred gallons kept in manufacturing use on the premises.

Section 2. No license shall be granted for manufacturing, refining, mixing, storing or keeping said articles, or any of them, upon any alley, sidewalk, street or wharf, nor upon any floor of a

Section 3. No license shall be granted for mixing, storing or keeping crude petroleum or gasoline in any part of a building above the first floor, unless said articles are contained in metallic vessels securely closed.

Section 4. No license shall be granted for, and no person shall keep for sale at retail, for illuminating purposes, refined petroleum, or any product of petroleum, unless the same has been inspected and approved by an inspector duly authorized by some city or town in this Commonwealth.

Section 5. Except as hereinbefore provided, licenses may be granted for manufacturing, refining, mixing, storing and keeping said articles, or any of them, in cellars, or upon the roof, or in buildings, or in other suitable localities, in such quantities over one hundred gallons, and in such a manner that the same shall not be a detriment to the public health, safety or convenience, except that no license shall be granted for manufacturing, refining, mixing, storing or keeping said articles or any of them upon the first floor of any building in a greater quantity than four hundred gallons, unless the same be contained in metallic vessels securely closed, or the foundations and walls of said building be of brick, stone or iron, and the sills or walls of said building be built without apertures for a space of at least one foot above the floor.

Section 6. There shall be expressed in said license the name of the person to whom the license is granted, and whether he is permitted to manufacture, refine and mix said articles, or any of them, or to store or keep them, or both; and a description of the place, building, or part of a building, in which the same are to be stored, or kept therein, or upon the manner of manufacture, refining, mixing, storing or keeping the same; which the Board of Aldermen may in each case see fit to impose; and any person so licensed may manufacture, refine, mix, store or keep said articles, or any of them, according to the terms of his license, either on his own account or on account of any other person.

Section 7. Any person holding such a license shall allow the Chief of the Fire Department, or Assistant Chief, or any inspector appointed by the Board of Aldermen, to enter the premises described in the license, and take such samples of oils, and make such examinations of the premises as said Chief or inspectors deem expedient. Any violation of the terms of said license shall work a revocation of the same, and the Board of Aldermen may revoke such license at any time.

Section 8. The Chief of the Fire Department shall make complaint to the Police Court of Newton of all violations of the provisions of section seven of chapter one hundred and two of the Public Statutes, and bring suit in the name of the Mayor of the city against all persons who manufacture, refine, mix, store or keep for sale any oil or fluid composed wholly or in part of the products of petroleum, without the license required by this chapter.

Passed to be ordained.
HENRY D. DEGAN, President, pro. tem.
In the Board of Mayor and Aldermen, July 17, 1893.

Passed to be ordained.
JOHN A. FENNO, Mayor.

Approved, July 17, 1893.
JOHN A. FENNO, Mayor.

Attest, ISAAC F. KINGSBURY,
City Clerk.

Winnon, from this city were Mrs. George Linder, Miss Ethel Linder, Mrs. W. H.
Blodgett, Miss Blodgett and W. E. Blodgett.

—Mrs. Fred H. Tucker and children of Church street, left town today on a short vacation trip.

—The Cladin Guard, Co. C, 5th Regt.,
M. V. M., took fifty men to the muster at South Framingham this week. The command made a creditable showing. Capt.
Scott's headquarters were visited by many Newtonians. Maj. Benson was a much sought man and his pleasant greeting is always appreciated by his large circles of friends.

—During Rev. Mr. Hornbrook's absence, the Channing pulpit will be supplied as follows: July 30, Rev. Samuel B. Stewart, Lynn; Aug. 6, Rev. George H. Young,
Lawrence; Aug. 13, Rev. Edward F. Hayward, Marlborough; Aug. 20, Rev. Benjamin R. Bulkeley, Concord; Aug. 27, Rev.

F. B. Hornbrook returns Sept. 3.

—Rev. Mr. Hornbrook preaches next Sunday for the last time prior to his departure for his annual vacation. He will pass a week with his family at the Garrison House, York Beach, Me. During August, they will be at the Alpine House, North Woodstock, N. H.

—There is talk in certain quarters of reviving the scheme for establishing a line of electric street railway through Centre street from Newton, and connect with the line of the Newton & Boston Company at Boston street. If sufficient support can be obtained it is probable that a petition for a location will be presented to the aldermen in September.

—Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Follett and children have returned from a pleasant vacation trip, which included a stay in West Virginia where Mrs. Follett attended the family reunion and an outing with the Soudown Fishing Club among the Catskill, Solomon County, N. Y. Mr. Follett, especially, enjoying the latter recreation period.

—"The Historical Books of the Bible or Bible Chronology" will be next Sunday's vacation topic at the Sunday school of the Immanuel Baptist church. The school convenes at 12 o'clock, a convenient hour for those not engaged in similar work elsewhere at the same time, and Mr.
Stephen Moore will be the speaker. Those who have heard Mr. Moore on any phase of Bible work will gladly hear him again.

—Inspector Henthorne of the Newton police department went to Providence Sunday, and with the assistance of Detective Parker of that place arrested William C. Maxim, formerly employed by S. F.
Whitman of this city. He was taken into custody on a warrant charging him with the larceny of a bicycle from the barn of George Clark, Newton Centre, about a month ago. Maxim was locked up at police headquarters Sunday night and was arranged in the local police court Monday morning. He pleaded guilty and was held in the sum of $500 for the grand jury.

—The fire committee of the city government has arranged for a series of public tests of the relative merits of Gamewell and Municipal systems of fire alarm telegraph boxes. The tests will be held in Nonantum square on Monday afternoon at 4.30. The two companies will be invited to erect poles and to connect their boxes with the city's circuit. The alarms will be rung by the members of the fire committees, and the experts of the two companies will not be permitted to manipulate the boxes after they are placed in position. The test will consist of ringing in alarms from Gamewell and Municipal, and the various styles of box manufactured by each company, simultaneously, and successively.

—Miss Ruth Hall, who has been visiting Miss Myra Stone of Maple avenue for several weeks, has returned to her home in Guilford, Conn.

—Mrs. J. Q. Henry and daughter of Sargent street are at Kennebunkport for the month of August.

—Miss Alice Macomber of Crafts street has returned from a visit to Chicago and the World's Fair.

—William Welch has resigned his position as gatekeeper at the Centre street crossing. He is one of the veterans having seen 42 years of continuous service. He has been a valuable servant of the public and a faithful employee and it will be a difficult matter to fill his place. Many a life has been saved by his watchful care and his strict attention to duty deserves special commendation. The man who has performed a task so well and who has secured such a hold upon the confidence of the people in a capacity of responsibility, inasmuch as the safety of human beings is involved, deserves just words of praise.

That is freely accorded him and it is perhaps as significant an endorsement as man of his sturdy character would desire.
There are those who believe, however, that his services should receive some fitting recognition and certainly few men are entitled to an expression of honest appreciation.

—There was a fatal accident at the St.
James Hotel, Beach street, Boston, early Saturday evening. Daniel Cleary of Newton, a guest, while walking in his sleep, stepped out of the window of his room to the fire escape, and fell the sidewalk, a distance of 60 feet. He was removed to the Emergency Hospital, where, after a hasty examination, it was found he had sustained a severe injury to his spine, a broken arm and was suffering from concussion of the brain, from the effects of which he died at 7.30. The unfortunate man was about 35 years of age and was well known in this city, where he has resided for upward of 20 years. There was some suspicion of foul play. It appears that the deceased engaged in either a row or was set upon Friday evening, and might well be supposed to have been in the Emergency Hospital that night for a wound in the head which required several stitches. His brother, learning of the affair, thought that it might explain his sudden death, and that possibly he had been murderously assaulted and later pushed over the escape. He secured the assistance of a Newton officer Sunday and investigation. As a result the case seems to be no ground for the supposition that he was foully dealt with. The medical examiner has returned a certificate stating that death was due to an accidental fall.

—It is still ahead. Thorn's soda.

—Miss Laura S. Coffin is at The Coto cheset, Wianno.

—Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Tyler and W. W.
Tyler are at the Hood Hotel, Nahant.

—H. A. Pemberton and family have taken up their abode at the Rockland house, Nantasket, for the warm season.

—Mrs. G. L. DeBlais, Mrs. C. M. Carter, Miss Carter and Miss Nellie P. Carter of Commonwealth avenue, Boston, are recent arrivals at the Woodland Park Hotel.

—The railroad commissioners held a hearing at the State House, Monday morning, on the petition of the Newton branch of aldermen, for gates and crossing tenders at the Concord street crossing on the Lower Falls branch. It is probable that the commission will recommend the erection of gates and employment of a crossing man.

—The members and probationers of the St. Elisabeth Branch of the Girls' Friendly Society were entertained at the home of Mrs. Henry Pemberton on Woodland avenue. An instructive talk by Mrs. Geo.
Baldwin on the "Columbian Exposition" was listened to with interest, and the delicious refreshments were much enjoyed.

—Mr. W. H. Blood and family left town Wednesday for Harpswell, Me., for the summer.

—There are letters at the postoffice for Miss D. Berly, Miss M. E. Bancroft, Thos.
Crough, Mr. Daniel Doyle, 2 Mr. John Donaghy, Miss Jennie King, Miss Katie
McCarthy, Mr. C. B. Nutter, Mr. Chester
T. Nutter, Mr. Martin Noonan, Mr. M. E.
Whiting.

—John Ciocker, clerk in Geo. E. Mann's store starts on a vacation of several weeks next Wednesday. He will visit Montreal, Toronto and Alton Ca.

—Mrs. Charles A. Miner has returned from Alexandria, Va., after a long visit, with health much improved. Mrs. Delano of Alexandria is her guest for a time.

—Mrs. James H. Dolliver and family are spending the summer at Green Harbor.
Mrs. Dolliver will join them Saturday for a two weeks vacation.

—Mr. George E. Mann is spending the week with his family, who are at Green Harbor for the season.

—Arthur Plummer is riding a Columbia bicycle.

—Officer W. O. Harlow resumed duty
Tuesday, after a vacation at Ostuit.

—Mrs. W. P. Thorn and family have returned from several weeks spent in Waterford, St. Johnsbury and other places in northern Vermont.

—Miss Frances Elms was attacked by large dogs, Saturday morning, while walking on Victoria avenue, and was injured and bitten. Kind neighbors immediately came to her assistance and Dr. Perkins of West Newton attended. She is slowly recovering from the fright.

—Among the Cladin Guard at muster this afternoon are Robert Daly, Jerry Ryan and Jerry Coleman.

NEWTON UPPER FALLS.

—Miss Helen Newell is at Scituate.

—Miss Florence Billings is stopping at Chatham.

—The house occupied by Sectionman
Andy Donovan is being repaired.

—Mr. George Cutler expects the arrival of his nephew, John Heald, from England on the 25th inst.

—Newell Tucker is riding a Warwick
bicycle.

—The Emmetts of Waltham defeated the Pettees, Saturday, score 17 to 9. The full score is given on another page.

—Mr. Giles Dyson has purchased a new team.

—Cooper & Dyson are driving a new horse.

—The Methodist and Baptist societies are enjoying a union picnic today at Woodland Park grove in West Medway. The larger part of the company left on the 8.30 train this morning, and a special train will be provided for them to return on this evening. An interesting program of sports has been arranged.

—Mr. and Mrs. Wm. H. Dunham will spend their vacation next week in Plymouth at their old home.

—Elio Bridge was visited by an unusual number of carriages on Sunday.

—The storm Tuesday afternoon washed sand into the new foundry building at Pettie Machine Works in such quantity as to prevent work the next day.

—Will Fanning has returned from Mason City, Ill., and the World's Fair.

—The Gamewell defeated the Walker,
Stetson & Sawyer team on Dudley field

CITY GOVERNMENT.

STREET RAILWAY LOCATION ON CENTRE STREET OPPOSED—REWARD OFFERED FOR JULY 4TH INCENDIARIES.

The mayor presided Monday evening at a special meeting of the city government and all were present except Alderman Emerson.

A communication from Chief Bixby asking that No. 1 Truck house and No. 3 Engine house be connected with the sewer, was referred.

A communication from the N. E. Telephone & Telegraph Co., embodying an acceptance of a location on Washington street as required by previous order of the board was presented.

Alderman Roffe, after hearing the order read, asked Mr. J. N. Kellar, who was present, if the acceptance answered all the requirements of the order.

Mr. Kellar believed it did. The acceptance was made according to the requirements of the statutes and he thought it would accord with the city ordinances. There were only four out of 111 exchanges, who required any acceptance, and this was one of them.

Alderman Bothfield asked if this acceptance was not drawn up different from the usual way.

Mr. Kellar said the city had never required an acceptance before. It was drawn the same as they drew all acceptances.

Alderman Roffe then moved that the acceptance be received and referred to the city solicitor, which was voted.

Eliza A. Bowers of Harvard street, through an attorney, notified the board of injuries received from the defective condition of Cabot street. Referred.

The petroleum ordinance came up, passed to be ordained, and was referred to the committee on enrolled ordinances.

AN INTERESTING HEARING.

At 7:30 o'clock a hearing was opened on the petition of the Newton & Boston street railway, for location of tracks and poles on Centre street from Beacon to Willow streets.

President Parker appeared for the company, showing a plan of the location asked for, and explaining that the present terminus did not sufficiently accommodate their patrons. The cars were not in sight of the depot, which made it more difficult to locate them, but if they were allowed to run on Centre street they could easily be seen.

Mr. E. H. Mason was present and asked if there was any petition favoring such change.

Mr. Parker said a number of business men had expressed themselves as in favor of the location asked and as affording much better accommodation to the public.

Mr. Mason asked if the loop line was necessary.

Mr. Parker would not object if they did not get the loop line. They were working simply in the interests of the public, and some had expressed a preference for the loop line.

Mr. Frank Edmonds thought Mr. Parker was in error when stating the cars could not be seen from the depot, and they would not be any more visible if on Centre street.

Mr. Mason in summing up the opposition to granting a location to a street railway did not think it necessary to go into a repetition of what had been said in the past. He took the ground on general principles against allowing the use of narrow streets for street railways. No street less than 80 feet in width should be used by them. Then the matter of street railways was being considered by the boulevard commission and he believed, with a large majority of citizens that their report should be received before any further locations were granted by the city government. Regarding the case in question, public necessity did not require cars on Centre street and the public were well accommodated now.

Mr. Parker was surprised at the opposition to the location. The company did not care to press the matter, which might be adjusted between the company and remonstrants. He asked if there would be objections to running the cars as far as Station street.

Mr. Edmonds believed there were even then great objections in the danger to children who would have to cross the tracks in going to school. His views further coincided with those of Mr. Mason. He presented an earnest remonstrance from Col. Edward H. Haskell.

Messrs. W. C. Bray and W. D. Philbrick objected to the Centre street location, their reasons being similar to those previously expressed.

Mr. A. L. Harwood thought the public were now sufficiently accommodated and nothing should be done until the boulevard commission report. There is a feeling that this boulevard commission are men of far reaching views and the speaker believed the city had never done anything which would have a more far reaching influence in the future of Newton than this commission.

Mr. W. B. Young said the loop line first proposed would cost $500 children to cross the tracks four times daily. The driving public of Newton had paid largely for the roads and they have some rights which should be respected.

Mr. Parker said the company proposed this loop line with the idea of accommodating the citizens of Newton Centre. If the latter were satisfied to have the cars stop as at present near a standpipe where the gutter was wet and muddy all the time the company certainly was not anxious to expend $2500 for the loop line.

THE HEARING WAS CLOSED.

PETITIONS.

A petition from J. R. Smith for concrete walk was referred; license was granted to move a building 200 yards on Abundant avenue; a petition for main drain and sewer in Kirkfall road by C. T. Pulsifer and others was referred; A. F. Whalen was granted license to drive one hackney carriage.

THE BOULEVARD.

Alderman Bothfield for the committee, reported on the laying out of the central boulevard from Walnut street, west.

An order was then presented and passed giving notice to all persons interested, of the intention of the city to lay out such boulevard and appointing a hearing for Monday evening, September 11 at 7:30 o'clock.

An order was passed appropriating $200 for clerical assistance in the city clerk's office.

An order, that the receipt's from dog taxes, amounting to $2045.18 be added to the school appropriation was passed.

Alderman Thompson presented an order appropriating $1100 to finish off a room in the Thompsonville school house for school purposes, but after some discussion the order was withdrawn.

HEARING APPOINTED.

Alderman Roffe presented a petition from the N. E. Telephone & Telegraph Company for location on Newtonville avenue, between Walnut and Harvard streets. It was received and a hearing appointed for the evening of July 24, at 7:30 o'clock.

An order was passed authorizing the printing committee to procure bids for the printing of the city documents.

Alderman Bothfield presented an order which was passed appropriating $76,200 for city expenses during August and September.

Alderman Plummer reported the petroleum ordinance well and truly enrolled and it was passed to be ordained.

Alderman Hunt presented a report from the city engineer regarding sewer assessment betterments, and an order was passed authorizing the city treasurer to levy and collect the same.

A report recommending the exemption of a portion of the sewer assessment on certain estates was received and an order passed exempting the following real estate owners in certain sums; Arnold A. Rand, $182.46; Eliza A. Wellington, $85.53; J. T. Payne, $111.92; J. Wesley Barber, $5.28; Abby A. Trowbridge, $19.72.

After a recess, Alderman Roffe presented a petition from W. B. Young and others for the removal of the water stand pipe on Beacon street opposite Institution avenue. Referred.

Alderman Bothfield of the highway commission asked if there was any recommendation as to where it should be moved.

Alderman Roffe said there was none, but he would have that point considered.

FIRE ALARM BOXES.

An order came up from the common council with an amendment which struck out an appropriation of $375 for the purchase of five Gamewell fire alarm signal boxes, and appropriated the same amount for the purchase of five signal boxes made by the Municipal Fire & Police Telegraph Company. Alderman Thompson moved to table. Alderman Bothfield asked how the order came to be in the council chamber, when the order was previously recommended to the police committee by the alderman. The order could only appear there unless through the committee, and their report would properly come first to the aldermen for action.

He thought the patience of the committee, the board and the community had been sufficiently taxed in the matter of fire alarm boxes. The board had heard about the lawsuits, and bickering between the two companies, and he wished something definite could be arrived at and "bury that thing forever."

A vote was then taken on Alderman Thompson's motion to table, which was lost. The question then came on a concurrence with the council.

Alderman Bothfield asked Chief Bixby if the boxes were really needed at present.

The chief said there was no more exigency now than for six months past.

HIS OPINION AT SEA.

Alderman Bothfield continuing said it would be a good idea to save the money and not get the boxes at all. This seems to have sifted down to a contest between the two companies. He had thought best not to advocate a change. He had received letters from many insurance men and others, but had been sorry to find afterwards that these expert opinions had been worked up. He found insurance experts and fire experts differed in opinion, regarding a mixed system. Some believed it worked harm and others that it was equally as good as a regular system. This variance in the opinion of experts had destroyed any opinion he formerly had regarding the matter and he believed the best way would now be to connect one Municipal box with the Gamewell system in Newton, and submit it to a test before the members of the city government.

Alderman Thompson said it had been thrown in his face that it was his bread and butter to vote against the Municipal boxes. He said he voted against the Municipal box on general principles and if the position of the two companies were reversed he should vote just the same against the Gamewell. One company had served the city satisfactorily for years and he saw no reason for interfering with the efficiency of the present service.

Alderman Bothfield then moved to table the order which was done and a motion carried to have the fire commission make a trial test of the Municipal box on the fire alarm system.

Alderman Plummer reported the fire ordinance well and truly enrolled and it was passed to be ordained.

INCENDIARIES WANTED.

Alderman Roffe said citizens of Newton Centre were very much exercised regarding the three incendiary fires, which occurred on the morning of July fourth and at a meeting of the Newton Centre Improvement Association, Saturday evening, definite action was taken and it was decided to petition the city government to order a reward for information leading to the conviction of the parties setting the fires, and to employ competent detectives for that purpose. He called upon Messrs. Edmonds, Harwood and Young, who emphasized the urgency felt in the matter by citizens.

Mr. Young, as an insurance man, said his company paid $2000 on an incendiary fire in that section two years ago, and those on July fourth would cost them about $4000. The rates on vacant houses were at present kept up, but with so many incendiary fires and no arrests of the guilty parties it would be too great a risk for the companies to assume much longer.

An order was then presented by Alderman Roffe appropriating the sum of $1,000, $500 to be offered as a reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the guilty parties and $500 to be expended under the direction of the mayor in the employment of competent persons to apprehend them. The order was passed.

The mayor appointed as fire chief, H. L. Bixby and as assistant chief, W. B. Rantlett both of which were confirmed.

The board then adjourned to Monday, July 24.

IT WAS A CANARD.

DR. MEYER, THE ALLEGED POISONER, NEVER LIVED IN NEWTON.

A news despatch in connection with the case of Dr. H. C. Meyer, the alleged wholesale poisoner, published in the afternoon papers last Friday, stated that a chapter in his life transpired in Newton. It connected him with a woman whom it was said he lived with as his wife in obscure lodgings in Newton two years ago. The woman, the report further intimated, died under mysterious circumstances.

A Herald reporter investigated the matter Saturday night and ascertained that a man who went under the name of Mayhue lived with a woman in a respectable lodging house on Washington street, Newton, about two years ago, and that she died in giving birth to a child.

Mayhue claimed when he hired the lodgings that the woman was his wife. It was subsequently ascertained that the woman was the wife of a wealthy Boston banker, and that her paramour had given an assumed name. It was discovered that he was a Boston physician, having a large practice at the North End. He was a man about 55 years of age, and had been a familiar figure in Boston for the past 30 years.

The woman was about 40 years of age and very fine looking. When she lived with Mayhue in this city two of her young children resided with her. They occupied apartments in the top story of the lodging house, but lived quite luxuriously, having, apparently, all the comforts that money could procure.

When the woman died she was attended by one of the most reputable physicians of Boston, and death was the result of a natural cause there being not the slightest ground for suspicion of foul play. In fact, there was no mystery connected with the death. Owing to the desire of the woman's husband, for the sake of his family, to keep the matter quiet, the crooked chapter of her life was kept a secret, and the wronged husband took charge of the remains and made arrangements for the interment.

Mayhue left Newton immediately after her death, returning to Boston, where he still resides. When he departed he took property of his mistress, of considerable value. Later he gave up the property to the woman's husband.

The Newton undertaker who prepared the woman's body for interment says that a proper death certificate was returned, and that the woman gave birth to a large child. The infant lived only a short time.

The Mayhue connected with the affair is not Dr. Meyer. He was arrested in Detroit, according to the belief and best judgment of those most familiar with the above given. The parties concerned are well known, and their former landlord and the undertakers are willing to give the names and the full facts to the public, if it can be shown that Mayhue and Dr. Meyer are one and the same person. As they do not believe it, they are unwilling to disclose the identity of the doctor and the woman's husband, not because of any sympathy for the physician who played such a disgraceful role but to protect the woman's husband and the members of his family.

TWO COMPANIES PETITION.

STREET TRAVEL IN WELLESLEY PROTESTED AS REGARDS MAIN STREET.

On Saturday next the board of selectmen of Wellesley will give an important hearing on the petition of the Boston & Wellesley Electric Railroad Company for a franchise to build and operate an electric street line through Wellesley, from the Newtons to the Natick line. Two roads have applied for a franchise, the Newton & Boston and the Natick & Cohasset. The selectmen are in receipt of many communications from residents of the Hills, who protest at the road's being laid through the Main street. The protest, it is claimed, will be ruined for driving purposes if electric cars are allowed on it, and, furthermore, the road would have to be widened in several places, which would necessitate the payment of large land damages, of such an amount as would be required to build a new street.

The inhabitants of both villages take an immense amount of pride in their towns' appearance, and though favorably disposed to the electric road idea, do not wish the beauty of their main thoroughfare marred if it can possibly be avoided. Several plans have been proposed, but the one most favorably received by members of the board, as well as the village improvement society, is to build a new road, which would start at Putney's block, terminating on the Glen road, at the Lower Falls. The proposed road would be a mile in length, and would not, it is estimated, increase the cost. By such a plan the main highway would not be disturbed. It would make little, if any difference as far as patronage is concerned as the new road would pass many houses and open up new land for residential purposes.

THE OHIO CHEMICAL CO.—GENTLEMEN:—I have been using your cure for tobacco habit, and found it would do what you claim for it. I used ten cents worth of the strongest chewing tobacco a day, and from one to five cigars; or I would smoke from ten to forty pipes of tobacco. I have chewed and smoked for twenty-five years, and two packages of your Tablets cured me so I have no desire for it. B. M. JAYLORD, Leile, Mich.

THE OHIO CHEMICAL CO.—GENTLEMEN:—I received them all right and, although I was both a heavy smoker and chewer, they did the work in less than three days. I am cured. Truly yours, MATHEW JOHNSON, P. O. Box 45, PITTSBURGH, PA.

THE OHIO CHEMICAL CO.—GENTLEMEN:—It gives me pleasure to speak a word of praise for your Tablets. My son was strongly addicted to the use of liquor, and through a friend, I was led to try your Tablets. He was a heavy and constant drinker, but after using your Tablets but three days he quit drinking, and will not touch liquor of any kind. I have waited four months before writing you, in order to know the cure was permanent. Yours truly, MRS. HELEN MORRISON, CINCINNATI, OHIO.

THE OHIO CHEMICAL CO.—GENTLEMEN:—Your Tablets have performed a miracle in my case. I have used morphine, hypodermically, for seven years, and have been cured by the use of two packages of your Tablets, and without any effort on my part. W. L. ## Red Apples Won the Race.

Two large apple trees stand side by side in an orchard not far from Sydney. On one hung fruit which looked like balls of gold in the sunlight. The apples on the neighboring tree were a bright red. One day the owner of the orchard sent his men to pick the fruit. It was to be sent to the World's fair, and he followed them out among the trees to see that the work was properly done. When at last the apples were packed in the barrels, the fruitgrower decided that those two barrels should separate in the orchard and not meet again until on the exhibition table in the Horticultural building at the fair. The red apples were to go east, and the yellow apples were to go west.

The golden fruit was loaded into a steamer and started toward the Suez canal, while the red fruit was started the same day in a vessel across the Pacific ocean. The fruit grower marked "No delay. Perishable goods," conspicuously on each barrel. He wanted to ascertain which was the quickest route to the World's fair. The barrel of yellow apples passed through the canal, through the Mediterranean sea, up the English channel, and finally reached London. Here it was taken from the boat and sent by railroad to Liverpool. Then the barrel of New South Wales fruit was loaded into an ocean racer and started on its way across the Atlantic to New York, whence it came to Chicago by railroad. It was just 66 days to an hour when Thomas Pugh, the assistant general superintendent of the New South Wales exhibit, received it.

In the meantime the red apples had crossed the Pacific ocean to San Francisco in 20 days. Then they were sent by freight to Chicago. After numerous delays along the way the apples arrived. They had been 83 days on the way and had been admired by World's fair visitors for almost two weeks before the golden apples which grew on the tree beside them in Australia were placed on china plates and set on the table beside them in the New South Wales fruit display.—Chicago Record.

New Use For Spring Chickens.

Should the little daughter of Mr. Calissi ever recover she owes her life to an Italian violinist in the city. Suffering as she was with brain fever and the doctors giving up all hope of her recovery, this morning she spoke the first word and ate the first morsel she has for several days. A friend of Mr. Calissi, an Italian, visited the sick child and remarked he had known her condition a day or two ago he could certainly have saved her. However, he was willing to try it, and going out he brought in a number of spring chickens. Taking a live chicken he split open its back with a knife, opened it wide and placed the inside of the chicken, entrails, blood and all, over the child's head. As soon as the chicken began to get cold he would open another and place it on in the same manner.

About the time the second chicken began to cool the child spoke, and afterward asked for something to eat. So far 23 chickens have been used, and the child is doing splendidly. What effect the warmth of the chicken and vitals had upon the child's head the writer cannot tell, but should the child fully recover the Italian professor wants the credit. He says he saved his son's life in the same manner when it was necessary to use 48 spring chickens. He prefers rabbits when he can get them in his treatment.—Paducah News.

Mrs. Stanford's Duty.

The end has come, and to Mrs. Stanford falls the melancholy duty of carrying out a great educational scheme such as the world as never seen. That this scheme should originate in California seems in keeping with a state which is itself an empire, self feeding in almost every particular, as great in beauty and wonders as in size and natural products. Fortunately for the university, Mrs. Stanford was essentially her husband's helpmeet. She shared his sorrows no less than his joys. She was a counselor and friend to whom he confided all his enterprises. Rising above personal loss therefore, Mrs. Stanford can take her place at the helm and steer a magnificent idea into the safe harbor of accomplished fact. Here is a glorious task, in the doing of which there will be infinite comfort. Husband and son have only gone before, and spiritual help will come to her who humbly bears her cross and dedicates her life to the advancement of humanity.—Kate Field's Washington.

Color Photography.

Our Paris correspondent reports that much interest was shown at the photographic club there in some plates obtained by Professor Lippmann's process. The pictures on glass were cast by an electric projector onto a white screen before an admiring and enthusiastic audience. The first picture to appear on the screen was a bunch of roses, violets and jessamine. They came out with all their natural colors and tints and velvety effects. As a person remarked, the only thing these flowers lacked was scent. A corner of landscape in a Paris park was the next picture. The sky was of true blue. The sandaled alleys and the green lawn were as like to nature as nature itself. Next came a cottage in sunlight overgrown with creepers, flags, match-boxes and photographs of illustrated placards.—London News.

In the House of Lords.

When Lord Roberts takes his seat in the house of lords, he will find himself in the uncommon position of being one of two peers with the same name. The other one, it is true, spells his name Robert; but that is neither here nor there. The house of lords has also an Earl of Mar and an Earl of Mar and Kellie, an Earl of Lindsay and an Earl of Lindsey, an Earl of Longford and a Baron Langard, a Viscount Middleton and a Baron Middleton, a Baron Sudley and a Baron Sudeley, two Lords Howard and two Lords Napier.—London Tit-Bits.

A Story of a Russian Novelist.

Turgeneff once asked the famous critic, Belinsky, and five others to dine with him at his home in the country, where he kept a famous chef.

"I will prepare such a banquet for you as you have never imagined," he declared, and he not only fixed the day, but insisted upon each person's giving his word of honor that he would be present.

"Don't fear for us," said Belinsky. "We shall be there, but you must not repeat the trick you played us last winter, when you asked us to dine and were not at home when we arrived. In order to remind you I will write to you the day before."

On the appointed day—a very hot day—the party set out for the country house in the morning and arrived thoroughly fatigued by heat and dust. But no host appeared to welcome them. The house was deserted. Repeated knocking at the door was answered by silence.

"Can Turgeneff have repeated last winter's trick?" exclaimed Belinsky. His friends tried to persuade him that they had arrived earlier than they were expected.

"But I wrote him that we would be here at 1 o'clock," said Belinsky. "What can it mean? If they would only admit us, we could wait, but here we are scorned!"

At length a boy appeared who confessed that his master was away and that the chef was at an inn in the neighborhood. He was dispatched for the chef, and the party waited, hungry and cross, until he made his appearance.

"Where is your master?" cried Belinsky.

"The cook did not know."

"Did he not order a dinner for us to-day?"

"He did nothing of the kind," was the answer.

"Well," said Belinsky when he was composed enough to express an opinion, "he has indeed given us an unusual sort of banquet!"—Russian Characteristics.

Teeth of the Beaver.

The beaver is armed with two long chisel-like teeth in each jaw. These teeth are exceedingly powerful and are to a beaver what an ax is to a woodsman. One such tooth taken from the lower jaw of a medium sized skunk (they can be removed without difficulty, unlike the most of ours) is bent into nearly a semicircle and measures 5 inches along its outer curve. Only one inch of this length projects from the skull. The corresponding one from the upper jaw is bent into more than a complete half circle and measures upon its outer face 4 inches, of which less than an inch protrudes from its bone casing. In width each tooth is five-eighths of an inch. Examination of one of them reveals the secret of how a beaver can perform such feats as chopping down a birch tree 16 inches in diameter, not to speak of softer woods, like the basswood, of much greater size.

The tooth is composed of two materials. Along the outer face or front of the tooth is a thin plate of exceedingly hard enamel. On the inner, forming the body of the tooth, is a substance called dentine. The dentine, being softer, wears away with use. The thin enamel remains comparatively unworn, so that the tooth assumes the shape of a keen chisel that never grows dull. The tooth is hollow at the base for half its length and is filled with a nourishing substance which keeps it constantly growing.—St. Nicholas.

Mr. Ferguson's Saving Prayer.

Away back in the early sixties Mr. Ferguson was defending a man accused of beating his wife. The case was on trial before a justice of the peace, probably the same justice who decided that stealing a sack of potatoes out of a canoe was "piracy on the high seas." The accused was convicted, and the justice promptly sentenced him to be hanged.

"But you can't hang a man for beating his wife," expostulated Ferguson.

"The devil I can't," said the justice, bridling up. "Ain't he guilty? Oughtn't any man to be hung who would beat a woman and that woman his wife? And ain't I the only judge in this country? If I haven't got the power to hang a man, who has, eh? I'll hang him within an hour; won't we, boys?" he concluded, addressing the crowd standing around, whose sympathies were evidently with the woman.

"That we will," shouted the crowd. Seeing that the case was beginning to look serious for his client, Ferguson said: "Well, your honor, before the man is hanged I'd like to take him out behind that big tree and pray with him."

"All right," said the justice, and off went the prisoner and Ferguson. When they got behind the tree Ferguson said in an undertone:

"Now git, you bound." And he got.—Seattle Press-Times.

Pottery of the American Indians.

The pottery of the North American Indian is in some respects like the dolmen pottery of Europe, although it differs in many details of form, mode of manufacture and ornamentation. The North American Indian used neither wheel nor furnace, nor did he, except rarely, decorate it with colors. The clay was frequently mixed with powdered shells. The decoration of pottery made in the eastern portion of the United States was effected by incised lines and dots with various combinations. The spiral and volute were employed.

Among the southern Indians much of the decoration was made by the impress of textile fabrics, sometimes with only a string or cord. In the interior and principally on the Mississippi river the pottery vessels were made to represent sometimes the human face, sometimes animals. There was a much greater prevalence of the bottle form in the United States than in Europe. The prehistoric pottery of Mexico and Central America forms a special group; that from the pueblos of Arizona and New Mexico another, while that made by the North American Indian constitutes a third group. Each of these has distinctive characteristics.—Great Divide.

Doing the World's Fair With Comfort.

Colonel William R. Nelson, proprietor of the Kansas City Star, came to town last Wednesday morning and proceeded at once to do the World's fair. He has very distinct and, we will add, very proper notions as to personal comfort—facilities for the fair, and an avowed aversion to the demands and exactions of the fair. The first object that caught the colonel's eye and awakened his enthusiasm upon entering Jackson park was one of those miniature steam launches which ply a piratical trade upon the meandering waters thereabouts, and down into that particular craft went the colonel, and upon a comfortable cushion seat he him down, and unto the merry mariner he quoth: "Wait me, oh, gentle boatman, o'er the bounding billow and keep well in the shade, for my pores are open, my collar droops and I faint would be refreshed!"

The boat in which Colonel Nelson embarked was the Birdie, having an official draft, as her license indicated, of two feet, but for the six hours during which the colonel compressed that cushion the Birdie for the first time in her seafaring career drew a draft of seven feet and ran the risk of slipping water every time a tack or a turn was made. From this point of view the colonel did the Manufacturers, the Fine Arts, the Mining and the Transportation buildings. Subsequently he viewed Midway plaisance from a sedan chair borne by four sweating slaves, and when he got ready to return to the Windmere hotel he did so in a wheel chair.

Yesterday Colonel Nelson resumed operations, and last evening he was wondering why so many people complained of being tired. His experience convinces him that the World's fair can be done without fatigue, provided one goes about it in a sensible way.—Chicago News-Record.

Guns Not Needed In Summer.

There is neither need for nor sense in taking gun or rifle into the woods at a season when the law forbids its use upon birds and animals certain to be seen. Many an otherwise honest camper has become a law breaker simply because a gun or rifle was within easy reach at the wrong moment. Take all the fishing tackle you may desire, but leave the firearms at home until the proper time for their arrival. "But we might see a bear!" a camper exclaims. "Well, suppose you do see a bear? It won't hurt you, and you won't see it long after it sees you. Nor is there glory of much worth in killing a summer bear in poor coat and of no earthly use. 'But we might see a—' Yes, exactly! I'll finish it for you. The word was stopped just in time.

The fact is, you might see a moose or a caribou, or a deer or grouse, or duck or any one of the animals or birds which the law of the land, of honor and of common sense forbids you to meddle with for a reasonable time. And, furthermore, my friend, if you should see one of these creatures you'd promptly try to "plug it," and that is precisely what you have no business to do. "Lead us not into temptation!" is good, and "Don't lead yourself into temptation" has also certain merit of its own, so why not make a sure thing of it by leaving the tempters behind so they can't tempt you?—Outing.

An English Observer In Chicago.

It is only in the far west probably that the old race of spitters keep up the best practice. In the cities, at any rate, you seldom see men who tilt back in their chairs, put their heels on the dinner table and take the tea from 40 paces. Civilization is progressing when you must not talk about spittoons, but demand that utensil under the name of "cuspidor." Still the most prominent notice in the Woman's building is, "Do not spit on the floor." A man stood beside me as I read this. He wore a slouch hat, to which Buffalo Bill's would be a trifle of rich tobacco juice wadded his mouth like a barrel, his boots were models for a coffin maker.

Noticing, I dare say, a twinkle in the corner of my eye, he said slowly and with that grim, smileless humor befitting a slabsided hero from Indiana way, "Say, now, do they mean that we must take a shot at them pictures?" There is certainly a suspicion of local opinion suggested in that sentence. Better to have gone on the principle of some other notices which, without waste of printers' ink (and composition), meet your eye everywhere: "No admittance. Go out!"—Chicago Cor. London News.

Abetting Persecution.

American friends of Russian freedom are not silenced by the promulgation of the treaty with the czar. They protest as earnestly as before against a compact whose political extradition is all on one side. We have no political crimes except at rare intervals. Russian laws turn hundreds of petty words and actions into crimes. From the punishment the only escape is on forged passports, and the treaty makes that forgery an extradition offense. Kennan asserts that this provision alone will cover every political offense known to the severe Russian law. We have given Russia's government all the assistance it asked in the suppression of free speech among millions of men. In return we get nothing, for we shall want nothing of that sort. The United States is not now a land of the free and a home of the brave in the estimation of Russian republicans who have loved us.—St. Louis Republic.

One Legged Cyclist.

A transcontinental tour on a bicycle by a man with the orthodox number of legs is no longer uncommon, but the same journey by a man with one leg is certainly novel. Frank S. Beedleson, a young cyclist from Canastota, N. Y., has started from San Francisco to cross the American continent and expects to reach New York city within 100 days. Beedleson is a young man and has been station agent for the West Shore railroad at Canastota. He claims to be the champion one legged cyclist of America. He lost a leg on the railroad several years ago. Beedleson's journey will be watched with interest.—Exchange.

The Siam Trouble.

Of the precise merits of the question between France and Siam at its present stage it is not easy to speak until the nature of the French ultimatum is made known. But the Siamese appear to have shown a conciliatory spirit in the boundary dispute. The area in controversy is the broad belt of land lying east of the Mekong and between that river and the main mountain chain of Anam. The French accuse Siam of putting garrisons into this area, but it is quite certain that the Siamese have withdrawn from point after point without a struggle, while such conflicts as have occurred seem to have been of local origin rather than under the orders of the king. This monarch, a man of about 40 years, who has been on the throne since the age of 15, is admitted to be a ruler of high character, humane, anxious for reforms and eager to place Siam in the advanced line of modern Asiatic progress. He has made many internal improvements in his kingdom, has fostered commerce, has welcomed foreigners, and if he now hesitates to give up a large part of what he has always considered his domain at the menace of a French fleet and an Anamite army it is what might be expected.

One question now for Siam is, What is England going to do? Without her aid Siam may fall into the hands of France, as Burmah fell into those of England herself. Yet that aid might itself reduce her to the condition of a British protectorate. The disputed boundary is a fair subject for arbitration, but there is no indication yet that France will agree to settle it in that way.—New York Sun.

Fortifications For an English Port.

The British war department has made arrangements for having the works in connection with the fortifications at Chatham considerably advanced during the current year. The chain of forts which for some years past have been under construction in the vicinity of Medway are intended for the defense of the dockyard and naval arsenal and the military depots at Chatham and also of the approaches to London. The expenditure has already reached a total of many thousands of pounds, and it is estimated that a further outlay of between $100,000 and $150,000 will be necessary before the works are complete. Of this sum it is expected that $70,000 will be expended during the coming year—$45,000 on the eastern defenses and $25,000 on the western. In both of these cases there has been a large increase in the amount of the original estimates.

It was anticipated that the works in connection with the eastern defenses would cost $380,000, but owing to the substitution of civil for convict labor that sum has been raised to $580,000. The original estimate for the construction of the western fort—$80,000—was also found insufficient, but up to the present time the actual expenditure on this particular fort has been only about $10,000. When the system of fortification is complete, Chatham will be well nigh invulnerable both by land and water.—Exchange.

Working a Neat Trick.

"I saw a funny thing out in Chicago while on a recent trip to the World's fair," said a gentleman from West Virginia. "I was in the lobby of the Palmer House one evening talking with Colonel Jim Butt, our state commissioner, and several other gentlemen. Against one of the gilded pillars near us leaned a forlorn looking wretch in seedy garb, who every now and then gave vent to a consumptive cough that seemed to cause him intense pain. Suddenly he fell in a heap to the floor, apparently with great force, and in a minute a crowd was around him—a sympathizing crowd too. One fellow, who was the most officious in rubbing the unfortunate's head with some kind of liquid to restore him to consciousness, said:

"Gentlemen, I tell you what ails this man. It's nothing more or less than starvation. He hasn't had a mouthful to eat in 48 hours. All he wants to bring him around all right is a good beefsteak and some hot rolls."

"If that's what ails him," said Colonel Butt, "he needn't suffer any longer." And he pulled out a $5 note and handed it to the Samaritan, who had gradually rubbed his pal back to life. Then the pair ambled off arm in arm to play the trick in some other hotel, but they must have gone at least a block before it dawned on Butt that he had been victimized."—Washington Post.

Old People Show.

A somewhat novel competition, which is described in our Paris letter published today as constituting the antithesis of the baby show held in the French capital a year or two ago, is about to take place next month in the Pavillon de la Ville de Paris in the Champs Elysees. It is an international show of old people. No one under the age of 90 will be permitted to compete for the prizes offered, but as there are at least 80 duly authenticated centenarians in France alone this restriction will hardly interfere with the success of a show from which the medical authorities expect to derive as much scientific and useful information as they were able to obtain from the baby show two years ago.—New York Tribune.

A California Fair.

The project of holding a winter fair in San Francisco is gaining strength, and if the financial troubles do not check it the scheme will be carried out. Much depends upon the personal influence of Herr Cornely, the German manager, who is on the coast to push the matter. The Southern Pacific company and many large corporations are earnestly in favor of the project.

The trustees of a military academy in Macon, Mo., have brought an action for heavy damages against five ministers for issuing a boycott on the academy because dancing was taught the cadets.

The German and Swiss governments have entered into an agreement for the improvement of the navigation of the upper Rhine, commencing from Lake Constance.

—Mr. Benjamin Franklin Houghton died at his residence on Washington street, Saturday afternoon after an illness of several weeks. Deceased was born in Weston, and was 68 years of age. He received his education in the West Newton English and Classical school, and for the past 40 years had been identified with the business and social interests of this place, conducting here a successful grocery establishment. He was one of the solid business men and was very highly esteemed and universally respected. He was a member of the Second Congregational church, the Newton Veteran Firemen's Association and other local organizations, and one of the directors of the First National Bank and Newton Cemetery corporation. He had been an active member of the West Newton Lyceum Association, and was one of the original founders of that society. During his latter years Mr. Houghton gave considerable time to literary pursuits. He was an exceedingly well read man, with an unusual fund of good sense and quaint humor, which rendered him especially popular and agreeable in social circles. His death will be sincerely mourned by a very wide circle of friends. A widow and daughter survive him. The funeral took place from his late residence, Monday afternoon. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends. The interment was made in the family lot in the Newton cemetery.

—During the absence, for a part of August of Mr. J. F. Fuller and members of his family, Miss Carrie Fuller will be domiciled at Mrs. M. B. Hussey's, Elm street.
—There are letters in the postoffice for Daniel Bresnahan, John Barry, Reuben Braxton, Mrs. Mary Davis, Mrs. Fitzsimmons, G. O. Hill, E. J. Harris, S. C. Hatch, Charles James, H. G. Lewis, Chas. Maloney, C. H. Moore, Rev. M. C. McKown, E. B. Newton and C. M. Waters.

—Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Fairbrother and Dr. Eugene Crockett, a specialist, and a Newton boy who has made wonderful progress in the medical profession, have taken an apartment house on Marlboro street, Boston, where the doctor will establish an office. They take possession August 1.

—Isabella Wilson died at Worcester a few days since, and was buried there on Tuesday.
—A World's Fair party is being organized here. It will include quite a delegation of localities who intend to make arrangements for a first-class trip. Its members will leave for Chicago in October.

—Mr. George T. Lincoln of the City Press Association and Miss Jane Adelaide Twombles of Haverhill, N. H., were married at the home of the bride Monday. Rev. H. F. Hill officiated. Following the reception Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln departed on their wedding tour. They will reside here upon their return.

—Mrs. Abigail Keith (nee Robinson) died at her home, East Bridge-water, Mass., on Saturday last, at the advanced age of eighty-eight years. She was a lady of the old school of amiable disposition and was highly esteemed by all who knew her. She was mother of our late fellow citizen, Dr. Theodore Scott Keith. She had been for several years a widow; three children, Mr. W. F. Keith of the Waltham Paper mill at Roberts' station, Mrs. Francis Worcester and Miss Elizabeth W. Keith, survive her.

—A Celestial named Sing Lee, has been having a good deal of trouble of late with the patrons of his laundry, over laundry bills and in regard to missing collars and cuffs. The trouble culminated Sunday morning, when a colored man, named Ridgeley Moore called at the shop, and asked for his laundry. The Chinaman refused and presented Moore with a bill, which he claimed the latter owed him. Moore denied the indebtedness and insisted on receiving his laundry package. Some hot words followed, and finally Sing Lee seized a hatchet, and drove Moore from the shop. The same afternoon Moore called again for his laundry, and was again intimidated by the hatchet in the hands of the late Celestial. Moore complained to Officer Purcell, and a warrant was procured for Sing Lee's arrest. In court, Tuesday morning, he was fined $10 for assault with a dangerous weapon.

—Mr. Benjamin Franklin Houghton died at his residence on Washington street, Saturday afternoon after an illness of several weeks. Deceased was born in Weston, and was 68 years of age. He received his education in the West Newton English and Classical school, and for the past 40 years had been identified with the business and social interests of this place, conducting here a successful grocery establishment. He was one of the solid business men and was very highly esteemed and universally respected. He was a member of the Second Congregational church, the Newton Veteran Firemen's Association and other local organizations, and one of the directors of the First National Bank and Newton Cemetery corporation. He had been an active member of the West Newton Lyceum Association, and was one of the original founders of that society. During his latter years Mr. Houghton gave considerable time to literary pursuits. He was an exceedingly well read man, with an unusual fund of good sense and quaint humor, which rendered him especially popular and agreeable in social circles. His death will be sincerely mourned by a very wide circle of friends. A widow and daughter survive him. The funeral took place from his late residence, Monday afternoon. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends. The interment was made in the family lot in the Newton cemetery.

Whether Pasteur and Koch's peculiar modes of treatment will ultimately prevail or not, their theory of blood-contamination is the correct one, though not original. It was on this theory that Dr. J. C. Ayer of Lowell, Mass., nearly fifty years ago, formulated Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Cleanliness Saves Life.
With the approach of hot weather the question of clean, healthy surroundings is one that must command the attention of every one, and especially in view of the fact that reports have been published that cholera can always be prevented by keeping things clean. The physician should be the preacher of cleanliness, for cleanliness saves more lives than all of the drugs known to us. This includes body cleanliness as well as that of surroundings. Use water, deodorizers and disinfectants steadily through the hot season. There is a sanitary condition of our bodies as well as our surroundings. Bad matter is continually exuding from the pores of the skin, and if this is not washed off frequently it will become the breeding place for disease germs. Fatal germs are in dust dirt and particles that float in the air. These cling to the body, and under the warmth of the heat from the body they multiply.

Many who are filthy get infectious diseases, while those who are clean escape. It is the safest protection that one can obtain to surround the body with a clean skin. Our surroundings must also be clean, sweet and pure. Filth creates infectious atmospheric conditions that baffle the wisest sanitarian, and every epidemic begins in dirt. Decaying animal and vegetable matter, imperfectly cleansed clothing, person or bed, are all breeding places for diseases that may in time become epidemic. The physician should work to prevent all of this, and every one who has the good of his country in mind should aid him in trying to keep the surroundings of the community clean and sweet in hot weather.—Yankee Blade.

For He Might Have Been a Russian.
The case of Lup Chue, the Chinaman who was arrested for violating the United States registration law, was heard before United States Commissioner A. J. Williams yesterday. Judge Blandin, the attorney for Lup Chue, charged that the state could not prove that Lup Chue was a Chinaman. There was no expert testimony to demonstrate that Lup Chue was not a Japanese, or a Russian, or a Turk, or any other nationality. The state was utterly unable to show what constituted a Chinaman, and Lup Chue was discharged.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Mrs. Astor Is Edging Into the Inner Circle.
There seems to have been a misstatement in asserting that Mr. Astor will take up his permanent residence in England. Mr. Astor's financial interests will demand his frequent presence in New York. Mrs. Astor will, however, be more constantly in this country, where she has received the most friendly attention from the aristocracy. It was noticed that at the drawing room Mrs. Astor was received into the inner circle as a special mark of the queen's favor.—London Court Journal.

THE PRINCIPAL POINT OF OBJECTION in the proposed treaty with Russia is the exceedingly loose definition of political offenses in article 2, which exposes a large class of people who come to this country for a refuge from political, social and religious oppression to the malicious machinations of a foreign power, which affords no such guarantee of a fair and just trial under the law as those which constitute the chief pride and privilege of the American people.
Standing as this nation does for universal liberty and human rights, we stultify our own principles and deny our own history when we deprive one worthy refugee who has been persecuted out of his native land of the guardianship of our beneficent laws and the protection of our courts of justice. Under this treaty the Russian government can come into this country by means of its agents and pursue any Russian whom it may see fit to charge with an extraditable offense and demand his immediate surrender, even though he has become a fully naturalized American citizen.—New York Mail and Express.

Ungallant Criticism of Gladstone.
An exhibition of exhibition of judicial taste and humor was given by Sir Richard Harington at a church defense meeting at Hereford recently. The county court judge presided, and in closing the meeting he remarked that there was only one person in the universe who would be dissatisfied with their proceedings.
"That person was usually described as an old gentleman. He did not mean Mr. Gladstone. He meant the devil." Sir Richard's elegant persiflage was a fitting supplement to that of Mr. W. Morris, who, speaking on the same day at a meeting held under the presidency of the bishop of Hereford, suggested that Mr. Gladstone persisted with the Welsh suspensory bill "he might be accused, probably rightly accused, of treading in the steps of Judas Iscariot." Mr. Morris, however, is but a layman.—London Truth.

RAYMOND'S VACATION EXCURSIONS.
ALL TRAVELING EXPENSES INCLUDED.

THE WORLD'S Columbian Exposition.

The grandest Exposition the world has ever seen is now complete in every department. Nothing remains unfulfilled.
The Raymond & Whitecomb Grand Hotel (Oscar G. Barron, Manager), at which our parties sojourn, is a permanent brick structure of the best class, only four stories in height, splendidly arranged, provided with every luxurious appointment of the best modern hotels, and elegantly furnished. Its situation, in a fashionable residence section of the city, near the Exposition grounds and exp. ad to the lake breezes, is unequalled. Passengers are landed at a station only a single block distant, and an entrance to the Exposition grounds is directly opposite the hotel, while others are near at hand. All water used for drinking and cooking purposes is distilled and absolutely pure, and the purest Wisconsin ice is also supplied.
Daily special trains from the East, made up wholly of elegant vestibuled Pullman palace sleeping cars with dining cars, run through to the hotel without change.
While many parties for the coming months were long in being filled, the following dates are still open to the public, early registration, however, being in all cases advisable:
July 22, 26, and 29.
August 4, 5, 9, 12, 15, 16, 19, 23, 25, 26 and 29.
We also have frequent trains including transportation, Pullman berth and meals only, without hotel accommodations.

GENIUS AND WEALTH.

BRIGHT MEN SOMETIMES MANAGE TO SAVE THEIR EARNINGS.

Members of the Literary Profession Are an Exception in the Great Field of Brain Workers. For Few Great Writers Have Ever Amassed Fortunes.

The accumulation of an estate of nearly $700,000 by the late Edwin Booth is suggestive of the large profits made by an actor of great eminence. It is also an indication that the popular impression that dramatic genius, and artistic genius generally, is incompatible with the keeping of money is not justified by the facts. Mr. Booth's fortune must have been gathered almost wholly during the last 20 years of his life, or since the failure of the theater which he established for himself in 1869 at the corner of Twenty-third street and Sixth avenue. The circumstance that it consists of personal estate only, with the exception of a place at Newport, suggests also that it grew altogether out of his professional gains during that short period, and it indicates how great those were and how prudent he was in their management.

In this prudence, however, he was not extraordinary among actors. Edwin Forrest, with whom he competed for the popular favor at the beginning of his successful career, left a large fortune also when he died in 1873. Charlotte Cushman, whose dramatic career was simultaneous, and who died in 1876, left a very handsome estate. Mr. Henry Irving, the distinguished English actor, is a man of fortune, and many of the men and women of the stage are now the possessors of wealth or of a competence which renders them pecuniarily independent. The great mass may spend as they go along, taking no thought for the morrow or having no faculty for accumulation even when they have incomes large enough to afford an opportunity for its exercise, but it is the same with the run of other people, of men of affairs and professional men.

The genius for making money and the genius for keeping it are apart and distinct. If they always went together, the decrease in the poverty of the world would be enormous, but proportionately they seem to be united in men of artistic genius as often as in those without that great gift of heaven, if not of nature. Nearly all the artists of high distinction at this time, in music, painting, sculpture, architecture and the drama, have accumulated fortunes, which in many cases are large. They are receiving incomes which justify extravagance, but they are not wasting money more than other successful men, they are not more likely to acquire habits of dissipation, and apparently there is not less practical sagacity among them.

An art which may not be so conducive to great material prosperity is the literary art. Very few writers, no matter how great their distinction, have ever got rich out of writing, and at the present day the number who have done so is so small that we could include them all in a short list. Fortunes like that of Edwin Booth and those of the illustrious painters, sculptors, musicians and architects of this time are almost unknown among the men of literature. The incomes of the great body of writers best known to the people are meager as compared with those of the others. They are much less than the incomes of lawyers and physicians of parallel professional eminence.

As things are, if a man wants to get rich, literature alone offers him a poor show for the gratification of his ambition. He may get along very comfortably, but the chances are against his accumulating a fortune like Mr. Booth's out of his professional gains, no matter how clever his art, how saving he may be and how extraordinary his business sagacity. That is why Mr. Walter Besant and his colleagues are finding so much fault with the publishers. They think that the publishers are getting rich at their expense; that the author furnishes the fuel, and that the publisher warms himself by the fire while the author stays in the cold. But what other remedy is there than that the author should be both the writer of the book and its manufacturer for the market?

He must unite both profits in himself or take for his manuscript what the competition of trade will give him. If he have not a combination of qualities and aptitudes, enabling him to be both a man of business and a writer, he must pay for his defects. The picture is done when it is painted. The book requires the expenditure of labor, capital and enterprise upon it after it has been written by the author, and without that expenditure it is worthless.

Hence, when fortune comes to literary men, outside of 10 or 15 in a generation, it comes to editors who get both the writing and a manufacturing profit, but these, too, are few. The capacity to make a successful newspaper is rare, and like all rare gifts it is sometimes richly rewarded. —New York Sun.

A Good Memory.

Mrs. Robinson, who keeps a cigar stand in the business part of Chicago, has a memory that would do credit to the best detective in the country. A year ago a fellow bought a few cigars from her and tendered a $20 bill in payment. She made the change, when he cleverly palmed a $10 bill and claimed that she had given him that much too little. She gave him the $10, but when she made up her cash she found that she was just that $10 short. A few days ago the same man came to her stand, and calling for a cigar laid down a $10 bill. She knew him at a glance, and promptly sweeping the bill into her cash drawer told him that they were even. He demanded an explanation, and she reminded him of the transaction of a year ago. He protested that it was a case of mistaken identity and threatened to call the police, but she was firm, and he went away and did not come back. —Charleston News and Courier.

JAPANESE FISHERS.

DESCRIPTION OF THEIR TACKLE, BOATS AND COSTUMES.

They Do Not Handle Their Oars Up to Yale "Form"—Long Days of Work With but Small Return—Picturesque Scenes About the Shore in the Evening.

The waters on the coast of Japan are bountifully supplied with fish, and accordingly a large number of people along the coast are engaged in fishing. From a village like Isozaki the boats got out for the day, and in many aspects an account of their work will illustrate fishing along the entire coast. All through the day the village is exceedingly quiet, except for the scores of quite naked children, who at all times are diving, swimming and playing in the water near the shore, only coming out of the water occasionally to sit upon the hot rocks to warm themselves. It is no exaggeration to say that the greater part of their time is spent in the water. They are of course brown as Indians, but as much at home in the sea as fish.

At about 4 o'clock in the afternoon the excitement of the day begins. A few men are seen gathering on the tops of hills and high points along the shore, and soon upon the horizon we see the white square sails of the fishing boats. Usually the boat is fitted with two square sails, which are so managed as to hold a good deal of wind and to carry the boat forward with good speed. As they approach the shore the mainsail, which is held by a cross spar at the top of a slight mast 15 or 18 feet high, is furled and the mast taken in; then in a few moments the foresail, which is rigged in the same way and is about a third smaller, is taken in also; then are run out those peculiar Japanese oars, three or four on a side. The oar is composed of two pieces and is a very heavy affair, often as much as two men care to lift. It has a hole in the under side and rests on a pivot something like an outrigger. These oars run back toward the stern of the boat and are worked in a manner something like sculling by two men to an oar, the men standing to their work and facing the side of the boat.

To see one of these boats driven rapidly through the water one is vividly reminded of the Roman triremes propelled by the galley slaves of old. A peculiar shout accompanies the rowing, as if to aid in keeping time, but in fact each oar is worked entirely independent of the others, and there is no harmony whatever. There are few more picturesque scenes than these quaint Japanese junks with their high prows and sides as they come in with their white square sails set, and then the sudden transformation into a Roman galley as they approach the shore.

There is of course no wharf at the landing, and you are surprised as the boat reaches the beach to see her turned and run on to the beach stern foremost. The success of the day can readily be told even before they begin to discharge cargo by the activity of the rowers and the loudness of their shout as they approach the land, as well as often by a little banner run up in the stern, which proclaims a successful catch.

As the boat lies by the shore the crowd of men, women and children gather around, and a part of the crew discharge the day's catch, throwing the fish from the boat into the shallow water near the shore. Others take masts and oars from the boat and carry them up the beach, and others take out various other movables from the boat. During the month of August the fish, which are taken entirely by nets, are almost all kotsuo or bon to, of firm flesh and much liked by the Japanese as well as foreigners. A good day's catch for a crew of 12 to 18 men is about 800 fish, though often more than that number are taken. All the fish, having been thrown into the water, they are then gathered up and laid on the beach and counted.

While this is going on we may notice the sailors whose appearance seemed so unusual as they were seen approaching the shore. We at once decide that a fisherman's wardrobe cannot be an expensive draft upon his pocket, for their brown bodies seem to be adorned by only two garments, one a narrow white cloth about the loins and the other a bluish white cloth about the head and forehead, which prevents the perspiration from flowing into their eyes. This latter garment is rarely wanting, though the former frequently is. They are finely developed fellows physically, nearly all young men, and a very jovial and happy crew. The crowd along the shore has been increased by the coming of men drawing two wheeled carts with baskets upon them, into which the fish as soon as they have been counted are placed, leaving the beach red with their blood, and away go the men for a night journey to Milo, 12 miles away, the nearest large city, where the fish will be sold the next morning, or perhaps shipped by rail to Tokyo and other large towns.

Meanwhile the sailors have attached ropes to the stern of the boat, and with much shouting and pulling, have drawn her up over rollers upon the beach above the tide. The absence of paint, pitch or other substance for keeping the boat watertight makes it necessary often while she is lying on the beach to pile heaps of rice straw around her in the evening, which, set on fire, reveals a fantastic scene and helps to make her watertight for a short period.

Work over, the men take their lunch boxes—wooden boxes, 1½ by 2 feet square—in which they keep not only food, but a larger garment for the better covering of their bodies, and hasten away to their homes, bearing in one hand perhaps a fish for their own families. A short night's rest, and at 3 or 4 o'clock in the morning the boats are pushed off again, and another day's work begins. If their day's work realizes an average of 20 or 25 cents, they are very fortunate. The wretched huts that they call home and the condition of their living indicate, however, that they fall below this for the most part. —Leviston Journal.

At the World's Fair.
The Moors, the Turks, wild men with dirks
Here show their customs curious.
The Japanese and folks like these Wear knives that are injurious.
Here are balloons and foreign tunes
That skirl both fast and furious,
And Cairo folk as brown as oak
And Zulms true or spurious.

The dancing girls make startling whirls—
Be careful how you look at them.
All innocent and shy I went
And—well—a peep I took at them.

Men from Ceylon you'll see anon,
From Sitka and from Tokio,
For sights so rare you everywhere
Fees to men white or smoky oars.

Here moques you see and Japan tea,
And claims they serve romantically.
And sliding cars and foreign jars,
For which they charge gigantically.

The Ferris wheel, with arms of steel,
High as a tower will wind you up.
If you should fall, for good and all
The doctors they would bind you up.

Human Nature Is Queer.

Next to the first pronounced hoopskirt on Broadway the first straw hat of the season creates the largest attention. When a man has confidence enough in the weather to start out for a two days' trip with a straw hat, he is planning a great responsibility upon the weather bureau, which stands for our modern providence. I saw such a man at the Fifth Avenue hotel one day, and his was the first straw hat of the season. To say that he attracted much attention and was the subject of a great many pleasantries is putting it very mildly. There are some people, however, who are either indifferent to criticism or too obtuse to observe it, who begin things without consulting other people. Somebody has to begin, you know, but the large majority of mankind lack the nerve of woman-kind and dread to be conspicuous in any particular as to dress.

Men are awful cowards when it comes to dress. They wait for those of better nerve and then follow like a flock of sheep. Scarcely a man of all those who smiled and sneered and laughed at the man with the first straw hat but will be wearing a straw hat himself this summer. Yet if all men were like these no such thing as the comfortable straw would have ever been worn, because no man would have had the courage to begin it. There is a certain humor in the incongruity of things, it is true, and if a man appear on Broadway in straw hat and ulster he is likely to be a sensation—at this season of the year. A month or two later and the man with the overcoat and straw may be seen at any summer resort. —New York Herald.

Champion of the British Monarch.

Queen Victoria has lost her champion. He died only the other day, but his son succeeds to the office. It is his duty to stand ready at all times to defend against all comers the right of the sovereign in public, personally or by duty, on coronation day, when, unless the sovereign dispenses with the ceremony, he must declare her formally crowned, throw down the gauntlet and defy her enemies. If the champion fails in this duty, he forfeits his estate, given the family by William the Conqueror, and sinks into middle class obscurity, for the queen's champion is not a nobleman. Yeoman and squire was Robert de Marmyon when William the Conqueror made him his champion and gave him the manor of Scrivelsby, and his descendant, who has just surrendered the office by death, was a simple justice of the peace. Queen Victoria did not call upon her champion at her coronation, nor did William IV. George IV was the last king at whose coronation the ceremony was observed, but the simple country squire who succeeds now to the championship is not at all likely to be called upon to perform the duty of his office for Albert Edward.—Springfield Republican.

Experiments With Infected Cattle.

Interesting experiments are now being tried in England by a royal commission on tuberculosis. A cow is selected and for a considerable time is watched carefully to see that it is free from disease. It is then fed for some days on food infected with the bacteria and tuberculosis, and afterward time is allowed for the development of the infection.

The commission is to report whether meat and milk from such animals are infective, and if so the degree to which the use of them is likely to affect public health.

The experiments, which are necessarily slow, have consumed much time. The commission met recently to consider the results so far arrived at, but the final report will probably not be made before the autumn.

In view of the care with which this work has been done, the results will be of considerable value and may cause changes in the laws respecting the importation of cattle. —New York Sun.

The Caliph in a Fix.

The caliph of Khartoum is in a bad way. He owns 700 watches, and not one of them goes. In 1885, when the Mahdists invaded the town, all the European watchmakers left the place, and none of the natives understand watchmaking. To have 700 tickers and not know the time—awkward, very. The caliph has sent a special messenger to Suakin to engage a watchmaker, but he has been received very coolly. The ruler of Khartoum is said to be rather quick tempered and capable of cutting off your head if all his watches don't keep time to the second. —Petit Journal.

American Hay in Europe.

The first full cargo of hay ever sent from this country to Europe will be shipped to Havre in a few days per the German steamer Freiburg. Hay is worth from $40 to $50 a ton in many sections of Europe at this time, and the freight charge of $2.50 per ton cuts but a slight figure in the account. —Bangor Commercial.

The wedding ring which was used at the marriage ceremony of the Duke of York and the Princess May was given by the Welsh people. It is made of Welsh gold from the Merionethshire mines.

M. Hammett, a well-known business man of Hillsboro, Va., sends this testimony to the merits of Ayer's Sarsaparilla: "Several years ago, I hurt my leg, the injury leaving a sore which led to erysipelas. My sufferings were extreme, my leg, from the knee to the ankle, being a solid sore, which began to extend to other parts of the body. After trying various remedies, I began taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and, before I had finished the first bottle, I experienced great relief; the second bottle effected a complete cure."

BURGLARS MAKE A HAUL.

THEY BREAK INTO A RESIDENCE AT WELLESLEY FARMS.

Shortly before 12 o'clock Tuesday evening the residence of H. J. Jaguth, president of the Traders' Bank, Boston, located on Glen road, Wellesley Farms, was entered through a rear window, the intruders forcing the fastenings. The thieves ransacked the house, and secured considerable valuable property, the whole worth about $700. It included two gold watches, various articles of jewelry and a number of pieces of solid silver. The job was professional, apparently in every detail, and the tour of the premises was evidently conducted by a cool customer, prepared to meet almost any emergency. Mr. Jaguth's trousers were even rifled, and the studs and sleeve buttons taken from his shirt.

It is supposed that the same visitors went to R. Williams' house, securing there some silver and a small sum of money.

Several breaks have occurred recently in Wellesley, and the selection of the town recently offered a reward of $250 for the apprehension of the thieves and for information that would lead to the arrest and conviction of the parties concerned in the incendiary fires there. Local parties have been suspected and two young fellows, Costello and Farrell, were arrested and arraigned before Trial Justice Washburn in Wellesley Hills Tuesday night. He found sufficient cause to hold them for the grand jury.

DARKNESS FELL UPON THE CITY.

STORM TEMPORARILY DISABLES THE ELECTRIC LIGHT SERVICE IN THIS CITY TUESDAY EVENING.

The storm was marked by very heavy peals of thunder, following vivid flashes of lightning.

It passed over the city with more than usual velocity. The wind blew a gale for a short time, and played havoc with the telephone, electric light and fire alarm wires. Quite a number of trees were blown down, and limbs of others were snapped off as easily as one would break a twig. Sections of fences were overturned, blinds shattered and the debris scattered about. No very serious damage, however, resulted.

A large tree at the corner of Adam and Washington streets was hurled across the trolley wire of the Newton and Waltham street railway, and cars were delayed for a while. In repairing the trolley wire it became necessary to shut off the electric light service, and the city was temporarily in semi-darkness, the stores and public places especially presenting a gloomy appearance, having in most cases no independent number of gas jets for a very satisfactory illumination. A limb of a tree got suspended over an electric light wire, corner of Grove and Washington streets, Newton Lower Falls, necessitating some slight repairs. A street car on the Newton Centre line of the Newton & Boston street railway was thrown off the rails at the Summer street turn by an accumulation of gravel washed over the tracks by the rain.

At West Newton 20 telephone lines, including six trunk lines, were disabled, and about the same number at Newton. Many telephone lines were crossed and grounded.

Several barrels of lime in the Nurses home, a new building now being erected on the Newton Cottage Hospital grounds got afire, as a result of the heavy rainfall and an alarm was rung in from the private box 541, summoning the fire department to the scene. The barrels, however, had been removed from the building, when the apparatus arrived, and no damage resulted except the partial destruction of the contents. The aerial ladder, run on the way to the hospital ran into a sewer trench, two wheels settling down several inches. The pole was broken and the steering gear slightly damaged.

CELEBRATION AT NONANTUM.

OPENING OF THE NEWTONVILLE &amp; WATERTOWN STREET RAILWAY.

Nonantum was in gala dress Saturday evening, its citizens uniting in celebrating the opening of the Newtonville & Watertown Street Railway.

The line starts from Newtonville square and runs through Walnut and Watertown streets to Watertown, and thence over Galen street and the tracks of the West End street railway to Watertown square. The length of the line is about 13-4 miles, and it provides transportation facilities for a section hitherto having inadequate railroad accommodations in one of the bustling manufacturing centres lying nearly midway between the Boston & Albany and Fitchburg railroads. The line is to be extended to the Boston line by way of North Beacon street, Watertown. The Newtonville & Watertown Street Railway Company, it is understood, will ask the city of Boston for location for the tracks from the Watertown line over North Beacon street to the "four corners" in Allston, and over Brighton and Commonwealth avenues to Park square.

The Nonantum Club was especially interested in the demonstration. It is an organization that has taken a prominent part in public improvements believed to be in the interests of the development of the north side of Newton. In order to make the opening of the new line as much of an event as possible, it united with the railroad and city authorities, and members of the city council of Newton, representatives of the Watertown town government and other guests to go over the new road, three cars being provided for the transportation of the party.

The start was made from the Nonantum Club house at 8.15 o'clock. The cars were garishly decorated, and the occasion was made more inspiring by a fine display of fireworks. Ruggles band of Boston discoursed music just prior to the start, and during the entire trip to Watertown, returning to Newtonville square and back again to the Nonantum Club house.

The residences all along the route were illuminated with Japanese lanterns. In the square at Nonantum there was a blaze of light, every store having its adornment of bunting and lanterns. A throng of interested spectators nearly blocked up the street, and it is estimated that fully 5000 persons witnessed the pyrotechnic display.

The grounds of the Nonantum Club were very effectively decorated. From the flagpole strings of Japanese lanterns were festooned, giving the appearance of a vast tent brilliant with colors. Lanterns were garishly displayed about the veranda, in fact in every available place where an effective arrangement was possible. Over the gateway to the drive there was a large banner inscribed, "Welcome to the Newton & Boston Street Railway."

Other illuminations worthy of mention were made by Dr. D. Waldo Stearns, Daniel Stearns, Joseph Bailey, C. A. Cabot, Thomas G. Estes, Walter Keith and the Eastern Houston Narcotic Institute.

The concluding features was a spread given by the Nonantum Club to the city and town officials and other invited guests.

The Astonished Widow.

Twelve miles from the city of Belfast, Me., on the line of the B. & M. L. R. R., at the residence of Mrs. Sylvia Lang, lived a widow lady of about 65 years of age. She has been an active member of the Free Will Baptist church for many years, and a true and devoted Christian. She and her daughter, who resides with her, depended on their daily work with their needle for the support of themselves and two little grandchildren. All went pleasantly until the spring of 1892, when Mrs. Lang was taken sick with the grip. With the best nursing her daughter could bestow and the medical aid of her physician, Mrs. Lang did not seem to improve; the disease seemed to be seated on her lungs, a terrible cough set in, night sweats, pain in her side and back, with no appetite and all those characteristic symptoms of consumption were hastening her to her grave. At this critical point in her case, hearing of the wonderful cures by the use of Rodolph's Medical Discovery, she sent her daughter for a bottle and commenced its use. Her appetite in a few days began to improve; she continued to use and continued to improve during the spring and early summer months and all symptoms of the seeds of that terrible disease had vanished and she felt like one with a new lease of life. But imagine her astonishment and surprise to find that terrible sore on her leg and ankle, which had been a source of trouble to her for twenty years, rapidly healing by the cleansing powers of Rodolph's New Medical Discovery, and to-day she is a well woman, industriously plying the needle for her support and is a living witness to the cleansing and healing powers of Rodolph's New Medical Discovery, which can be verified by calling on her or writing her, enclosing stamp, to Brooks, Me.

BASE BALL.

EMMET L. A. 17, PETTEE, 9.

The Emmet club defeated the Pettee club of Newton Upper Falls, Saturday, in a hot game at Waltham. The Pettee club did very well with Kelly in the box, but he gave out in the sixth, and the E. L. A. boys with his successor, Murphy, got five hits, with a total of six, in one inning. Sweeney and Googarty did good work in the field for the Emmet club, while Manning did the most effective work in the box that he has done this season. The score:

Park Theatre.

Those are golden moments of pleasure that may be spent witnessing a performance of the Broadway musical comedy, "The Golden Wedding." It is proving an exceedingly merry and successful attraction at the Park Theatre, where it is just completing its eighth week and second month. The managers are to be congratulated that the summer season has proved so fruitful in its pecuniary results, that they are about to begin the beginning Monday next, starting in on the third month. The piece is sparkling, picturesque, brimful of bright bits, and there are so many clever people always doing something of an entertaining character that one quite forgets the heat outside or any of the cares of business. "Little Johnny Doozan" is decidedly the best of the new things and new things are added every week. It is evident that the management is always on the lookout for attractive novelties; so far an excellent record has been made. Sampson, the strong man, has no doubt, drawn very heavily on the people's patronage as well as on his immense weights, and J. W. Kelly, the unique entertainer has approved no less weighty an attraction with his powerful feats of entertaining. Jennie Yeamaus' parody on "After the Ball" has made a most pronounced hit and she is constantly adding new verses to meet the almost insatiable demand of encores. Dan Daly is always a great feature upon any stage where he may appear. With his eccentric and inimitable dances and his latest songs, he is a whole show in himself; so is Andrew Mack, and the Clipper Quartet, with new songs.

Pensions and Internal Revenue.

Texas paid last year $606,375 of internal revenue taxes and received in pensions $905,230. South Carolina paid $71,812 revenue taxes and received $171,129 in pensions. Tennessee contributed $1,278,862 and drew out in pensions $2,434,508. Alabama's revenue taxes were $106,771; her pension receipts were $400,729. Arkansas paid $95,718.26 revenue taxes; received in pensions, $1,470,901.77. West Virginia's revenue tax was $807,588.36 and was paid in pensions $2,158,703.12. Louisiana and Mississippi together paid $734,832.29 and received $847,552.45 in pensions. Maryland, Delaware and the District of Columbia paid $3,288,873.77 internal revenue tax and received in pensions $4,220,890.13. Step over into the northern states, and the conditions are reversed. Illinois paid in revenue tax $36,795,338 and received in pensions $9,343,996. New York paid $17,070,978 revenue tax and received in pensions $11,762,490. The aggregate amount of internal revenue taxes paid by the 10 southern states and the District of Columbia was $6,690,892.28, and the receipts from the pensions were $12,609,061.87, nearly twice as great.—Corporal Tanner in Brooklyn Eagle.

Said the man to the Irish boy: "What are you fishing for?" "Frogs," said the boy. "What do you bait with?" "I bait em wid a sticker," replied the boy. Frogs and some people's ideas about paints are the same as they were a hundred years ago. The Chilton Paint Co. is trying to convince the public that given the proper materials, mixed and ground by the proper machinery, the result can be better painted than it is possible to make by hand. Does it not seem reasonable that where the materials used in making a paint are seven times passed through machinery that does not vary in its action, the mixture is going to be more perfect than where a man or boy stirs them with a stick, adding a little oil, stirring a few times, then a little more lead and color, a few more stirs with the stick, until he gets tired and says he guesses it will do. Think this over. You must see that the man cannot do the work of a machine. We have the latest and best paint machinery that can be bought. Chilton Paint Co., New York and Boston.

Whether Pasterur and Koch's peculiar modes of treatment will ultimately prevail or not, their theory of blood-contaminated is the correct one, though not original. It was on this theory that Dr. J. C. Ayer of Lowell, Mass., nearly fifty years ago, formulated Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Immigration for May.

The immigration figures just issued by the bureau of statistics of the treasury department for the month of May show a very considerable reaction in the direction of increased immigration from the falling off of last year. For the five months ending May 31, as compared with the corresponding period of the previous year, there was a falling off of 40,000 and upward, and for the 11 months a falling off of 116,000. But for the month of May, as compared with the corresponding month of 1892, there was a gain of 3,143. The details of the showing are interesting. The largest gain over last year was in Italian immigration, 7,692. The largest loss was in German immigration, 6,199. There was a falling off in the immigration from Great Britain of nearly 2,000, and a gain in Austrian-Hungarian of 1,300. There were considerable gains from the Netherlands, Russia, Sweden and Norway, and a small gain from France. The account with Denmark and Switzerland shows losses. The aggregate for the month was as follows: Austria-Hungary—Bohemia, 1,060; Hungary, 5,150; other Austria (except Poland), 7,833. Denmark, 1,191; France, 691; Germany, 13,936; Italy, 17,638; Netherlands, 2,112; Poland, 2,184; Russia (except Poland), 11,281; Sweden and Norway, 10,261; Switzerland, 697. United Kingdom—England and Wales, 5,684; Scotland, 1,688; Ireland, 11,018. All other countries, 3,011. Total, 95,385.—Detroit Free Press.

Took First Prize.

The State board of pharmacy recently analyzed twelve of the most popular medicines in order to see whether they were what they were recommended to be. After two weeks of careful work, they awarded the first prize, a gold medal, to Messrs. A. P. Ordway & Co., proprietors of Sulphur Bitters, it being in their opinion the best and only strictly pure blood purifying medicine in the market.—Weekly Chemist.

"I was prostrated with a severe bilious complaint," writes Erastus Southworth, of Bath, Me. "After vainly trying a number of remedies, I was finally induced to take Ayer's Pills. I had scarcely taken two boxes when I was completely cured."

"A God-send is Ely's Cream Balm. I had catarrh for three years. Two or three times a week my nose would bleed. I thought the sores would never heal. Your balm has cured me."—Mrs. M. A. Jackson, Portsmouth, N.H.

I was so much troubled with catarrh it seriously affected my voice. One bottle of Ely's Cream Balm did the work. My voice is fully restored.—B. F. Liepsier, A. M., Pastor of the Olivet Baptist Church, Philadelphia, Pa.

Narrowly Escaped Burial Alive.

Mrs. Sara Meade has arrived home from Muskogee, I. T., where she was called by the supposed death of her son, Al Meade of this city, who was struck by lightning. Al is about 28 years of age. He is a painter and a few weeks ago accepted employment on a government contract about 20 miles from Muskogee, I. T. While engaged at work inside a house an electrical storm came up, and a flash of lightning descended through a flue near which he was at work, destroying the furniture in the room and felling him senseless to the floor. His body was rendered stiff as in death, and he was very badly burned on the right side. The hair was burned from his head and the flesh blistered down to his foot. His ankle was burned through, and his shoe was torn from his foot. He was supposed by all to have been killed and showed no evidence of life whatever.

Five hours later he had been put in a wagon and was being taken to an undertaker's at Muskogee, where it was the intention to have his body encased and sent to his mother in Fort Scott. It was necessary to cross a swollen stream, and in this act the bed of the wagon was partially submerged and the body nearly covered with water. The water had the effect of restoring animation to the apparently lifeless body. In consultation with physicians Mrs. Meade was afterwards informed that had not the water submerged his body, which was a rare incident, there is little doubt that the comatose condition of the body would have continued until he was encased in the suffocating casket, and death would necessarily have resulted.—Fort Scott Cor. Kansas City Times.

Register Cranks at the Fair.

The fair has developed some curious cranks. One of the most conspicuous is the gentleman who wants to write his name in every register he comes across.

He is generally enthusiastic over his own state, and makes for the local building as soon as he arrives on the grounds. Once there he first locates the register, and with a mighty sweep of the arm scrawls an illegible name across the register. This duty performed he wanders into the next state building, finds the register there and signs his name again.

All told there must be several hundred registers in use, for not only are they to be found in state buildings, but also in exhibits. One man entered the Minnesota building the other day, and as he signed his name exclaimed: "I guess I've beaten the record. This is the two hundred and fiftieth time I've signed my name. I guess more people'll know Jabez Dorcy after this fair than ever known he existed before."

It is amusing to watch these register cranks. One got in the California building. "Say, boss," said he to the secretary, "are these names sent back to be printed in the papers?"

"Well, I guess some of the correspondents do send them back."

"Well, I'll register then. I've registered in 50 different books these two days. You see I've got friends all over the country, and I want them all to see that I'm at the World's fair."—Chicago Mail.

A Sufficient Cure.

A Detroit, possessed of the idea that he was a sleuth of the class in which Vi-doce made his great fame, went to Chicago and succeeded in having his name placed on the list of Columbian guards.

He was bright and full of business. He thought very well of himself, and as a result of all these considerations he was made a detective. This sudden elevation of a tyro to the position of a full fledged thief catcher suggested to the light fingered gentry that their ability was being underestimated by the management, and they proceeded to show just how much of a "fly cop" the man from Detroit was.

They robbed him twice in rapid succession and then at rather brief intervals until he really began to wonder whether he was enough of a detective to keep his person in broad daylight. He has entirely revised his opinion of himself as a sleuth hound and is deluging his friends here with requests to get him a job as a street car driver.—Detroit Free Press.

Exploring Labrador.

Two members of the geological survey of Canada have started on one of the longest surveys ever undertaken into what is now generally supposed to be the wild, inhospitable territory in the far north and eastern Canada, known as the Labrador peninsula. The expedition will be absent from civilization for nearly two years, and before it returns hopes to have solved the enigmas of the interior of Labrador, concerning which such fabulous tales have been told. If it accomplishes this, the expedition will be a valuable contribution to the world's fund of geological information, and whether fully successful or not should bring back much important knowledge from that unknown country.—St. Johnsbury (Vt.) Republican.

Mr. Bennett Orders a Big Yacht.

James Gordon Bennett has ordered a yacht which will be considerably larger than the one which W. K. Vanderbilt is having made in England and will hold the record as the largest yacht afloat. It is to be built at Cramps' yard, Philadelphia, the work to be completed in two years or less.

Mr. Bennett's yacht will be 340 feet long and is to have quadruple expansion engines that are to drive her 23 knots an hour. It will be built by American labor, of American material and will be paid for with American money. The new yacht's equipment will be of the best, and much of it will be original in design.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Spanish Diplomats now propose home rule for Cuba.

The direct reason for their conversion is the fact that the expenses of running the little West Indian island last year were $6,000,000 in excess of the receipts. In other words, Spain, while willing to accept any revenue that Cuba might pay its mother country, does not care to shoulder the island's debts.—Lewiston Journal.

CITY GOVERNMENT.

NEWTON BOULEVARD CONSTRUCTION ORDERED—FIRE COMMITTEE DETERMINED FOR MUNICIPAL BOXES—INSURANCE MEN PROTEST—AUSTIN STREET EXTENSION GRANTED—CITY ENGINEER RESIGNS.

The aldermen met Monday evening, with the mayor in the chair, and all members present except Alderman Emerson.

At 7.30 o'clock several hearings were opened, the first being that granted the N. E. Telephone & Telegraph Co. for location on Newtonville avenue.

Mr. Albray of the company said to reach Mr. J. L. Richards' residence it was at first found necessary to place poles on Newtonville avenue, but after learning of the opposition further investigation was made, and it was found the house could be reached by placing poles on Bowers or Spruce streets.

Mr. Richards said he should rather do without a telephone than have poles placed on Newtonville avenue. He thought a location on Bowers or Spruce streets would be preferable, provided there was no opposition.

The hearing was closed. Hearings were granted on laying sewer in Jermain street, and on petition of Samuel Roosa for steam engine and boiler on Prospect street. No opposition was met and they were closed.

THE NEWTON BOULEVARD.

A joint hearing before both branches was opened on the Newton boulevard, some of the parties interested not receiving notice of the former hearing.

Ex-Gov. William Claflin said this boulevard was one of the most important projects that had been started in Newton for years. In a general way he was glad it had been projected and believed it met the approbation of most of Newton's citizens, so far as they were conversant with it. The expense of such an undertaking would be very heavy if carried through from South street to Auburndale.

He thought the majority of citizens would favor such a boulevard from South to Centre street, but from inquiries made of engineers and others conversant with the scheme, the advisability of extending it farther than Centre street was more doubtful. It might be well to carry it through to Auburndale in the future, but he saw no necessity for doing so at present.

With the country in its present unsettled state he believed it best to go slowly with a project entailing such large expense. The assessment of property for 1500 feet each side of the proposed boulevard he thought excessive. In the case of the Brookline boulevard assessments were levied only 500 feet each side, and 1500 feet seemed very objectionable and entirely unnecessary.

He believed it best to construct the boulevard from South to Centre street, and then if a success it could be continued later on.

Mr. R. M. Saltonstall said that since the last hearing he had made inquiries relative to the intention of the city of Boston with regard to widening South street, from the point of beginning of the proposed Newton boulevard. The board of survey, continued Mr. Saltonstall, has taken no action. The street commissioners have a plan which provides for a widening of only 80 feet. There has been no provision, however, made for the improvement in the appropriation bill, and the street commissioners state that nothing can be done, therefore, for a year at least. Mr. Saltonstall, in conclusion, called attention to Mr. Dumaresq's objection to the proposed line of the boulevard through his estate on account of the slicing off of a large section of land and of his willingness to give about 30,000 feet from the bottom of his estate if the line was changed to conform substantially with the original plan of the boulevard commission.

The hearing was closed on motion of Alderman Thompson. A communication was received from the town clerk of Watertown notifying the board of the action of the selectmen of that town in granting the city of Newton permit to construct a sewer in Watertown territory through Boyd street, from Fayette to Jewett street.

BOARD OF HEALTH.

The mayor appointed to serve on the board of health Dr. David E. Baker, Seward W. Jones, Frederick Curtis.

The quarterly report of the overseers of the poor was received.

Wm. A. Dunbar was appointed police officer to serve without pay at the Echo Bridge Boat Club.

SEWER PETITIONS.

The Newton Street Railway Co. petitioned for sewer in Washington street; Edward Gately petitioned for sewer in Cherry street; George Bullens for sewer in private way near Beacon street; John C. Chaffin and others for sewer in Fairmount avenue. Referred.

The N. E. Telephone & Telegraph Co. petitioned for location for poles and wires on Baldwin, Turner, Centre, Chestnut and Washington streets, and a hearing was ordered for 7.30 o'clock, Monday, Sept. 11.

The application of Mary Donahue for permit to erect building on Watertown street was received.

INSURANCE PROTEST.

Alderman Bothfield presented the following petition:

"To the mayor and city council of Newton: We the undersigned, representing fire insurance companies, engaged in placing and supervising insurance upon property in the city of Newton, respectfully represent that it would not be wise in our judgment for your city to take such action as would result in the combination of fire alarm signal boxes of different makes and devices upon the same circuit.

We believe that such action would tend to greatly impair the efficiency of the fire alarm system of your city and thereby increase the hazard assumed by insurance companies doing business in Newton.

In presenting this petition we recommend no particular system of signal boxes, and we are satisfied with any system approved by the New England Insurance Exchange, but we do remonstrate against the mixing of different systems manufactured by various parties and operating under different devices." This petition was signed by about 100 insurance representatives, among whom were J. Edward Hollis, Moses R. Emerson, U. C. Crosby, J. B. Cornish, H. N. Baker, C. M. Slocum, W. H. Smith, Henry Turner, Richard Rowe, Hollis & Wise, Hovey & Fenno, John C. Paige.

Applications were received for permits to erect dwelling house 20x22 feet, Cottage street; for stable 12x15 feet; to alter house on Ellis street.

Alderman Rumery presented petitions from W. H. Purdie, Wm. Claflin, M. H. Clough for sidewalks with edgstones on Court street; from F. C. Perry for concrete crosswalk on Court street; J. F. Harrington, for concrete sidewalk, Court street; A. C. Jenkins for concrete sidewalk on Centre place.

Wm. H. Keating, Hyde street, petitioned for concrete sidewalk. A. R. Mitchell and others petitioned for the laying out and construction of a way from Walnut street to be known as Claflin place. Referred.

Alderman Plummer reported for the claims committee, recommending a settlement of assessment on Mary A. Hudson on a basis of $120.

THEIR POSITION.

Alderman Rumery reported the following from the committee on fire department:

"The committee on fire department in view of the discussion upon the matter of purchasing five fire alarm signal boxes and statements regarding the same which have appeared in the public prints, also the difficulties or possible danger, which prevented the use of the fire alarm wires for a test experiment proposed for this (Monday) afternoon, desire to have placed on file this statement.

Provision for purchase of the signal boxes was made in the general appropriation order for 1893, adopted by the city council in November last, and in pursuance of their duties your committee carefully and conscientiously considered the matter of new purchases with reference to public necessity and the offers of the Gamewell and Municipal companies.

Your committee after such consideration patiently conducted, is fully convinced that the box offered by the Municipal Company is equal if not superior to that offered by the Gamewell Company and to be furnished at a much less price. Your committee is also fully convinced that no danger or risk can come to the city by the introduction and use of the Municipal Co's box, as different styles of boxes are already working on the fire lines in this and other cities, and expert testimony received by the committee is favorable to the non-interfering box of the Municipal Co.

Your committee is unanimous in the views herein expressed and believe that the best interests of the city will be subserved by the purchase of the box of the Municipal Co.

The order for the purchase of the boxes was offered with the full authority and wish of the committee and with the understanding that the box of the Municipal Co. was to be purchased. Your committee recommend that the order adopted by the common council, June 12, 1893, be taken from the table and adopted. Respectfully submitted,

E. M. RUMERY, Chairman.

Alderman Bothfield reported for the highway committee recommending the granting of various petitions.

Alderman Hunt reported for the sewer committee recommending granting the petitions of L. E. Coffin and C. B. Fillebrown and Geo. L. Lovett.

Alderman Bothfield reported, recommending the acceptance of Albert Gay's offer regarding Austin street extension, also the acceptance of his offer regarding Worcester street.

Reports were received from the city engineer regarding the apportionment of special and regular sewer assessments.

The water board were authorized to lay new mains in Kenwood and Webster streets at a cost of $250, and the sum of $5000 was appropriated for labor in laying main pipes at Nonantum.

Alderman Plummer presented an order authorizing the city treasurer to discharge the assessment claim against Mary A. Hudson in the sum of $120.

An order was presented and adopted authorizing the construction of a spur track from the N. Y. & N. E. railroad to the water department yard, under the mayors direction.

An order was adopted authorizing the construction of various crosswalks. The highway committee were authorized to construct various sidewalks and with edgstones.

"AFTER MANY DAYS."

Alderman Bothfield presented orders which were adopted, for the extension of Austin street, subject to the offer made by Albert Gay, to Mt. Vernon street, also for the construction of Worcester street and appointing hearings for Monday, Sept. 11 at 7.30 o'clock.

An order was passed establishing the number of patrolmen in the police department at 35.

Alderman Roffe moved that the petition of Samuel Roosa for steam engine be granted. Voted.

Alderman Hunt presented an order, which passed, authorizing the city treasurer to levy and collect sewer assessments on certain properties and estates.

An order was passed discontinuing a portion of land seized for sewer purposes.

On motion of Alderman Roffe the petition of E. F. Partridge for 6th class liquor license was granted.

HEARING SEPT. 11.

Alderman Hunt presented orders, which were adopted; for hearings on taking private land near Washington street for sewer purposes, on petition of L. E. Coffin and C. B. Fillebrown; for taking land for sewer purposes on Greenwood avenue and Gardiner streets; at 7.30 o'clock Monday Sept. 11.

The mayor presented for approval a bill of $104.50 for expenses of the recent fire inquest.

A petition for cross walk on Crescent street near Norwood avenue was referred.

CITY ENGINEER NOYES RESIGNS.

The mayor submitted the following communication from Albert F. Noyes, city engineer:

"It is my honor the mayor and the board of aldermen: Gentlemen: 'Having accepted the appointment of principal assistant engineer of the State Board of Health of Massachusetts, I herewith tender my resignation of the office of City Engineer of the City of Newton.

The acceptance of the above appointment was conditional upon my being allowed to continue so much of my services to the city of Newton as might be necessary, to advise in regard to the execution of the work which I have laid out or planned, or to prevent the interests of the city suffering by my leaving its service. With the above reservation and the present organization of the office force, each branch being assigned to the charge of a special assistant, I feel that I can make the change without loss to the city.

I wish to here express to the city government and the public, my deep appreciation of their many acts and expressions of confidence and support in the discharge of the various duties intrusted to me during my service of nineteen years in the department and seventeen years as city engineer.

Very respectfully,

ALBERT F. NOYES.

Alderman Roffe moved that the resignation be referred to a committee of three appointed by the mayor. Alderman Roffe, Bothfield and Hunt were appointed.

FORTY MINUTE RECESS.

After the recess, on the recommendation of the mayor, James C. Henthorn was removed from the office of Inspector of police, and appointed a patrolman.

George M. Redman and William Dolan were confirmed as patrolmen. The city solicitor said the city was satisfied with the acceptance of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company referred to him last week.

NEW SCHOOLHOUSE.

Alderman Thompson presented an order which was adopted authorizing the public property committee to erect an eight room school house at Newton Highlands in accordance with plans submitted by Messrs. Hartwell & Richardson.

After another recess Alderman Bothfield presented an order for the laying out of the Newton boulevard from the Boston line, assessments to be apportioned according to the betterment act. Adopted.

$100,000 FOR BOULEVARD.

An order was then adopted authorizing the construction of the Newton boulevard, from Chestnut Hill road to Centre street, and providing for the issuing of script to an amount not exceeding $100,000 to be denominated Newton boulevard loans, bearing interest not exceeding 4 per cent. per annum, the principal thereof to be utilized for part cost of construction.

ACCEPTED, BUT REGRETFULLY.

Alderman Roffe moved that the resignation of City Engineer Noyes be accepted and that the acceptance be referred to a committee with instructions to prepare suitable resolutions of regret.

Alderman Bothfield in seconding the motion desired to express his approval of presenting to Mr. Noyes such a fitting acknowledgment.

Alderman Plummer spoke of the skill, and sagacity displayed and his faithful performance of duties during Mr. Noyes years of service in the city of Newton.

Mayor Fenno said all would unite with him in extending their congratulations, and wishing him every success in his new position.

RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED.

The select committee to whom was referred the resignation of A. F. Noyes, city engineer reported the following resolutions:

"Resolved—That the board of mayor and aldermen receive with regret the resignation of Mr. Albert F. Noyes as city engineer, and desire hereby to place on record some indication of the respect and esteem in which officially and personally he is held.

Mr. Noyes by his constant and devoted attention to the details of his office, and by the broad and intelligent treatment of questions vitally affecting the present and future welfare of the city, has performed a service alike creditable to himself and the city, entitling him to the generous appreciation of his fellow citizens.

Resolved—That this board, with cordial wishes for his continued success, tenders its congratulations upon his appointment to a larger field of labor and emolument.

Respectfully submitted,

A. H. ROFFE, For committee."

The board then adjourned until Monday, Sept. 11.

The Fresh Air Fund.

The story of the "Fresh Air Fund" will never be told enough until the cities of the world have become the cities of the Great King, "where all the world is sweet." It was fifteen years ago that this question appeared in a paper, "Have you helped any one this week?" and by it a new plan of usefulness was suggested—Ten cents will give a tired mother a ride and a chance to spend the day in green fields. Like the grain of mustard seed this has grown into a wide-reaching charity which shelters multitudes of weary ones during the long summer heats.

Many are so fettered by work that they can leave their close, crowded homes for not more than a day. For these, a succession of picnics if provided in Franklin Park, with plentiful dinners and pleasing entertainments, at an expense of only thirty-five cents for each person. Others are permitted to enjoy a day at Crescent Beach or Nantasket. The best of all gifts is Rosemary Cottage, in Eliot, Maine, which was given in memory of a little child, where poor children, tired mothers, and over-worked shop girls are sent for two weeks at a cost, including transportation, or less than seven dollars per person. Many are now at this haven for weary ones distressed.

The children tell with delight of treading the hay, of swinging all they wanted to, and of the stories read to them on Sunday afternoons, while all have climbed the hill to see Mount Washington in one direction, and in the other the Isles of Shoals, "looking like long white boats."

A Norwegian lad, on being asked what he liked best at the Cottage, loyally pointed to the great American flag—to him a veritable banner of love—as it floated from its staff on the grounds, and answered, "I like best to see that flag flying!"

How new and beautiful the most common ways of happy living are to some of them is shown by the remark of the little boy who said, "Mamma, when shall we go again to that picnic where they ring the bell for meals?" No wonder he thought the two weeks were a continuous picnic.

A mother had added to her own large family a sister's five children who were left motherless. Though worn out, she felt that she must not leave her little charge; but when she was allowed to take four of the children with her, her happiness was complete, and she says that she shall make a better mother for the two weeks at Rosemary Cottage.

Another mother thought that heaven must be like the life at Rosemary, and gathering her children about her after their return resolved with them to make their own home as much like that as possible.

Contributions to continue the work of the Fresh Air Fund the present season are solicited. They should be sent to Rev. D. W. Waldron, 7 A Beacon street, Boston, and will be promptly acknowledged.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me." H. A. ARCHER, M. D., 111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"The use of 'Castoria' is so universal and its merits so well known that it seems a work of supererogation to endorse it. Few are the intelligent families who do not keep Castoria within easy reach."

CARLOS MARTIN, D. D., New York City, Late Pastor Bloomingdale Reformed Church.

Castoria cures Colic, Constipation, Sour Stomach, Diarrhea, Eructation, Rills Worms, gives sleep, and promotes digestion. Without injurious medication.

"For several years I have recommended your 'Castoria,' and shall always continue to do so as it has invariably produced beneficial results."

A FEW Testimonials from persons who have been cured by the use of Hill's Tablets.

THE OHIO CHEMICAL CO.: DEAR SIR:—I have been using your cure for tobacco habit, and found it would do what you claim for it. I used ten cents worth of the strongest chewing tobacco a day, and from one to five cigars, or I would smoke from ten to forty pipes of tobacco. Have chewed and smoked for twenty-five years, and two packages of your Tablets cured me so I have no desire for it. B. M. JAYLORD, Leslie, Mich.

DOBS FERRY, N. Y. THE OHIO CHEMICAL CO.:—GENTLEMEN:—Some time ago I sent for $1.00 worth of your Tablets for Tobacco Habit. I received them all right and, although I was both a heavy smoker and chewer, they did the work in less than three days. I am cured. Truly yours, MATHEW JOHNSON, P. O. Box 45, PITTSBURGH, PA.

THE OHIO CHEMICAL CO.:—GENTLEMEN:—It gives me pleasure to speak a word of praise for your Tablets. My son was strongly addicted to the use of liquor, and through a friend, I was led to try your Tablets. He was a heavy and constant drinker, but after using your Tablets but three days he quit drinking, and will not touch liquor of any kind. I have waited four months before writing you, in order to know the cure was permanent. Yours truly, MRS. HELEN MORRISON, CINCINNATI, OHIO.

THE OHIO CHEMICAL CO.:—GENTLEMEN:—Your Tablets have performed a miracle in my case. I have used morphine, hypodermically, for seven years, and have been cured by the use of two packages of your Tablets, and without any effort on my part. Address all Orders to

NICE YOUNG MAN, BUT A FOOL.

He Is Utterly Too Good, and His Wife Is Sick of Her Bargain.

One of the best girls any fellow ever knew and the pride of a village not a thousand miles from Pittsburg made a fatal mistake when she married. Being such a happy girl, so sensible and so much sought after by the best young men in the neighborhood, every one confidently expected her to make a great catch. But she didn't, and now her neighbors are wondering how it all happened. She married a fool. That explains it all. No need to go into details. The fact that he dressed well and that he moved in good society and was known as a "very nice young man" will not make the case any plainer. He is a fool, and that is all there is about it.

His foolishness consisted largely in believing that the world was not made right, that the people are wrong headed, and that it is the duty of every one to array himself against everything as it exists and keep up a constant grumbling, growling and complaining. This young man was very religious in a sense. He honestly and faithfully endeavored to keep himself unspotted from the world by avoiding contact with it. He went not into bad company, nor did he patronize places and evening parties, but staid at home reading good books and thinking how he could spin for himself a cocoon that would keep the outside world away from him. He did not realize the fact that he who has himself for companion and friend is in very poor company.

It was this sort of chap that our model girl married. She ought to have known better, but she mistook his knowledge of books for an evidence of brains and of learning, while the fellow really hadn't two ideas of his own about anything. The inside history of this case shows that she did not love him any better than she had other men, but he was such a nice young fellow that she thought there would be no risk taking him. In fact, she took him in the hope of escaping the very misery she is now suffering. He doesn't beat her with a club, nor does he get drunk and smash the furniture, but he tires her life out by lecturing her, finding fault continually and never commending, and trying to make her understand that her place is at home and that her duty is to him. Their home is dreary and chilly, and their lives about the same.

They are both satisfied that marriage is a failure, and they cannot be made to believe otherwise. It isn't the man who has the least book knowledge that is the biggest fool, nor are those who are short on general information to be classed with numskulls. Some of the most delightful people one may meet are those who are blessed with an abundance of common sense. They know absolutely nothing of Darwin nor of Briggs and not a great deal about electrical science, and they may even eat with their knives, pour their coffee into saucers and blow the soup to cool it, yet with all these shortcomings and defects they are the most delightful people to know. Their hearts are all right, and they understand enough of the science of life to know how to live comfortably themselves and to make others happy.—Pittsburg Commercial Gazette.

Water Started These Two Fires.

No principle of natural philosophy is more familiar than the power of water to extinguish fire. And yet, strange to say, water has been known to cause destructive fires, not by an accident, but by direct chemical action. One case of the kind was in a large factory. A flood caused the water to rise to a pile of iron filings, which oxidized so rapidly that they developed great heat and set fire to the nearby woodwork. The building was entirely destroyed.

Another case is still more remarkable. Several engines were throwing water upon a burning building, and the water found its way to another building, which contained quicklime. The slaking of the lime, caused of course by the contact of the water, generated intense heat, and the heat set fire to the building. That was a sarcasm of circumstances, wasn't it?—Philadelphia Times.

Value of Good Cooking.

We masculines have yet to learn that the kitchen is the most important end of the household. If that goes wrong, the whole establishment is wrong. It decides the health of the household, and health settles almost everything. Heavy bread, too great frequency of plum pudding, mingling of lemonade and custards, unimmaculable beef, have decided the fate of empires, legislative bills and destiny of empires. The kitchen knife has often cut off the brightest prospects. The kitchen gridiron has often consumed a commercial enterprise. The kitchen kettle has kept many a good man in hot water. It will never be fully known how much the history of the world was affected by good or bad cookery.—Nashville Advocate.

Why He Chose the War.

When Charles Dudley Warner was the editor of the Hartford Press, back in the sixties, arousing the patriotism of the state by his vigorous appeals, one of the typesetters came in from the composing room, and placing himself before the editor said, "Well, Mr. Warner, I've decided to enlist in the army." With mingled sensations of pride and responsibility Mr. Warner replied encouragingly that he was glad to see that the man felt the call of duty. "Oh, it isn't that," said the truthful compositor, "but I'd rather be shot than try to get any more of your copy."—San Francisco Argonaut.

Purchasing Safety.

Mr. Oldtimer—I think the pay of legislators nowadays is outrageously high. Mr. Nowadays—Nonsense, man! You don't know when you are well off. I wish they were paid more.

"More!" "Certainly. Pay 'em enough to sport steam yachts and race horses. Then they won't be so eternally anxious to sit at their desks and spoil our laws."—New York Weekly.

The Perfect Place to Dwell In.

We had always been hunting for it. We had always felt sure that somewhere, some day, we should find the perfect place which was to combine the charm of the middle ages with the comfort of the nineteenth century—the Albert Durer town which could be reached in a railway train, with medieval streets through which the dinner bell would make a pleasant sound, where there would be plenty of picturesque dirt in other people's houses, plenty of fresh water and clean rooms in our own hotel. Perhaps this is a bourgeois idea. But then that is our affair.

Eight years of wandering had brought us no closer to our undiscovered country, when, last summer, as we were traveling in the mountains of—but not why should we tell the name? Why break the serenity of its hilly streets with the rush of personally conducted parties or of easel laden artists? Why turn it into another Barbizon or Laguerre's, another Chester or Nuremberg? Besides, we have exploited so many places in our day; we have, in our recklessness, presented the painter, the illustrator, the magazine writer with more motives than they can exhaust in a generation; we have, by our enterprise, developed the cycling trade to an incalculable extent, and by our praise made the fortune of half the hotel keepers in Provence. And the result for us? Not a cycle manufacturer would give us a machine if we asked for it, not a landlord would throw us a crust were we starving, not an art student would find a spare moment to thank us. No; the name of the most picturesque place in the world we shall keep to ourselves. It is foolishly deliberately to court the fate of Columbus or Stanley.—Mr. and Mrs. Pennell in Century.

The Limits of Arbitration.

With international arbitration we confess to having comparatively little sympathy. If nations mean to fight, nothing will prevent their so doing, and agreements to arbitrate will be of very little service. The suggestion of an agreement between England and the United States to establish a permanent machinery for regulating their disputes is, however, quite different. Nations in whom the same racial characteristics are to be found, who are influenced by the same ideas, who talk the same language, read the same books and possess the same political traditions, are capable of making an agreement to settle disputes by arbitration a reality.

Again, an agreement not to fight till the question in dispute has been referred to a body exercising the functions of a court of law is a step in the direction of that alliance between the United States and England which we trust and believe, is the destiny of the two countries. If we begin by an acknowledgment that we are not in the position of foreign powers—i. e., liable to war at any moment—we may soon rise to a definite race alliance, and lastly to that declaration of a common citizenship which would prevent any Englishman from being an alien in America or any American being an alien in England and would heal the breach in the unity of the race caused by the folly of George III and his ministers.—London Spectator.

Hideous Advertisements.

It is said that a salmon, when quite devoid of appetite, may be worried into taking a fly, if only flies be presented to him with irritating pertinacity. "Hang it!" he exclaims, "I cannot be troubled with this Jock Scott any longer!"—he makes an irritable snap at it and is lost. Possibly in the same way persons are driven nearly wild by seeing this or that commodity thrust on their notice in railway stations, in trains, in the streets. In the fields, on the top of Ben Macdui. Then they may purchase a sample in despair, may like it and go on using it. This may be the theory of frantic and hideous advertisements, but on the whole it might seem more likely to view its own destruction. "Whatever I buy I will not buy that," one can conceive the citizen remarking and looking out for a less obtrusive article. But if advertising did not pay people would not advertise.—London Saturday Review.

Very Fine Handwriting.

Dr. Heylin, in his "Life of King Charles," records that during the reign of Queen Elizabeth "there was one who wrote the Ten Commandments, the creed, the pater noster, the queen's name, and the prayer of our Lord within the compass of a penny and gave her majesty a pair of spectacles of such an artificial making that by the help thereof she did plainly and distinctly discern every letter."

A somewhat similar feat was that "rare piece of work brought to pass by Peter Bales, an Englishman, who also exhibited before her majesty the entire Bible written in a book, containing as many leaves as a full sized edition, but fitting into a walnut."—Boston Commonwealth.

Danger in Odd Nomenclature.

Anything out of the common in nomenclature runs the risk of being burlisqued by unskilled tongues. The nurse who called her charges Miss "Burial" and Miss "Jones" must have made their mother wish she had never christened them Beryl and Joan. As Betsy and Jane they would have come off all right. Horses, too, with fine names get strangely miscalled in the stable. One pair known by their master as Rusteb and Sohrab, degenerated first into "Rusty and Soreback," and fell ultimately into the commonplace as "the little horse and the dothor."—London Globe.

Booth's Fondness For Waffles.

Edwin Booth had a curious passion for waffles. During his last engagement in Boston he ate one evening 25 waffles at a sitting, and hideous indigestion ensued—so bad, in fact, that the great tragedian could not play that evening, and a big house that had assembled to witness his "Shylock" was forced to go home unsatisfied.—Stage-land.

Expects to Have Arms Grafted to Him.

Theodore Lee, the armless newsdealer, who went east recently with a vague idea that he could get arms grafted on to his stumps, has been heard from. He has been inquiring among specialists regarding his case, and the finds that he may yet secure arms. First, the arms that are to be grafted on to his stumps must be taken from a healthy man or woman, and the hope is held out to Mr. Lee that he may find some person—condemned to be hanged, for instance—who would, for $1,000 say, be given to relatives or charity, allow an arm to be amputated for grafting purposes. Mr. Lee has in substance been informed that the splice would have to be made just above the elbow joint.

When Mr. Lee has found a person who will submit to the operation, they will have to be brought together in such a position as to permit of the arms of both, which are to be operated upon, being placed in plaster of paris casts so that they cannot be moved. Then it is proposed to cut the back part of both the arms, also cutting through the bone. The arm that is to be grafted on to Mr. Lee's stump or that portion of it that is cut away at the first operation is to be adjusted and fastened to the stump and allowed to remain until it heals and there is evidence of circulation between the stump and the part that is grafted on. The second operation will be the cutting of the remainder of the inside portion of the arm, together with the artery and the nerve. This operation, it is proposed, however, is not to be undertaken until the surgeons are satisfied that the circulation through the part of the arm already grafted on is sufficient to nourish and support the new forearm.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

How the Panic Was Stopped.

Horace McPhee, who is here as Riverside county commissioner, says there was no flurry whatever about the Bank of Elsinore. And then McPhee told a story which is particularly pat at these times.

He said there was a run on a bank in an iron mill town, and the depositors were being paid in silver dollars. The excitement increased, and the run became a fast one. The cashier was a young Irishman, and the work put upon him was more than he liked. He resolved to stop it. He sent the janitor with a bushel of silver dollars into a rear room where there was a stove, with instructions to "heat them silver dollars red-hot." They were heated, and in that condition he handed them out with a ladle. The depositors first grabbed the coin, then kicked. "But you'll have to take them that way," said the cashier. "We are turning them out as fast as we can melt and mold them, and if you won't wait till they cool you'll have to take them hot."

That settled it. The run was stopped. McPhee says the story is true, but denies that he was the Irish cashier.—San Diego Sun.

Excursions For Women Students.

The New York association for sending young women, advanced students, artists, teachers and skilled artisans, in parties of 17 at a time, for eight days' stay at Chicago, has raised nearly $10,000 for its two months' house rent, maintenance and traveling expenses. The expense account is: Excursion tickets, with berths in sleeping car, $38; meals on train, $2.50 each way; $5; lodging in Chicago, $8; two admissions daily to fair, $8; meals in Chicago, $1.50 daily, $12; car fares, $2; extras, accident insurance, $2. Total, $75. In their house the travelers are cared for by a competent woman. Another, who is experienced in conducting parties of tourists, meets the strangers on their arrival, spends three days on the fair grounds with each party and sees that they are safely settled in their places in the cars on the return journey.—Exchange.

An Offer of 2,500 Sheep Refused.

An offer of 2,500 sheep for nothing being refused is recorded by a Sydney paper. This occurred in the Riverina, New South Wales, where, in consequence of the drought, the land is greatly overstocked. In the case mentioned the sheep had been shorn, and as the selector, to whom they were offered, had no spare feed or water for them, they were killed and their carcasses burned. In other cases sheep have been skinned, their carcasses having been burned, as the skins were worth more than the sheep were when alive. One lot, sent by rail some distance, did not realize enough to pay expenses.

The Sweetest Smelling Place on Earth.

The Prince and Princess of Bulgaria are now on their way to Kezanlik, which is beyond all dispute the sweetest smelling place on earth. It lies on the upper Tundja, near the foot of the Shipka pass, in a valley full of rosefields. Kezanlik is the chief seat of the industry in attar of roses. It takes 20,000 of the roses that grow in that valley to yield, by distillation, as much genuine attar or otto of roses as equals in weight a 2 shilling piece. Now is the time that the roses are in full bloom, and the prince and princess are going there to see and to smell.

A World's Fair Excursion.

A novel World's fair excursion passed through Delaware county yesterday, en route from Cincinnati to Chicago. It consisted of a party of five young men in a covered wagon. Underneath the vehicle tramped five dogs. On the wagon was inscribed: "In God we trust. Chicago or bust!" The excursionists seemed happy and expect to sell the dogs for enough to pay the expenses of the party.—Indianapolis Journal.

Steve Brodie Going on the Stage.

Steve Brodie, pugilist, bridge jumper, saloon keeper and philanthropist, is going to try his wings on the histrionic atmosphere. R. V. Stevens has written a play for him called "On the Bowery," and the redoubtable Brodie is making preparations for a starring tour. He will begin active operations early in the autumn. His New York debut will be made in a Bowery theater.

Imprisonment For Snoring.

The club member who goes to sleep and snores in the reading room or library is a nuisance, but the punishment of his offense by a term of imprisonment has not yet been heard of. The magistrates at Aston police court, however, are, it would seem, in favor of such treatment. The London Truth calls attention to a case heard at Aston, where a laborer named John Groves was charged with vagrancy for having slept in a furniture van in the public street. A police constable on his rounds heard loud snores. He was not at first able to discover the origin of the sound, but on getting over a wall into a yard he found the prisoner asleep in a furniture van, snoring in such a manner as to make himself heard at a considerable distance from his hiding place.

The prisoner, in reply to the bench, said that he had been at work at Sutton, and on returning to his home at Aston, he was unable to gain admission, so that he went and slept in the van. The deputy magistrate's clerk pointed out, however, that he was disturbing the neighborhood with his mighty snore, whereupon the magistrates, probably taking this heinous offense into consideration, for nothing else was alleged against the prisoner, positively sentenced the wretched man to six weeks' hard labor.

Uncle Peter's Circus Ticket.

On Saturday last Uncle Peter L. Scaggs of Louisiana came down to see the circus and brought along a ticket purchased 12 years ago, when Robinson's circus exhibited at Louisiana. Uncle Peter is a widower, and when the show was at Louisiana he purchased two tickets, expecting to take his lady love to see the "animals." Before the show began they had one of those lovers' quarrels which so frequently turn anticipated pleasures into bitter disappointment, and as a result Uncle Peter went to the circus in single harness. He placed the extra ticket in his pocketbook, and for the 12 long succeeding years kept it as a reminder of a lost sweetheart. Last Saturday he presented this ticket to the gatekeeper, who demanded to know where he got it. "I paid my money for it 12 years ago, when this show was at Louisiana," replied Uncle Peter. "Well, my old friend, you look like an honest man, and I guess the ticket is all right. Pass in," was the reply made, and Uncle Peter waltzed in, feeling that if he had lost the old girl he had saved the money paid out for her edification.—Cattletown (Ky.) Democrat.

The Chief Justice on the Geary Law.

The chief justice of the United States has filed his written opinion in the case of Yick Wo, unregistered Chinese laborer. It is very interesting reading. He holds that the provisions of the fifth and fourteenth amendments shelter all persons of whatever nationality, race or color within the territorial jurisdiction. He describes the punishment of deportation sought to be inflicted on Yick Wo under the provisions of the Geary act as in effect a legislative sentence of banishment, unknown to the organic law and in violation of it. Concerning the Geary act itself, the chief justice says that it "contains within it the germs of the assertion of an unlimited and arbitrary power in general incompatible with the immutable principles of justice, inconsistent with the nature of our government and in conflict with the written constitution by which that government was created and those principles secured."—Hartford Courant.

Anxious to Break Gladstone's Heart.

Lord Randolph Churchill, speaking at Leicester on Wednesday, revived the history of the three conspicuous Irishmen who had broken their hearts over the repeal of the union, or something equivalent to it—O'Connell, Butt and Parnell. Now Mr. Gladstone is engaged in the same enterprise and will experience just the same fate. Great Britain will soon have an opportunity of showing its determination not to allow this empire to be disintegrated to please "the civilized world" or the powers who grudge England her prosperity and would gladly see her weakened by her own folly in taking a step backward in division, when all other states are taking steps to attain a stronger unity and a complete organization. Lord Randolph evidently expects an early dissolution.—London Spectator.

Stanford's Two Palm Trees.

Mr. Stanford was not superstitious, but he believed that his life was linked with that of two palm trees which he had planted in front of his Palo Alto home. He bestowed great care on these trees, and they flourished until a few weeks before his death, when their leaves began to turn yellow. No one noticed this change until one evening the senator called the attention of one of his closest friends to the trees and said he regarded this as a bad omen. He said solemnly, "When those trees die, my life will end." The palm trees are now dead, and Stanford lies lifeless in the shadow of his withered tops.—New York Tribune.

"What Did the Privates Do?"

Pleas of praise have gone up to Admiral Tryon's refusal, with the words "Save yourself," of a life belt offered him. He would have been base indeed had he taken it, and his heroism is simply naught compared to that of the man who had tendered the life belt. Not a single paper has touched on the grand unselfishness of the subordinate, yet from a woman's point of view at any rate—his offer was a far nobler act than the admiral's refusal.—Cor. Pall Mall Gazette.

"Rattlesnake Pete," who was one of the competitors in the recent cowboy race, has a suit of clothes that is made of 125 snakeskins, which took him nearly four years to gather. The buttons of his coat are rattlesnake heads mounted with gold.

A statement issued by the Japanese customs bureau shows that the trade of Japan with the United States is increasing more rapidly than it is with England, France and Germany.

yacht" is really two "mule yachts," but they are called one because taken together they serve a common object. That object is for the next three weeks to convey through all the regions traversed by the Delaware and Hudson, Morris and Lehigh Canals a party of young society people, who are out for an original and unconventional vacation. Expert drivers are the property of young women of the Mule Club. They do not ride a side saddle, but don't get shocked at that. They mount the mule and sit sideways in a neatly folded blanket, and a rare treat it is to see the daughter of a millionaire driving four mules tandem on a towpath. If she is a millionaire's pretty daughter and has a graceful figure and loose brown hair floating from beneath a wide straw hat, it is not to be wondered that she is a towpath sensation.

—Mrs. M. E. Mullen and family are at Point Allerton Hotel, Hull, until September.

—Mrs. F. W. Freeman and children are summering at Brewster.

—Mr. Dillingham and family of New York have been visiting Mrs. P. Stacy, Watertown street.

—Capt. Hatch's family are summering at Kennebunk, Me.

—Mrs. Fuller, Mrs. Fewkes and Mrs. Clark enjoyed a pleasant outing at Gloucester this week.

—Miss Emily Webster is at Brewster for a short stay.

—Mrs. George Bailey and Miss Bailey are at Marshfield.

—A delegation of the U. O. I. O. O., comprising several ladies, will enjoy an outing at Salem Willows next Wednesday.

—Miss Carrie A. Stacy of Milford is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Philemon Stacy, Watertown street.

—Several members of Charles Ward Post with their families enjoyed the outing at Winthrop last Saturday. The clam bake was a particularly pleasing feature.

—Col. Dr. S. Alexander and daughter from Buffalo, N. Y., are guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Libby, Parsons street.

—The regular monthly meeting of the Newton Veteran Firemen's Association will be held in Knights of Honor Hall, Wednesday evening, August 2. Business of importance will be transacted. There will be a drill at 7 o'clock and the tub will be tested by the fire ladders, who want to get it in first class condition for the approaching tourney.

—No more meetings of the city council until Monday, Sept. 11. On account of the important business under consideration the sessions have been extended far into the summer season and vacation plans have been more or less upset as a consequence. The third officials will now have an opportunity of getting a needed rest and here's to their very good health.

—A magnificent night blooming Cereus opened last Saturday evening at the residence of Mr. A. A. Libby, Parsons street. It began unfolding about six o'clock and attained its greatest size about 11 o'clock. It then measured 10 inches across the flower. The house was filled with its rich fragrance. A number of friends and neighbors enjoyed seeing this curious flower and some photographs were taken of it by flash light.

A pleasant occasion occurred here last Saturday evening, when Mr. and Mrs. Eben Clark of Cross street celebrated their silver wedding anniversary. Although such a severe storm quelled a large number were present from Waltham, Manchester, Newton Center, Newton Upper Falls and other places. A pleasing entertainment of reading and music was enjoyed, after which ice cream and cake were served. Mr. and Mrs. Clark were the recipients of a silver service beside other valuable presents.

—Many business firms are considering the introduction of electric motors as a means of furnishing power for their business. The power is to be obtained from the Newtonville & Watertown street railway company, having recently erected a large power house here. The company has a capacity for much more electricity than is at present needed for its street railway service. The power house is said to be one of the finest in the country. It is situated upon good authority that the company will furnish power to the West End Street Railway Company for its line in Watertown to the car house in Mt. Auburn.

—Bicycle accidents here are becoming numerous and wheelmen who persist in riding on the sidewalk are sure to meet a good deal of nuisance. Recently, Mr. Charles Scamman was knocked down and bruised and shook up considerably. The man who ran him down got out of the way as quickly as he could, without even attempting to ascertain the extent of his injuries. Yesterday morning, about 6:30 o'clock, Mr. Andrew J. Fiske was run down by the man on Waltham street near the Davis household. He was with in about three feet of the curbstone when struck and was thrown ten feet, sustaining very painful bruises and a bad shaking up. His left arm was dislocated, his right shoulder and he can hardly raise it. It would seem that such accidents could be avoided by the exercise of a little more care on the part of those riding bicycles.

—Mr. W. S. French, ex-agent of the board of health, was highly regarded by prominent business men of the state and Dr. Durgin says in speaking of him: "Mr. French was one of the ablest agents of health boards in Massachusetts." It is a high compliment and it should be a source of considerable satisfaction to Mr. French to know that so favorable an estimate of his ability emanated from such a man as Dr. Durgin.

—A Boston paper recently published the following paragraph: "Newton people want better police service. The first cause of complaint is that the force is far too small to be entirely efficient. The distances covered by each patrolman are far too great, and there are many sections of the city which are not properly policed. More officers are needed, and another source of trouble is that under the present City Charter the Mayor is the Chief of Police, and with the Police Committee of two members of the Board of Aldermen, has the entire control of the affairs of the department. In years past politics have played an important part in the actions of the committees. There is no such question in regard to the present committee, but the citizens who are interested believe that the discipline of the department would be bettered by a change, which would make the Marshal the actual and responsible head of the department, instead of the head in name only."

AUBURNDALE.

—Thorn's Blackberry Cordial for Summer Complaints.

—Mr. Dunbar has returned from a vacation spent at his home near Worcester.

—Bert Walker is expected home this week from Ocean Point, Me.

—Oliver Jenkins has purchased a new Swift bicycle.

—Mr. Geo. E. Mann has returned from a week's vacation at Green Harbor.

—Mr. Horace Dutton and family have returned from Chicago and the World's Fair.

—Mr. Frank Morse left town the first of the week on a visit to the World's Columbian Exposition at Chicago.

—Mr. E. D. Bird and family have gone for the season to Belfast, Me.

—Mrs. A. A. Leonard has returned from her summer outing.

—Ronald Southland of Higgins store is enjoying a week's vacation.

—Miss Ida Bates has returned from Lynn.

—Harry Hildreth spends his vacation in St. John's, N. B.

—Huestis McLehlan of Weston, is summering at Little Bear river, N. B.

—Chas. A. Hardy is gunning on the Cape for two or three weeks and on his return will visit the Adirondacks.

—Ex-Alderman Chas. H. Sprague and family are expected to return this week from Menahant, on the Cape.

—A long distance public telephone has been placed in Mr. W. P. Thorn's drug store this week. It will be a great convenience.

—We are pleased to receive items of interest at any time from our readers, thus aiding us in reporting news accurately and adding to the interest of this column for yourself and friends.

—The sewer men are still engaged in reducing the ledge on Auburn street at the junction of Rowe street, and hand drilling has given place to a steam drill, the ledge being found much more difficult than expected.

—John Clocer, of G. E. Mann's store, left Wednesday on a two weeks vacation to be spent at Alton, Canada. He will visit Montreal, Toronto and Niagara Falls on the trip.

—There are letters at the postoffice for Miss Fannie Anderson, (2) Mrs. Dennis Barry, Miss Nellie Buchanan, Wm. W. Brown, Miss L. E. Cushing, Miss A. Cabell, Miss Mary J. H. Jackson, Miss Jane E. King, Elmer L. Edgercomb, Mrs. Wm. Kibb, Mrs. Kibb, Mr. Samuel McGregor, Miss E. Wattam.

—By the death Sunday of Mrs. Eliza M. Estabrook, a most estimable woman, the entire community has lost a good and true friend. She was one of the oldest among us and well known in every needy or sorrowing home. Especially will she be missed by the humble poor, whom she delighted to seek out and minister unto. She has "entered into the joy of her Lord" and heard the "well done, good and faithful servant."

—Some important changes are being made this summer in the Lasell Seminary to afford greater convenience and accommodation for the increasing patronage, which is constantly making new demands as the years roll around. The interior of the seminary is being considerably changed and altered. The dining room is being enlarged for the accommodation of a greater number, a new steam elevator is being put to furnish ready access to the different floors in the house, and several other changes in connection with those mentioned are being made.

—Mrs. William D. Harvey of this place died at her parents' home in Deatur, Ill., on July 19, the funeral taking place on Sunday last. She died of cancer, which was the result of a long time, which forbade her residence in the East toward the latter part of her life. Her husband was with her at the last and had been for some time previous. Mrs. Harvey was before her marriage, Miss Myrtle Greene of Deatur, and she met Mr. Harvey while at Lasell seminary, where she spent several years. At that time and during her residence here she made many friends, who to be watched the progress of the incurable disease with great sorrow.

—Some people have expected to see the Society of Christian Endeavor show signs of waning vigor as its years increase. The contrary is true, as indicated by Secretary Bae's report at Montreal, which showed a net gain of 5276 societies during the past year, a larger gain than was ever made before in a single year, and a number as large as gained by the society during the first seven years of its existence. A false report has been going the rounds of many papers east and west to the effect that Dr. Clark, the president of the United Society of Christian Endeavor, is about to retire on account of broken health and increasing age. As Dr. Clark returned from his journey around the world in better health than ever, the rumor is evidently a false one. Since he has so successfully reached middle age, the second reason is naughted absurd.

Lasell Notes.

Among the visitors last week were two graduates of 1888, Bertha Simpson of Lowell and Maud Stone. The latter took special interest in the gymnasiums, where hereafter she had a year with Dr. Sargeant at Cambridge, and is now in a fine position as teachers of gymnastics in Miss Nourse's popular school in Avondale, near Cincinnati. The old girls were much interested in the improvements going on. These improvements are a complete remodeling of the kitchen and dining room, making the latter one of the handsomest halls in the country, putting in a passenger elevator, electric lights throughout the house, a grand, old fashioned fire place in the chapel, a new front door and porte cochere and several other changes which will do the old girls when they come. With all this, no additional rooms are furnished so that the school will still be held at that point of small members which Mr. Bragdon thinks is best for girls' schools.

On Monday of last week Rev. Mr. Pickles of Worcester, Mass., came and spent part of the day at Lasell.

Mrs. Shepherd and her daughter have gone to Chicago. Mrs. Shepherd has charge of the Lasell headquarters during the latter part of July.

Mr. S. C. Caldwell, one of the editors of the N. Y. Tribune, and his wife, have been visiting at the seminary for a few days. Mr. Caldwell is a cousin of Mr. Bragdon's.

Resolutions of Respect to Benjamin F. Houghton.

Whereas it has pleased God in his Providence to remove from the board of directors of the First National Bank of West Newton one of its members, a man of high character and firm supporter of the bank, therefore

Resolved: That in the death of Benjamin F. Houghton we lose one whose counsel and wisdom were valuable to the bank, a pleasant gentleman and one who through long residence in our city, honest dealing, and strict integrity had won the confidence of the community and was of great value to our institution.

We desire to express to his family our appreciation of his worth and our sympathy for them in their affliction, assuring them that we feel his loss as friend and associate.

That these resolutions be placed on the records of the bank and a copy sent to the family and to the Newton papers.

JAMES H. NICKERSON, President.
ALBERT L. BARBOUR, Clerk.

The New Board of Health.

Without any reference to the membership of the old board or to that of the new there is no doubt that the vital defect in the work of such a body always must be the lack of authority to carry out the orders they issue. Whatever may be the intelligence of the members or the wisdom of the plans they lay, or the expediency of the orders they issue, unless they can compel people to obey their decisions, their labor goes for very little. It would be well now that a new board begins its existence to create a public sentiment in favor of obedience to it. If all good citizens were to stand up and declare that public health and safety demand not only that a board shall exist but that it shall enforce its decisions we should have sanitary laws better enforced and the abatement of many of the causes which are prejudicial to the common safety.

ONE KISS.

Because it was so brief a thing—
The loving of this man and maid—
Because one little hour it said,
It cries for some remembering.
Her heart was light, and lighter his;
The weight was all eternity.
They had no better sign to give
Between the garden and the grave,
Than this alone they turned and gave,
As though to say to heaven: "We live,
Let other lips their moment miss,
Death shall not say we did not kiss!"
The tree is here, the stone is here,
And here come worthier maids and men
Where these have loved to dream again.
The golden silence is as clear,
But they come not, and it is this Which consecrates their single kiss.
—E. J. Ellis in Bookman.

"THE MINISTER."

The crows were wheeling behind the plow in scattering clusters and plumping singly upon the soft, thick grubs which the plowshare was turning out upon an unkindly world. It was a bask, blowy day in the end of March, and there was a hint of storm in the air—a hint emphasized for those skilled in weather lore by the presence of half a dozen sea gulls, white vagrants among the black coats, blown by the south wind up from the Solway—a snell, Scotch, but not unfriendly day altogether.

Robert Fraser bent to the plow handles and cast a keen and wary eye toward his guide posts on the ridge. His face was colorless, even when a dash of rain came swirling across from the crest of Ben Gairn, whose steep bulk heaved itself a blue haystack above the level horizon of the moorland. He was dressed like any other plowman of the south uplands—rough homespun much the worse for wear, and leggings the color of the red soil which he was reversing with the share of his plow.

Yet there was that about Robert Fraser which marked him no common man. When he paused at the top of the ascent and stood with his back against the horns of the plow—the countryman's legacy from Adam of the Mattock—he pushed back his weatherbeaten straw hat with a characteristic gesture and showed a white forehead with blue veins channeling it—a damp, heavy lock of black hair clinging to it as in Severn's picture of John Keats on his deathbed. Robert Fraser saw a couple of black specks which moved smoothly and evenly along the top of the distant dike of the highway.

He stood still for a moment or two watching them. As they came nearer they resolved themselves into a smart young man sitting in a well equipped gig driven by a showily actioned horse and drawn by a man in livery. As they passed rapidly along the road the hand of the young man appeared in careless wave of recognition over the stone dike, and Robert Fraser lifted his slack reins in staid acknowledgement. It was more than a year since the brothers had looked each other so nearly in the eyes. They were Dr. Henry Fraser, the rising physician of Cairn Edward, and his elder brother Robert, once student of divinity at Edinburgh college, whom three parishes knew as "stickit minister."

When Robert Fraser stabled his horses that night and went in to his supper, he was not surprised to find his friend, Saunders M'Quhirr, of Drumquhat, sitting by the peat fire in the "room." Almost the only thing which distinguished the stickit minister from the other small farmers of the parish of Dullarg was the fact that he always sat in the evening by himself "ben the hoose" and did not use the kitchen in common with his housekeeper and herd boy, save only at mealtimes. Robert had taken to Saunders ever since—the back of his ambition broken—he had settled down to the farm, and he welcomed him with shy cordiality.

"You'll take a cup of tea, Saunders?" he asked.

"Thank ye, Robert, I wadna be waur o't," returned his friend.

"I saw yer brither the day," said Saunders M'Quhirr, after the teacups had been cleared away and the silent housekeeper had replaced the books upon the table. Saunders picked a couple of them up, and having adjusted his glasses he read the titles "Milton's Works" and a volume of a translation of "Dorner's Person of Christ."

"I saw yer brither the day. He maun be gettin a big practice."

"Aye!" said Robert Fraser very thoughtfully.

Saunders M'Quhirr glanced up quickly. It was of course natural that the unsuccessful elder brother should envy the prosperous younger, but he had thought that Robert Fraser was living on a different plane. It was one of the few things that the friends had never spoken of, though every one knew why Dr. Fraser did not visit his brother's little farm. "He's gettin in wi' the big folk noo an thinks maybe that his brither wad dae him nae credit." That was the way the clash of the countryside explained the matter.

"I never told you how I came to leave the college, Saunders," said the younger man, resting his brow on a hand that even the horn of the plow could not make other than diaphanous.

"No," said Saunders quietly, with a tender gleam coming into the humorously, kindly eyes that lurked under their bushy tussocks of gray eyebrows. Saunders' humor lay near the fountain of tears.

"No," continued Robert Fraser, "I have not spoken of it to so many, but you've been a good friend to me, Saunders, and I think you should hear it. I have not tried to set myself right with folks in the general, but I would like to let you see clearly before I go my ways to him who seeth from the beginning."

"Hear till him," said Saunders; "man, yer hoast (cough) is no' near as sair as it was i' the back end. Ye'll be here lang after me, but lang or short, weel do ye ken, Robert Fraser, that ye need no to pit yersel richt wi' me. Hev I no kenned ye since ye war the size o' twa scrubbers?"

"I thank you, Saunders," said Robert, "but I am well aware that I am to die this year. No, no, not a word. It is the Lord's will. It's more than seven years now since I first kenned that my days were to be few. It was the year my father died and left Harry and me by our lane."

"He left no siller to speak of, just plenty to lay him decently in the kirkyard among his forebears. I had been a year at the Divinity hall then and was going up to put in my discourses for the next session. I had been troubled with my breast for some time and so called one day at the infirmary to get a word with Sir James. He was very busy when I went in and never noticed me till the host took me. Then on a sudden he looked up from his papers and quietly said, 'Come into my room, lad—die!' Aye, he was a good man and a faithful, Sir James, if ever there was one. He told me that with care I might live five or six years, but it would need great care. Then a strange, prickly coldness came over me, and I seemed to walk light headed in an atmosphere suddenly rarefied. I think I know now how the mouse feels under the air pump."

"What's that?" queried Saunders.
"A cruel ploy not worth speaking of," continued the stickit minister. "Well, I found something in my throat when I tried to thank him. But I came my ways home to the Dullarg, and night and day I considered what was to be done, with so much to do and so little time to do it. It was clear that both Harry and me could not go through the college on the little my father had left. So late one night I saw my way clear to what I should do. Harry must go; I must stay. I must come home to the farm and be my own 'man,' then I could send Harry to the college to be a doctor, for he had no call to the ministry as once I thought I had. More than that, it was laid on me to tell Jessie London that Robert Fraser was no better than a machine set to go five years."

"Now all these things I did, Saunders, but there's no use telling you what they cost in the doing. They were right to do, and they were done. I do not regret any of them. I would do them all over again were they to do, but it's been bitter than I thought."

The stickit minister took his head off his hand and leaned back in his chair.

"The story went over the country that I had failed in my examinations, and I never said that I had not. But there were some that knew better who might have contradicted the report if they had liked. I settled down to the farm, and I put Harry through the college, sending all but a bare living to him in Edinburgh. I worked the work of the farm, rain or shine, ever since and have been for these six years the 'stickit minister' that all the world kens the day. Whiles Harry did not think that he got enough. He was always writing for more and not so very pleased when he did not get it. He was aye different to me, ye ken, Saunders, and he canna be judged by the same standard as you and me."

"I ken," said Saunders M'Quhirr, a spark of light lying in the quiet of his eyes.

"Well," continued Robert Fraser, "lightened by Saunders' apparent agreement, 'the time came when he was clear from the college and wanted a practice. He had been ill advised that he had not got his share of the farm, and he wanted it settled to share and share alike."

"Now I kened and you ken, Saunders, that it's no worth much in one share, let alone two. So I got the place quietly bonded and bought him old Dr. Aitken's practice in Cairn Edward with the money. I have tried to do my best for the lad, for it was laid on me to be my brother's keeper. He doesna come here much," continued Robert, "but I think he's not so ill against me as he was. Saunders, he waved his hand to me when he was gaun by the day."

"That was kind of him," said Saunders M'Quhirr.

"Aye, was it no?" said the stickit minister eagerly, with a soft look in his eyes as he glanced up at his brother's portrait in cap and gown which hung over the china dogs on the mantelpiece.

"I got my notice this morning that the bond is to be called up in November," said Robert, "so I'll be obliged to flit."

Saunders M'Quhirr started to his feet in a moment. "Never," he said, with the spark of fire alive now in his eyes, "never as lang as there's a beast on Drumquhat, or a poun in Cairn Edward bank," bringing down his clinched fist upon the Milton on the table.

"No, Saunders, no," said the stickit minister very gently. "I thank you kindly, but I'll be flitted before that."—Montreal Star.

Sea Water as Medicine.

When a bath at Coney Island the other day accidentally swallowed a big gulp of sea water and then rushed off to get a drink of whisky to take the taste out of his mouth, a successful medical practitioner who had witnessed the performance said:

"That man is either a greenhorn or a fool. Otherwise he would have taken merely a sip of lemonade and allowed the sea water to do its work. As a matter of fact, one of the most beneficial features of a sea bath is the salt water inadvertently swallowed by bathers. It is a wonderful tonic for the liver, stomach and kidneys. In many cases it will cure biliousness where all drug preparations have failed. It is peculiarly effective in ordinary cases of indigestion, disordered stomach and insomnia, and has been known to produce excellent results in many cases of dyspepsia. Sea water is full of tonic and sedative properties. It won't hurt anybody. Two or three big swallows of it would be of positive benefit to nine bathers out of ten. It isn't palatable or tempting, but neither is quinine or calomel. You never see an old sailor who is bilious, dyspeptic or a victim of insomnia, and why? For the reason that an ocean of good medicine spreads all about his ship, and he does himself copiously with it whenever his physical mechanism becomes the least bit deranged."—New York Herald.

Nearly Four Months in a Doldrum.

Held for nearly four months in an equatorial doldrum or dead sea calm until her provisions were exhausted and her crew on the verge of starvation was the terrible experience of the American ship Edward O'Brien, which had long ago been given up for lost. The ship is owned partly in this city, and the news of her safety has just reached the owners.

The ship left Victoria, B. C., early in December last for London with a large cargo of wheat, and nothing was heard of her until June 23, when she was sighted by the steamer Galileo in latitude 46.31, longitude 25.16, flying signals telling that she was short of food. She was supplied by the steamer, and Captain Whitton brought to New York news of the safety to the underwriters, who were demanding heavy premiums for reinsuring the vessel and cargo.

It was learned that the ship had made a fine run down the Pacific coast and around the Horn, but when near the equator she had been caught in one of the dreaded calms that prevail in that latitude. For three months she remained within a distance of half a mile from where she first struck the calm, and during that time there was not wind enough to fill even the lightest of her sails. Finally a small current, probably made by a storm many miles away, appeared and served to send her slowly out of the locality, which threatened at one time to become a place of death for all on board. On this current the ship drifted for almost another month. Then a welcome wind carried her back into the paths of navigation.—Philadelphia Record.

The Heroes in the Stakehold.

One of the most sorrowful circumstances connected with the loss of the Victoria is the fact that five out of six engineer officers lost their lives. The reason is not far to seek. The engineers were at the post of duty, and the post of duty was in this case the post of danger. The chief engineer and four of his staff were in the engine room endeavoring to shut off the steam and to open the escape valves. They died, but they will not be forgotten.

Those who know what a watch in the dark, fiery well of the stakehold, 40 feet below the bridge, really means can alone appreciate the qualities which enable men to remain steadfast at their post in such surroundings in the hour of danger. It requires a stout heart to stay at the bottom of an iron well, with a dozen high pressure boilers before one and a square patch of sky seen through a hatchway 40 feet above, when the order on deck is, "Close all the water tight doors," and "Call away all the boats." We must not forget the engineers and stokers of the Victoria. They have deserved well of England.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Statistics From the Social Register.

According to The Social Register for August, the number of prominent families of New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Baltimore and Chicago who have gone to Europe is only 55 per cent of what it was at this time a year ago. There is also an increase of 30 per cent in the return arrivals from Europe. This is attributed to the World's fair.

The Register shows that 367 families are summering abroad, 2,348 are residing inland, and 2,162 are at the seashore. Of the families that went inland 397 are in New Jersey between Orange and Morristown, 322 are in the Hudson, 97 are at Lenox and 1,532 in New England, Pennsylvania, Maryland and the west. Of those who are at the seashore, 902 are on the Long Island coast, 318 are at Newport, 389 are on the New England coast between Newport and Bar Harbor, 211 are on the Jersey coast between Seabright and Atlantic City, 191 are at Bar Harbor and 44 are at Narragansett.

Professor Moore's Steam Man.

A steam "man" is the latest American novelty. The inventor, Professor George Moore, made a similar apparatus with partial success a number of years ago, but his present venture is larger and intended to draw a wagon. The figure, 6 feet high, is incased in metal and looks like a knight in medieval armor, with helmet and visor, smoking a cigar. The cigar, however, is an escape pipe, and the plumes of the helmet veil the top of the chimney. The furnace and boiler are contained inside the trunk and the moving mechanism in the rest of the body. The man walks briskly at a pace of four or five miles an hour.

Inward and Outward Debt of Argentina.

The total internal and external debt of Argentina on Dec. 31 last was $411,595,223 gold and $46,061,801 currency, of which the interest bearing debt amounted to $307,293,523 gold and $14,813,601 currency. The external debt was $215,567,598 gold, which was increased to $222,531,023 on the 1st of July. The currency in circulation amounted to $281,000,000.—Rio News.

Emotional Element in College Sport.

The Boston Transcript makes bold to say that when we read that one "really manly" fellow in the Harvard crew the other day put his head down into his hands after his side had been beaten in the race at New London and booed like a child in the face of all the thousands of spectators we realize that there is a prodigious emotional element in these college sports.

The Pilgrim's Jewelry.

If the new yacht Pilgrim, which was built to defend America's cup, fails to win, it will not be for lack of attention to the regular sea dog superstitions. A ring from Mr. Stewart, a moonstone scarfpin from the captain and various odds and ends have been deposited at the heel of the mast for good luck.

A Cheap Lot of Old Stocks.

At the auction sale, the other day, of the personal property of the late Governor Hale of New Hampshire, stocks having a par value of $2,700,000 and promissory notes with a face value of $57,000 were sold to the highest bidder for less than $7.—New York Tribune.

"For Years,"

Says Carrie E. Stockwell, of Chester, N. H.: "I was afflicted with a severely severe pain in the lower part of the chest. The feeling was as if a ton weight was laid on a spot the size of my hand. During the attacks, the perspiration would stand in drops on my face, and it was agony for me to make a sufficient effort even to breathe. They came suddenly, at any hour of the day or night, lasting from thirty minutes to half a day, leaving me suddenly, but for several days after, I was quite prostrated and sore. Sometimes the attacks were almost daily, then less frequent. After about four years of this suffering, I was taken down with typhoid fever, and when I began to recover, I had the worst attack of my old trouble I ever experienced. At the first of the fever, my mother gave me Ayer's Pills, my doctor recommending them as being better than anything he could prepare. I continued taking these Pills, and so great was the benefit derived that during nearly thirty years I have had but one attack of my former trouble, which yielded readily to the same remedy."

Literary Notes.

Mr. W. D. Howells's latest one-scene play is called "Bride Roses," and appears in Harper's Magazine for August. Unlike Mr. Howells's previous plays there is an element of tragedy in "Bride Roses." The action takes place in a florist's shop, and four characters are represented.

It is not usual for writers to illustrate their articles, nor, as a rule, are illustrators willing to put their pens in evidence with their brushes. Two exceptions appear in the August Harper's. Frederic Remington wrote as well as illustrated the account of a canoe trip which is printed under the title "Black Water and Shallows," and William Hamilton Gibson is the author as well as the embellisher of "A Queer Little Family on the Bittersweet," a veranda study in natural history.

Among the most noteworthy Magazine articles of the year will be three papers written and illustrated by Edwin Lord Weeks, and describing the journey from the Black Sea to the Persian Gulf, on which Theodore Child lost his life. The first will appear in the October Harper's Magazine, and will be called "From Trebizond to Tabreez by Caravan." The text is made up from Mr. Week's diary, and the illustrations, painted from sketches made along the way, are unusually strong and suggestive.

Harper's Weekly for the coming week will contain an extensively illustrated article on the great National Yellowstone Park. There will be four full pages of illustrations. Other timely subjects are the silver question in Colorado, with a portrait of Governor Waite, and a page of illustrations from photographs; a page of portraits of leading German politicians in the German Reichstag, who have been closely connected with the discussion of the famous Army Bill; and pictures relating to the recent trouble between France and Siam.

Harper's Bazar for July 29th will contain: "Little Paul P.," a farce, by Miss Grace L. Furness, author of "A Box of Monkeys," and other popular plays for amateurs; a short story by Howard Seely, entitled "A Knight Errant of the Plains;" and the first of a short series of papers of great interest to art amateurs and decorators, entitled "The Elements of Floral Design," by Louis Mead. This series will be abundantly illustrated.

THE PANSY FOR AUGUST

comes to us with its usual amount of good things. It never fails to do that. As clever a piece of reading as any between its covers, however, is the paper which concerns itself with American Literature. Pleasant mention is made of Louisa M. Alcott, Mrs. Burnett, Mrs. Whitney and the author of the "Wide, Wide World," but the charm of the article for the readers of this magazine will center about Pansy and Margaret Sidney, the young folks' favorites, and to whom, when they look upon the good portraits which accompany the article, it will seem like greeting friends for whom they have long been waiting. "Only Ten Cents" and the "Golden Discoveries" develop in interest, and the shorter stories define the purpose for which they were written—to stimulate the young people to noble aims and high purpose. The P. S. Society maintains its popularity with all, while it adds fresh interest to each month. Price, $1.00 a year; 10 cents a number. D. Lothrop Company, Publishers, Boston.

OUR LITTLE MEN AND WOMEN FOR AUGUST

is an unusually bright number. Mary D. Brine, Louis Hall, Elizabeth Cummings and Emma Huntington Nason each contribute delightful verse, and the writers of the winning serial stories here, if anything, made themselves more entertaining than ever. "The Dark Flowers" with its apt illustrations makes a dainty botany lesson, and "Flossie," who belonged to the author of "My Dogs and Their Ways," will amuse and interest all lovers of dumb animals—and what little man or woman is not that? Price, $1.00 a year; 10 cents a number. D. Lothrop Company, Publishers, Boston.

BABYLAND FOR AUGUST

tells about a good many things that Baby will enjoy, but "Baby Graying's Fright" and "What Babykins Thought about the Camel" will prove as charming, no doubt, as the naughty mouse who carried off Baby's money, and the sewing circle composed of babies, who will not tell their secret. This dainty little magazine is sure always to captivate both Baby and Mamma. Price, 50 cents a year; 5 cents a number. D. Lothrop Company, Publishers, Boston.

CHAMPION F. H. HOVEY.

STEVENS DEFEATED AT LONGWOOD IN THREE EXCITING SETS.

Whether Fred Hovey made a good smash or Richard Stevens made one of his phenomenal passes down the side lines the large gathering which surrounded the court of the Longwood cricket club at Longwood Saturday afternoon applauded in an impartial manner every brilliant stroke made by the skillful racket wielders.

I was the championship match between the holder of that magnificent and costly challenge bowl and the winner of the tournament.

Stevens, having secured the first prize on Friday by defeating Malcolm Chase, was called upon to face Hovey, who last year won the honors from E. L. Hall of New York.

Hovey was the winner in three straight sets, 8-6, 7-5, 8-6, but the Hoboken man gave the Newton crack a splendid battle.

Every set was unusually well contested and it took 36 points to decide the winner of the decisive game.

Stevens did some wonderful lobbing, and passed Hovey time and again at the net, but Hovey's superior volleys and ability to smash the balls at critical stages finally won him the match.

Hovey failed to play his best game, and was therefore very fortunate in pulling off the victory in such short order.

In the second set Stevens had him 5-2, but Hovey kept peering away with first a short cross court drive and then a terrific smash into one of the corners of his opponent's court until referee Valentine Hall called five games all. Stevens seemed to lose his nerve after the score was tied and Hovey took the remaining games and the set.

The weather warm but the heat had no effect on the players who worked just as hard for victory. As to the court, it was in the finest possible condition and there was nothing to hinder the players from doing their best work.

It seemed as if every tennis enthusiast in this vicinity was present, the seats surrounding the court being all taken long before the hour for play to begin. Many fashionable people were noticed among the gathering, and not a few pretty girls enjoyed the privilege of seeing some great tennis.

Both Hovey and Stevens appeared to be in fine condition as they stepped into the court for their preliminary practice. Hovey was naturally the favorite at the start, but Stevens soon gained many friends by his brilliant and steady work.

Park Theatre.

The "Golden Wedding" as presented the past week at the Park Theatre is practically a new piece. In the first place, because there have been written a number of new lines, and songs, and again, because at least three new people appear in leading roles. The third month and 10th week of the Park's summer attraction began last Monday. Great interest centred in the appearance of Lucy Daly who took Miss Yeaman's place. Miss Daly made no attempt to imitate Miss Yeaman. She has a smart originality exclusively her own and made a big hit. Her interpolated song and dance in the first act caught on instantaneously, and was demanded several times. With her sister, Marguerite Daly, several fantastic dances and exhibitions of high kicking were given later in the evening, and the girls received round on round of applause. Another big hit was made by that old-time burlesque comedian, George (Catherine) Fortescue, who appeared as Queen Salamauca. He was gorgeously arrayed, and sung and danced in the most entertaining manner. He had several very funny scenes with Sir Thomas Topack, (Dan Daly), and while the pair were upon the stage the audience was kept in a continual roar. All the features in the "Golden Wedding" this week will be retained next week.

A lady, whose hair came out with every combing, was induced to give Ayer's Hair Vigor a faithful trial. She did so, and not only was the loss of hair checked, but a new and vigorous growth soon succeeded that which had gone.

Premature baldness may be prevented and the hair made to grow on heads already bald, by the use of Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer.

PROSPECT OF HIGHER RATES.

THE LOS ANGELES FIRE ALARM SYSTEM CONDEMNED.

LOS ANGELES, April 26.—The Los Angeles fire alarm system has been condemned by the Pacific Insurance Union. The electrical inspector of the union has made an investigation of the system, with the result that he declares that it is defective, and recommends that "the consideration which is now enjoyed by Los Angeles, because of the assumption that it has a reliable fire alarm system, be now withdrawn." Should this action be taken it would mean an advance in insurance rates all along the line, which would result in a loss of thousands of dollars to property owners.—San Francisco Chronicle, April 27, 1893.

The fire alarm system above referred to is a mixed system, but there is no Gamewell apparatus connected with it.

Catarrh in New England.

Ely's Cream Balm gives satisfaction to every one using it for catarrhal troubles.—G. K. Mellor, Druggist, Worcester, Mass. I believe Ely's Cream Balm is the best article for catarrh ever offered the public.—Bush & Co., Druggists, Worcester, Mass. An article of real merit.—C. P. Alden, Druggist, Springfield, Mass. Those who use it speak highly of it.—Geo. A. Hill, Druggist, Springfield, Mass. Cream Balm has given satisfactory results. W. P. Draper, Springfield, Mass.

The value of a good name was well exemplified the other day, when a man asked one of our druggists for a bottle of Sarsaparilla. "Whose?" inquired the clerk. "Whose? why, Ayer's, of course. Ye don't suppose I'm going to run any risks with Hannah, do ye?"

SICK HEADACHE.

Yields to Rodolf's New Liver Pills.

Read what a prominent merchant of Brooks says, who has been Town Clerk for 35 consecutive years, elected unanimously, and is Master of Marsh River Lodge, F. A. M.

RODOLF MEDICINE CO., BROOKS, ME.

Gentlemen—For over thirty years I have suffered with sick headache; have had attacks every spring which would confine me to the house for 24 hours as often as twice a week. Some months ago I began using Rodolf's Pills, since which time I have been free from headache. I consider them the most effective and valuable of all headache cures.

O. W. LANE.

Costly Railroads. The costliest mile of railway is a mile measured on the steel portion of the Forth bridge. The length of this portion is a mile and 20 yards, and the cost of it was considerably over £2,000,000.

The most expensive railway system in the world is the "Inner Circle" line of London, which cost, including the purchase of land, from £600,000 to nearly £1,000,000 per mile. The last constructed mile, between the Mansion house and Aldgate, cost altogether, including "compensations," nearly £2,000,000.—London Letter.

Not a Lecture After All. "Sense me," he said to the other passenger on the rear platform of a Michigan avenue car, "but do you use tobacco?"

"Yes, sir," was the prompt reply of the man as he turned his head and kept his hands folded in front of him. Nothing more was said for 10 long minutes, and then the inquirer coolly drew a plug from his coat pocket and calmly said: "So do I. Have a chew!"—Detroit Free Press.

The Hot Poker Delusion.

An interesting delusion is produced by looking along a red-hot poker at some small object (a coin or a letter stuck upon a wall) moved from the eye a distance of from four to six feet. Direct the gaze intently for a few seconds, and you will presently see an inverted image of the object hanging near the end of the poker.—St. Louis Republic.

Coughing Leads to Consumption. Kemp's Balsam stops the cough at once.

Merchants familiar with mixed paints that have been put upon the market during the past ten years, will tell you that many of the manufacturers of these paints seem to think that they could sell anything that was labelled paint, that the merchant cared little what was contained in these paints, and it made no difference to the consumer. The cheapness and convenience of mixed paints, however, counted much in their favor. But the demand for mixed paint that was actually paint, and not simply labelled paint, became apparent, and merchants received the Chilton Paints when they were introduced upon the market, with the greatest of favor, because they knew that they were made out of the best materials that could be bought, were full measure, and that none of the tricks used to cheapen the cost of production were resorted to. The merchant could recommend them. The standard of excellence has never been lowered. The same quality of paint is put up in pound cans as in large packages. "Chilton Paint Co., New York and Boston."

—The front walls of Mr. Bray's new block are to be constructed of the handsome Pompeian brick which will be a pleasing departure from the usual red brick block erected in suburban places. Some delay is occasioned at present, the window frames not having arrived, and for some time for the front foundations, but as soon as these are ready the block can be pushed forward rapidly.

—Fred H. Hovey has been playing excellent tennis this week on the courts of the St. George Cricket club at Chicago. The tournament opened Tuesday, and the principal tennis cracks of the east are among the contestants. One of the Boston papers says, "Chicago awoke to the importance of the occasion when the afternoon's play began. Society sat four or five deep under the shady elms, and the board fence along one side of the grounds on Fullerton avenue was black with youngsters, who revelled in the fact that they were bleachers pure and simple. A yellow flag flapped in the breeze with a gay crowd of young people, and it was a charming company that watched every movement of Fred Hovey and Clarence Hobart, whose match with two other Wrenn boys, Evans and George L., was to prove so easy for the champions. Neither Hovey nor Hobart seemed to be in their usual form at first, but their play was too good even then to allow their opponents, but few points except through errors. In the first Wrenn brothers were passed 17 times and when the champions got into form they were far from "in it." The score resulted as follows: Hovey and Hobart beat Wrenn Bros. 6-4; 6-1; 6-3. The second day's play was none the less favored for the champions, Hobart and Hovey had as opponents Joseph S. Tobin and William H. Taylor, Jr., two young men who were winners in California, but they found to their sorrow that the eastern style of play is much swifter than that of the sunny Pacific coast. No tennis man for an instant believed Tobin and Taylor to be in the race at all, so the score, three straight sets, 6-1, 6-1, 6-1, in favor of Hovey and Hobart, was no real surprise.

Are Animals Ever "Bored?"

Surely mankind has sufficient faults and failings of its own to answer for without being called upon to assume the responsibility of animal failings as well. An American author has discovered that domestic animals, such as cats or dogs, are not only subject to ennui, but also display their feelings under that infliction after very much the same fashion as their human friends, a fact which no one who has kept tame animals will be tempted to deny.

But from this fact our contemporary, The News, leaps to a perfectly unwarrantable conclusion and boldly asserts that ours is the fault, that mankind has inoculated the beast creation with its own particular disease and that it is civilization "which produces ennui, not only in men, women and children, but even in cats and dogs." "We may well blush," it continues, "when we think how man has demoralized the dog. We have taught the dog to be bored. We have corrupted him by our society." And again, "Ennui is one of man's many inventions, but he has taught the unprofitable vice to the domestic or at least to the household animals—pupils only too apt in evil."

Was ever so monstrous a charge leveled against our innocent! The next thing we shall be told is that we are the cause that dogs do bark and bite and that whatever may have been the morality of Dr. Watts his natural history is no better than his poetry. The News, if it is so assured of the demoralizing influence it has exercised upon dogs, is welcome to blush for itself. We prefer to maintain that dogs sorrow under boredom for the same simple reason that they delight to bark and bite, "for 'tis their nature to."—London Spectator.

Advised For His Good.

They are neighbors on Second avenue, and as they walked down town the other morning one of them observed:

"My wife is crazy to have me buy a new milk cow. What do you think of the idea?"

"Magnificent! You couldn't invest $40 in a way to bring you better returns."

"Much bother and expense?"

"Hardly any. Your milk won't cost you over a cent a quart, and it will be pure milk too. If I had a barn, I'd keep two cows."

"Two or three of my friends have rather discouraged me."

"Don't listen to 'em. Rich cream for strawberries and coffee—pure, sweet milk for the children and kitchen! I've often wondered that you didn't keep a cow. No care, no trouble, no expense. I'll guarantee you'll never regret it. In fact, it is really your duty toward your children."

"Yes, I suppose so. I guess I'll go over to the hay market and buy one and send her up."

Ten minutes later the man who advised was telephoning to a carpenter shop:

"Say, you! One of your men was up at the house yesterday measuring doors and windows for fly screens. I told him to go ahead at $42, but I want to countermand the order. Sold out? Oh, no! My neighbor's going to keep a cow, and that's left eight or ten of us out on the fly question!"—Detroit Free Press.

How to Use Charcoal In Place of Ice.

For keeping large pieces of meat and poultry here is a simple device: Have a large barrel or hoghead half filled with charcoal. Put meat hooks in a strip of oil and place across the top of the barrel. Have a netting to spread over this. This barrel may be kept in a cool place and pieces of meat be hung on the hooks. The charcoal will keep the atmosphere dry and sweet, and the netting will be a protection against insects. Should there be danger from rats or mice use wire netting.

Fresh fish may be rubbed with salt, wrapped in paper and buried in a bed of charcoal. Of course the charcoal in boxes and barrels should be changed at least once a month. It can be used for lighting fires or for broiling meats or fish. If, however, it is difficult to get a good supply of charcoal, the old can be purified by putting it into the stove with a few lighted chips and allowing it to burn until redhot. At this stage open all the windows to let the gas pass off; then close the drafts of the stove, remove the covers and leave the room. When the charcoal becomes cold, it will be ready for use again.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Strange Experience of a Letter.

A lady in London wished to communicate with a friend in America, whose address she did not know. In order to obtain the needed information she wrote to another friend, who also lived in the new world. The letter was duly dispatched, but the ship which carried it was wrecked, and the mails went to the sea bottom.

They were eventually recovered, however, and the letter in question, torn and discolored, found its way back to the sender. While subjecting it to a minute examination, the lady was surprised to find part of another letter adhering to it, upon which epistle was the full address of the friend with whom she wished to correspond. In this strange way, without having reached its destination, her letter had brought to her the answer desired.—London Tit-Bits.

A Sudden End of a Whist Game.

In the spring of 1789 a "fattish" lady—the epithet is not mine—was playing at cards at an assembly. Her partner screamed out: "Dear me, madam, what are you doing! What can you be dreaming about? You have the ace in your hand, and you suffer the adversary's king to pass." A glance at the lady soon showed that any explanation of her misconduct was impossible. She had been seized with a stroke of "apoplexy, which put an end to both her and the rubber."—Temple Bar.

Water a Necessity In Kentucky.

Our guests will observe that, notwithstanding slanders to the contrary, there is an abundance of water in Kentucky. Mint doesn't flourish without plenty of water.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

A Nonpoisonous Disinfectant.

Science has been enriched by a medical discovery as important in the domain of therapeutics as chloroform, landanum and quinine. The great theory of infection by bacillus forms requires, in order to be fruitful of benefit to mankind, the discovery of a powerful germicide. In carbolic acid, in corrosive sublimate and in potassium permanganate science has made long strides in the direction of adequate antiseptics and bactericides, but these drugs all have their drawbacks. Now, however, Dr. Worrall, a noted scientist, claims to have found among the coal products a disinfecting body apparently superior to all previous ones.

He has named it izal, and Dr. Klein, after a series of exhaustive laboratory experiments, is said to have found it absolutely destructive of the spores of some of the most intractable and malignant diseases. Unlike most powerful disinfectants, it is nonpoisonous to human beings and may be taken internally diluted, while Dr. Klein's experiments go to prove that, diluted with 200 parts water, izal absolutely destroys the vitality of the microbes of diphtheria, scarlatina, glanders, erysipelas and cholera.—New York Telegram.

A Whist Player.

Colley Cibber was playing cards one night at Tom's coffee house in Russell street, Covent Garden, one of the few houses in London which were only open to subscribers. As the cards were dealt to the playful Colley, "he took up every one in turn and expressed his disappointment at every indifferent one." As the game went on, he did not follow suit, whereupon the testy old general cried out, "What, have you not a sp
